Livestock Exposition Headliner on Three Networks This Week

Whenever Kate Smith goes to have studio portraits made, the photographer first focuses his camera on her, then sits down to chat with the songstress about her hobby, candid photography. While Kate is thus relaxed, he snaps her from time to time in various characteristic poses. That's why her pictures always look so natural.

The microphones of the three major networks point to the Chicago Stock yards where the 39th International Livestock Exposition is under way.

The Farm and Home hour will bring daily reports of the event at 11:30 a. m. over stations WIBA and WMAQ. At 4:45 p. m. another NBC broadcast will present the results of the judging. Station WBBM will air programs at 4:30 each afternoon while WGN will transfer all its daily farm programs to the stock yards.

Tonight's "big game" attractions include Mary Boland, Leslie Howard, Herbert Marshall, and Mary Astor, all of the screen. The highlight programs for tonight and Tuesdaytime, classified:
