Miss Gertrude Niessen To Be Presented On Good News Show

Singing Star To Make Number Of Appearances; Helen Hayes To Be Heard With Kate Smith

Robert Young will present Gertrude Niessen in the first of a series of appearances on Good News of 1939 during the broadcast Thursday. Meliza Korjus, soprano star of MGM films, and Carey Wilson, writer of the Hardy Family series, also will be guest stars during the program over WEAF from 9 to 10 p. m.

Meredith Willson and his orchestra will introduce "Chestnut Tree," the latest dance craze of England, as a feature of the broadcast.

Frank Morgan will be on hand to welcome the Good News of 1939 guests, and Baby Snooks (Fanny Brice) will spend a quiet afternoon with Daddy (Hanley Stafford.)

Meredith Willson will commemorate the first anniversary of the death of his old friend, O. O. McIntyre, by presenting "Thoughts While Strolling" from his composition, "O. O. McIntyre Suite." The orchestra also will play "It Seems To Be Spring."

Gertrude Niessen, who has been signed for an indefinite number of appearances on Good News of 1939, will sing "Get Out of Town" and Raymond Scott's "Twilight in Turkey." Miss Korjus will sing a group of semi-classical favorites.

Helen Hayes, first lady of the American stage, will make one of radio's most unusual "request" guest appearances when she visits Kate Smith's Hour broadcast over WABC Thursday at 8 p. m.

It is all unusual because Miss Hayes, not Miss Smith, made the request. She stated that she had always wanted to broadcast with Kate whom she admires and who is also a Washingtonian. The Songbird of the South, in turn, admires Miss Hayes personally and as the outstanding actress on the American stage. She has long hoped to play microphone host to her. So Kate received one of the greatest thrills of her life when Helen Hayes volunteered to make a guest appearance on the Kate Smith Hour show, particularly since every guest star show on the air has been trying to sign the actress, and many sponsors have sought her regular radio services.

Henry Fonda and Ellen Drew, of the Hollywood sound stages, are the visitors for whom Bing Crosby and Bob Burns will spread out the very best red carpet in the Music Hall Thursday. John Scott Trotter's orchestra and Ken Carpenter will hold down their accustomed corners for the broadcast over WEAF at 10 p. m.

Bing has picked a combination of current hits and an old favorite for his songs which include "Could Be," "I Have Eyes," "Hurry Home," "Thanks for Everything," "Umbrella Man," and as his "memory" song the tune "If I Had My Way."

Henry Fonda, no stranger to the Hall, is strong on the versatility that makes Bing and Bob ask an alumnus to return to the old campus from time to time. On his last visit he played a very hungry trumpet.

Straight from a new Broadway success, Jimmy Durante comes to the Rudy Vallee hour Thursday with Judith Anderson, distinguished actress, and Richard Haydn, one of Broadway's comedy finds of the season, and Jim Moran, self-styled "professional screwball," for the broadcast over WEAF at 8 p. m.

Durante has just opened on Broadway in "Stars in Your Eyes" which won unanimous praise from the critics. The Vallee date is his first radio appearance in several months.

Judith Anderson plays the leading role in a play specially written for the Vallee hour by Arch Oboler. It is called "The Gift."

Richard Haydn is a featured comic in Broadway's "Set to Music" and is heard on the Vallee hour for the third time this week. He is the gentleman who describes himself as the world's outstanding fish mimic.

Adele Ronson, who is heard in a featured role on the John's Other Wife NBC serial, is a talented ballet dancer as well as actress . . . Robert Emmett Dolan, five foot four, smallest orchestra leader in radio, stands on two platforms so the musicians can see him . . . Bill Hay, the Amos 'n' Andy announcer who has been with the boys since they first went on the air, is an artist at wood carving . . . Charley Canton, versatile actor, added a new role to his long list of characters . . . He was a talking parrot on a recent Fred Allen show . . . Harry Duncan, a member of NBC's famed Radio Rubes, has written a new song entitled "My Heart is in the Hills." . . . Don Gordon, announcer of Those Happy Gilmans, says avoid mike fright by thinking of the radio audience as a single listener . . . Marek Weber, maestro on the NBC program, is one musician who believes in carrying a spare . . . He uses his 1750 Guadagnini for solo work but always has another violin and four boys along just in case . . . Carole Lombard is impulsively generous . . . a shy little lad who asked for her autograph at the NBC Hollywood studios learned this to his surprise when he got the autograph and a 10 dollar bill . . . Virginia Payne, who plays a leading role in the Ma Perkins series, claims to have received the oddest fan request in radio . . . It was for a yard of percale for a woman making a quilt of material supplied by radio stars . . . Fayette Krum, author of the NBC serial Girl Alone, writes the story from experiences in her own early newspaper days . . . Don McNeill, emcee on the NBC Jamboree and Breakfast club programs, received a fan letter written by an armless artist who used a pen held in his mouth.

