"Bingo!" cried the lady as she turned her radio set on a couple of Thursdays ago. No, she wasn't playing a game. She was just remarking aloud because her favorite crooner, Bing Crosby, shown here, was back in his old niche on the air.

Swan Calls Radio Aid to Church

Radio broadcasts of church services do not in the least effect church attendance, according to the Rev. Alfred W. Swan, minister at the First Congregational church.

"I believe that it stimulates church-going," he remarked. "One would rather witness an event than hear it over the radio. The spectators at a football or basketball game have not dwindled though it could be heard over the air at home. So it is, I believe, with church broadcasts."

Dr. Swan's sermon to the congregation is heard over station WIBA, at 11 a. m. Sundays. He has been broadcasting every Sunday since November, 1930.

"Though the financial aid from listeners does not come near paying for the cost of the service, I would not think of discontinuing the broadcasts, for I believe they are an aid to promoting good will and they reach those who are not able to come to church," he said.

Fan mail reaches Dr. Swan. He has had reports from listeners throughout southern Wisconsin and the bordering states. Though the church is of Protestant denomination, Dr. Swan has received letters of commendation from churchmen of other religions. He said there was a general feeling of good will concerning the broadcast.

By touring through Wisconsin and other states, Dr. Swan said he found out that many listeners thought of him as a gray-haired bearded old gentleman and were surprised to see him so comparatively young looking.

◇ ◇ ◇

"As far as the church program is concerned, the radio broadcast has brought about promptness," he said, "for those participating know that the service is picked up promptly at 11 o'clock and there must be no delay."

Norman Hahn, chief engineer for station WIBA, takes care of the technical work of the broadcast. He keeps in touch with the downtown station by telephone.

The church services are conducted as if there was no radio connection at all, but the time element is watched carefully in preparing the program, according to Dr. Swan. However, occasionally he directs certain topics directly to his listeners.
