Radio's Miss Hush contest served to refresh the public's memory on the name of Santa's reindeer, which, incidentally, only a cold sober teamster could pronounce.

A. "Dutch treat" is a form of entertainment the expenses of which are shared by the individuals who comprise the party. The origin of the word "Dutch" in this and similar connections is obscure. Some authorities trace it back to the bitter fight for supremacy between England and Holland in the 17th Century, after which the word Dutch was used in many popular phrases, largely in a contemptuous manner.

Answer to Question No. 1

According to Maureen Daly she will learn Little Red Riding Hood was going through the woods with a basket of fried chicken for her grandmother. As she sat on a stump to rest, she heard a whistle from behind a tree and, looking up, saw a big brown animal in a bow tie and a broad grin. After one quick look, she hastened on to grandma's, and went back home by another path. "She knew a wolf when she saw one," says Miss Daly.

Answer to Question No. 2

No; eight chances in 10 they are wrong, because, as pointed out by Purdue Psychologists Tiffin Knight and Asher in their fascinating Psychology of Normal People, eight people in 10 have IQs between 85 and 115, which is neither "stupid" nor "bright" but "average."

Answer to Question No. 3

No. President Wriston, Brown University, in a notable article shows that hosts of young people are muddling through college merely to get a degree which, instead of being proof of all-around competence and character, may mean "a social climber, a man of highest integrity, or the shoddiest crook." What you know and admire and can do is the only test of education.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

Harry Feinberg, formerly of Cleveland and a well-known life master of the middle west, has moved to New York and is now in charge of the card room at the New York Bridge Whist Club. Once in a while he has a chance to sit in, and he says they have plenty of fireworks at the club.

I rather like Feinberg's preemptive bid of four diamonds on today's hand. It certainly interfered with West. Nevertheless West did come up with a good bid, five clubs.

Now would you have big six or seven clubs with the East hand? Remember that this was rubber bridge, and East-West were vulnerable.

After some study East decided against bidding more clubs, and Feinberg bid five diamonds. West's pass left it entirely up to East, who made the mistake of doubling rather than continuing in clubs. His judgment was not necessarily bad, but the results turned out very badly for him.

West's ace of clubs held and he continued with the club queen, which Feinberg ruffed. A small diamond was led to dummy's queen, and the nine of spades came back.

You can see that it made no difference whether East covered with the ten or not. If he did not cover, Feinberg would let it ride, West would be forced to win, a heart would be trumped by declarer, the second round of diamonds led to dummy's ace, and the lead of the eight of spades would leave East helpless.

If he covered with the ten this time, Feinberg would win with the jack, cash the king of spades and ruff his last spade in dummy, thus making five odd on a hand at which East and West could make seven hearts. Seven clubs could be defeated with a heart opening by North.