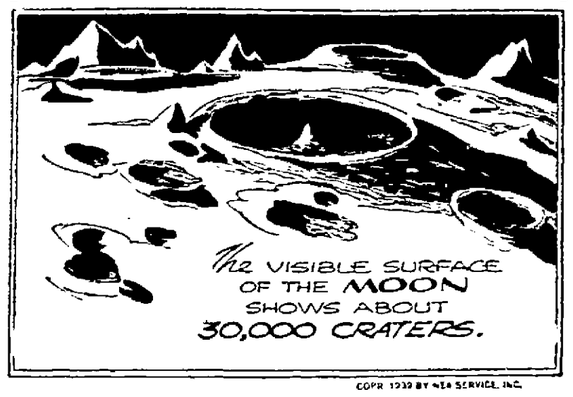
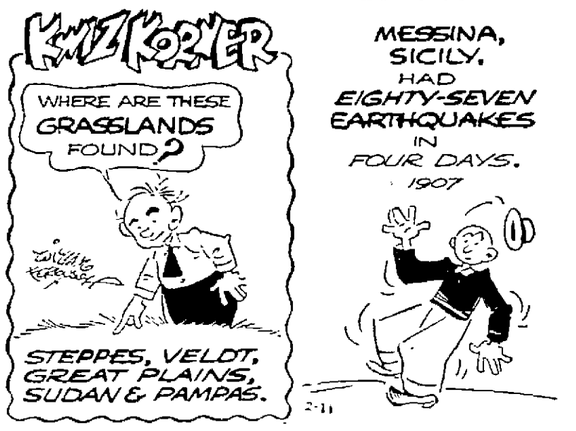
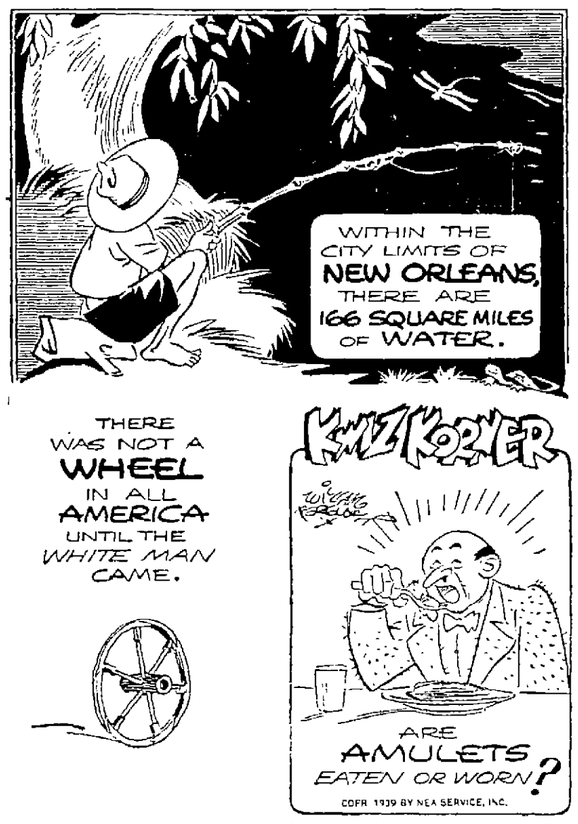
THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson





ANSWER: Steppes in Russia, Veldt in South Africa, Great Plains in North America, Sudan in North Africa, and Pampas in Argentina.



ANSWER: Worn. They are objects made of various materials, usually inscribed with magic words, and are mostly worn by superstitious peoples to ward off evil.

SIGNAL DEVICE ADDS TO BLIND FLYING SAFETY

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(UP)—A new "blind flying" instrument—an outgrowth of research into the properties of ultra-high frequency radio waves—which enables a pilot to check his flight along the airways and to spot airport approaches, has been developed.

Known as a "marker receiver" the device operates in conjunction with radio transmitters of the Civil Aeronautics Authority which recently were installed along airways between beacon stations and at airports to aid instrument landing.

These transmitters send out "marker" signals on a frequency to 75,000,000 cycles per second and project either a fan or cone-shaped signal pattern above each station.

