Benchley And Herbert Will Wage Sleepy Duel Tuesday

Drowsy Team Set Alarm Clocks For 9 P. M. Program; Lennie Hayton To Play Rodgers And Hart Tunes

Hugh Herbert, who makes a hobby of mild exercise such as napping, will undergo a special trip from Hollywood to New York via sleeper plane to wake up drowsy Robert Benchley on Tuesday. Then he'll go west again — and so to bed.

What this pair will do for the benefit of the WJZ audience when they take the air at 9 p. m. is anybody's guess. He and Bob may pay their respects to some other popular radio program; at least they'll have to wake up their minds about chime time.

This much is crain: A new vocal group will be introduced, the Melodiers; Lennie Hayton will play Rodgers and Hart tunes from "Too Many Girls," and Benchley is toying with the title, "How to Fix a Radio," as his domestic sketch.

Fibber's penchant for getting into trouble creates another bit of excitement in Wistful Vista during the Fibber McGee and Molly program over WEAF Tuesday at 9:30 p. m. The combined efforts of Molly, Nick DePopolus, the Old Timer, Horatio K. Boomer and Mrs. Uppington to restore order only add to the confusion. A more stable note will be struck by Donald Novis when he sings "With a Song in My Heart," and by Billy Mills and his orchestra when they play "Life Begins When You're in Love."

Ethel Merman will be the guest star on Walter O'Keefe's show Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. over WABC, temporarily replacing Mary Martin, who will be in Boston for the opening of her show, "Nice Goin'." Walter O'Keefe will uphold the comedy end of the program, assisted by "stooges" Keenan Wynn and Jack O'Keefe. Bobby Dolan, the orchestra leader, will be replaced for the night by Lynn Murray, the well-known educator. Bobby will be on the road with "Very Warm for May." "The Martins" (no relation to Mary) will make their fifth return engagement on this program, singing unique vocalizations arranged by Hugh Martin.

Young Henry Aldrich's love affairs take a difficult turn during the Tuesday episode of the Aldrich Family, heard at 8 p. m over WJZ. Even Henry is unable to cope with the number of heartbeats that besiege him. He wins up with the fervent wish that his girls would come to town one at a time instead of in droves. Betty Field, screen star and member of the original cast of the Aldrich Family, will make her second appearance as Henry's new love interest, Barbara Pearson. Ezra Stone, as Henry, discovers that a grandmother who dotes on accompanying Barbara on her dates is not as much of a handicap as his friend Dizzy.

"Fate Snaps a Snap Shot, or Elmer's Photo Finish," dolorous tale of a candid camera addict who found that hypo was no substitute for oil on his troubled matrimonial waters, will be the study assignment for Uncle Walter's Dog House Tuesday at 10:30 p. m. over WEAF. The Dog House Singers will sing "Farewell Jonah," and other members include a college medley of pep songs of North Carolina, Idaho and Princeton.

The University of Southern California will be saluted by Bob Crosby's band next Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. over WABC with the playing of the "U" song "Fight on to Victory."

The supreme sacrifice of a father who faces execution to save his son will be revealed in "The Knight's Bridge Mystery," during the Johnny Presents program Tuesday at 8 p. m. over WEAF.

Stumping experts of the Information Please program has become an even more attractive pursuit since announcement to the WJZ audience that a complete set of the Encyclopedia Brittanica, valued at $159.75, will be given to each person submitting a question on which the board fails completely. This is in addition to the $10 heretofore paid. The increase in the value of the award is 1597 per cent.

Louis Untermyer, poet and critic, and Deems Taylor, composer and music critic, will be guest experts on the program Tuesday at 8:30 p. m., serving with the regulars, John Kieran and Franklin P. Adams.

"Mr. Smith" Film At Quilna Continues To Draw Patrons

James Stewart And Jean Arthur Starred In Laugh-Laden, Drama-Tense Picture; Rooney And Garland At The Ohio

Frank Capra's biggest picture, as well as his greatest, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," continues to draw theatre patrons to the Quilna, filling the house to capacity nightly. Starring Jean Arthur and James Stewart, the picture tells the story of a typical small-town youth who is suddenly, surprisingly appointed to the U. S. senate. Fast-moving, laugh-laden, drama-tense, the film is destined for "highest honors."

Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, co-starred for the first time, appear in "Babes in Arms" at the Ohio theatre, in a musical comedy-drama including a cast of Hollywood's juvenile talent.

It is the story of the passing of vaudeville and the attempts of troupers children to revive the interest in the stage. Mickey Rooney dances, sings, and does impersonations for the first time, while Judy provides the heart interest and also sings.

The Lyric offers Bing Crosby and Joan Blondell in "East Side of Heaven" and Richard Arlen and Rochell Hudson in "Missing Daughters." Supported by the hilarious antics of Mischa Auer and the new infant sensation, "Sandy," the Crosby picture presents the delightful story of two bachelors who suddenly find themselves unwilling fathers of a homeless child.

"Unexpected Father," starring Baby Sandy, Micha Auer, Shirley Ross and Dennis O'Keefe, and "The Lady Vanishes," opens Wednesday at the Sigma theatre in a sure-fire double hit program. Showing for the last time Tuesday is "Espionage Agent," starring Joel McCrea, Brenda Marshall, and Jeffrey Lynn in a stirring timely story based on current international troubles.

