STARLET'S WATCH

You will always have the "key" to the correct time if you wear a pin watch like Ann Rutherford. The actress wears on her suits and casual dresses a tiny gold key with a watch set into the top.

Good Listening: to Learn

(Prepared by the radio committee of the Madison branch, American Association of University Women.)

Each year the number of hours carrying good programs over the air increases in response to the desires of the audience. The current season has brought a great variety of programs about interesting facts. The high points of a great man's life live again in dramatic dialog. By the same means, the thrill and fatigue of exploration or of scientific discovery come alive. These are not so-called "dry" facts, but significant facts, so presented that they stir the imagination.

National networks and educational institutions cooperate in presenting some of them. The University of Chicago is back of "The Human Adventure," heard at 4 p. m. Saturday, WBBM. Its range of audience is wide — 90 stations; its range of subjects even wider: Origin of the Earth, Infantile Paralysis, Ancient Writing in Clay, Acoustics, the Bible.

The program of the Smithsonian institution, "The World Is Yours, Sunday, 3:30, WMAQ, is almost as varied. This month it will present: March 10, Conquest of Noise; March 17, Our Changing Wildlife; March 24, American Pharmacy; March 31, Opening of the Far West.

Medicine in the News, WENR 3:30 Thursday, is backed by the American Medical assn.

Other programs confine themselves to a single field, as, for instance:

History

Democracy in Action, WIND, Sunday, 1 p. m.

Cavalcade of America, WIBA, Tuesday, 9:30 p. m.

*Story Behind the Headlines, WIBA, Friday, 8:30 p. m.

Art

*Master Artists, WGN, Tuesday 4 p. m.

*Art for Your Sake, WTMJ, Saturday, 6:30.

Statesmanship and Economics.

Foreign Policy assn., WENR, WENR, Sunday, 2:15.

Economics Next Step Forward, WLW, WTAM, Wednesday, 10:15 p. m.

Literature

*Pilgrimage of Poetry, WTMJ, Sunday, 12 m.

Unfortunately the weekly program which presented the literary chats of Mr. Weeks, editor of the Atlantic, has been discontinued; and another literary program, Adventures in Reading, has no outlet in this part of the country.

All these programs are designed for adults. The NBC Music Appreciation Hour,* conducted by Walter Damrosch (WIBA, Friday, 1 p. m.) and the CBS School of the Air,* (WBBM, 2:30, Monday-Friday) though planned for school children, have many adults among their listeners.

The asterisks indicate that copies of the broadcasts, or workplans, may be had for a nominal sum by addressing the network or the station sending the program. For the asking, bibliographies on opera and on symphonic music may be obtained.

Many of us are grateful to the broadcasting companies and to the educational associations for these fascinating programs and for the variety of such offerings. But will we write and tell them so?
