Camp Douglas Grid Outlook Good

CAMP DOUGLAS — In spite of the fact that inexperience is predominant on the squad, Camp Douglas high shool should have a better six-man football team this season than in 1943 when only one game was captured in the Juneau County six-man circuit.

Harold Raymond will be starting his first year as coach of the Camp aggregation; prior to that he was coach at Adams-Friendship.

Nineteen candidates are on the squad headed by three lettermen, Fred Schroeder, Robert Whereatt and Donald Olson. The others are: James Singleton, Anton Kroeger, Edward Felker, James Frohmader, Bill Frohmader, George Fromader, Robert Georgeson, Wayne Birkeness, Darrell Stowell, Edgar Henrick, Douglas Moe, Wayne Neustadter, Duane Anderson, Robert Fuller, Howard Henrick and Ralph Kruscke.

Camp invades Elroy for the opening game of the season on Wednesday and goes to Hillsboro one week later. Kendall is here for a non-conference engagement on Sept. 12 and Wonewoc winds up the schedule Oct. 19.

Palm Trees Produce Wax for Candles And Oil for Soap

The under part of the human hand is called a "palm" and the same name has been given to a tree, or family of trees. The Torrid zone has many millions of palm trees, and there are some in the Temperate zones.

Centain palms have long leaves which spread out as if they were parts of a folding fan, and for that reason are known as "fan palms." It is believed that the name of palm tree was given because a fan palm made someone think of the palm of a hand with outspread fingers.

Among the fan palms are the palmettos. The name "palmetto" means "little palm."

A picture of the cabbage palmetto appears on the coat-of-arms of South Carolina, which has the nickname of "Palmetto State." Many palmetto trees grow in the area from South Carolina down into Florida.

The wood is used in making piers and wharves, and is of special value because it suffers little damage through years of contact with water.

South America and Asia have palm trees of great size. The wax palms of Peru grow to a height of more than 150 feet. From these trees is taken a wax which can be used in making candles. The wood of the wax palm is used in making the walls of houses, and the leaves are employed for thatched roofs.

There are so many kinds of palm trees that we could not even list the names in a story of this size. Close to 1,500 kinds are known. Coconut palms and date palms are the most important, but other kinds are useful.

The western coast of Africa has great numbers of oil palms. From these trees the natives gather "palm fruits," and place them in holes in the ground. The holes are lined with leaves.

After the fruits are sprinkled with water, they are covered and allowed to stay in the hole for a month or longer. They they are taken out, beaten and squeezed. A good deal of oil is brought out by the squeezing.

At first the oil is of reddish color, but it is treated with air bubbles, or with a chemical, and becomes almost white. It is used chiefly for the making of soap.

Oil palms from Africa have been planted in the West Indies, and have grown there with success. Many thousands of tons of palm oil are produced each year.