"Tense drama in a confining prison wall is provided in "Each Dawn I Die" at the State theatre, starring James Cagney and George Raft. Two fiery characters, one trained in corruption, the other trained in fighting public enemies, Raft and Cagney form a strange friendship within prison walls. With this fast moving, action-packed drama is "Some Like It Hot," with Bob Hope, Shirley Ross and Gene Krupa.

At the Majestic theatre the pitfalls of fast living are exposed in "What Price Passion." Horrifying tragedy to those who err in their judgment of human values is exposed in this sensational picture.

QUILNA

Recently, nine major Hollywood companies virtually halted all production, or re-arranged their schedules so as to "shoot around" some of Hollywood's most important stars.

Ordinarily, an "all-star" cast means a cast which includes one, two or sometimes three stars; the other players are well-known "bit" or character actors. But when Frank Capra makes a picture, his "all-star" cast is just that. And Frank Capra's production of Columbia's stirring "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" required the services of a Hollywood Who's Who, somewhat to the embarrassment of Hollywood's studio managers.

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," co-starring Jean Arthur and James Stewart at the Quilna theatre, is a tour de force in the field of comedy drama, telling the story of a typical small-town youth who is suddenly, surprisingly appointed to the United State Senate. Miss Arthur is expertly cast as the senatorial secretary who first laughs at Stewart — "Mr. Smith" — then, learning to love him, helps him meet the dramatic consequences of his going to the capital.

Miss Arthur and Stewart alone would be an "all-star cast" as well as a guarantee of exciting romantic entertainment to those who remember their last picture together, "You Can't Take It With You," also created by Capra. Yet, in other important roles Hollywood's master director cast the following gallery of stars:

Edward Arnold, as a political boss Thomas Mitchell, Washington correspondent; Claude Rains, U. S. senator, Guy Kibbee, a state governor; Ruth Donnelly, Kibbee's wife; Eugene Pallette, a political hatchet; Beulah Bondi, Stewart's mother; Astrid Allwyn, Rains' daughter H B Warner, Grant Mitchell, Porter Hall and Pierre Watkin, U S senators; and Harry Carey, a vice president of the United States.

Capra's biggest picture as well as his greatest — "Mr. Smith's" fast-moving, laugh-laden, drama-tense story moves thru 13 impressive settings, utilizing thousands of extra players — the new film required no fewer than 108 speaking parts.

OHIO

The success of 16-year-old Judy Garland, who is co-starred with Mickey Rooney in "Babe in Arms," now at the Ohio theatre, was no accident. It is the story of a little girl who knew what she wanted and was determined to get it.

With the firm conviction that she wanted to be a motion picture actress, Judy walked onto the lot one day and announced to all and sundry that she was looking for a job. She got it. She was 12 at the time.

Judy always had the theatre in her veins. She heard it from the time she could understand what her parents, Frank A. and Ethel Gumm, and her two older sisters, Virginia and Suzanne, were talking about. The family was theatrical. Her parents were professionals — vaudeville folk, "legit" actors and singers.

Born in Grand Rapids, Minn June 10, Judy has been in almost every city of size in the United States with her parents "on the road." She spent brief periods in in Grand Rapids, Minn and Lancaster, Calif., so she remembers these places better than the others. She calls Los Angeles "home." Most of her education was acquired in that city.

She became a member of the singing trio composed of herself and her two elder sisters. The act worked at the World's Fair in Chicago and in several big theatres in the Midwest. So Judy wasn't bluffing when she told officials that she had had stage experience, eight years of it. Her claims got her an audition and her performance brought her a contract.

She made her screen debut in the short "Every Sunday." This was followed by "Pigskin Parade," "Broadway Melody of 1938," "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry," "Everybody Sing," "Love Finds Andy Hardy," "Listen Darling," and then her portrayal of Dorothy in the "Wizard of Oz," which marked her elevation to stardom among the great.

LYRIC

Headed by Bing Crosby and Joan Blondell, one of the most capable casts ever found in a single picture was assembled for "East Side of Heaven," which opens at the Lyric theatre on Tuesday.

Bing and Joan are co-starred in this film which features hit songs, romance and comedy against a strong human background. And they are surrounded by a galaxy of players who already are knocking at Hollywood's carefully guarded portals leading to stardom.

Mischa Auer, often referred to as the mad Russian, tops the supporting cast. "Sandy," 10-months-old baby of a Los Angeles milkman, does such a surprising job that studio executives already have the parents' signatures on a long term contract.

Irene Hervey, who portrays Sandy's mother, is one of the film colony's most rapidly ascending young actresses. C. Aubrey Smith is a veteran of many extraordinary films. Jerome Cowan gives further proof of why Hollywood won't let him go back to Broadway.

Others in the cast include J. Farrell MacDonald, Mary Carr, Robert Kent, Douglas Wood, Arthur Hoyt, Jackie Gerlich, Jack Powell, Russell Hicks, Dorothy Christy and Edward Earle.

The picture was directed by David Butler, a film pilot with some of Hollywood's best-remembered hits to his credit.