On entering the field of this pattern the receiver emits a characteristic tone, enabling the pilot to identify the station over which he is flying and thus learn his position. The receiver also is equipped to operate a set of signal lamps, one of which flashes as the ship passes thru the radio pattern.

DEVICE SPEEDS COTTON CLOTH MANUFACTURE

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 23—(UP)—The manufacture of cotton cloth at speeds faster than the eye can follow is forecast with a new adaptation of the "electric eye."

A photoelectric cell mechanism developed by General Electric engineers to detect flaws in cloth manufacture is said to permit finishing speeds as high as 110 yards per second—100 yards faster than with manual inspection.

The device is designed to locate misaligned threads, start motors of machinery to correct the flaws, and re-test the finished product.

Engineers explained that it is necessary to realign threads which have gone askew, especially when cloth is to be printed, to prevent distortion of the design.

The cell's designers believed the new device also may be adjusted to other materials to speed production.

REVIVAL CONTINUED

DELPHOS, Feb. 23—Neighbor night will be observed at the Christian church Thursday evening where Rev. R. W. Gow of Spencerville is conducting a revival with services being held nightly.

Quilna Double Bill Closes Friday With Preview Slated

Don Ameche And Ritz Brothers Due In "The Three Musketeers;" "Gunga Din" At The Ohio

Thursday and Friday mark the closing days for the showing of the two films now at the Quilna theatre. They are "Gangster's Boy", starring Jackie Cooper and "Rebellious Daughters", featuring Sheila Bromley and Marjorie Reynolds.

Starting with the preview Friday night at the Quilna will be the comic version of the famous story, "The Three Musketeers" starring Don Ameche and the Ritz Brothers.

The mighty drama, "Gunga Din", which is now showing at the Ohio, will complete its schedule Thursday and Friday. This story taken from the poem by Rudyard Kipling, is gloriously portrayed by Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Sam Jaffe.

A lovely girl who could mind anyone's love affairs to perfection but when the "love bug" nibbled at her own heart she was at a loss. This is the role portrayed by Constance Bennett in the delightful romantic comedy, "Service Deluxe" which is now showing at the Sigma. Vincent Price, a newcomer from the stage, is cast opposite Miss Bennett.

Also at the Sigma is the newest and one of the most thrilling pictures in the "Torchy Blane" series. This time, Torchy, played by Glenda Farrell, in tracking down "scoops" for her paper, finds herself in Chinatown. "Torchy in Chinatown" is the tirle of this picture.

Opening at the Lyric Thursday are two more thrilling adventure and romance pictures. The first, "Colorado Trail" is a typical western starring Charles Starrett and the latter is "Storm Over Bengal" featuring Richard Cromwell and Rochelle Hudson.

Two laugh hits, one a clever newspaper story and the other with a mystery theme, are now showing at the State.

The first shows Fredric March as a newspaper reporter sent out to get a story on a rich heiress, portrayed by Virginia Bruce. The other is the story of a group of beautiful debutantes who have a mania for chasing mysteries. Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda co-star in this film.

SIGMA

Amid exotic and sinister surroundings, "Torchy Blane in Chinatown," latest of the popular series, which opened Wednesday at the Sigma theatre, is another well-directed, well-written adventure hit with the irrepressible Torchy, the same courageous, smart and resourceful lass the public has long since adopted as its favorite girl reporter.

Altho Glenda—or Torchy—is the center of all action, the film is not without strong support. Again serving as a perfect foil for Torchy's quick, sharp mind, the slower thinking but always reliable Lieut. Steve McBride is played by Barton MacLane, so firmly established in the public mind as the police detective that the average filmgoer has probably forgotten he used to play nothing but villains.

Take two stars, three comedians, a crack director, an excellent story and a wealth of production — and literally and figuratively, you've got "Service De Luxe," the laugh-maker, also seen at the Sigma theatre.

The stars are Constance Bennett and Vincent Price. Perhaps it's a bit early to dub Price a cinema star. It is his first screen effort. But star he is, if a smooth, convincing performance, a truckload of personality and a heap of ability makes a star.

Price isn't any tyro at the acting business. He was for two years Helen Hayes' leading man in "Victoria Regina," in New York, and earned the critics' laurels in a half-dozen shows of shorter duration.

OHIO

Romance and adventure, comedy and thrills emerge in a whirlwind of impetuous, headlong action thruout the colorful scenes of "Gunga Din," sensational screen drama of British army life in India. The picture opened Saturday at the Ohio theatre before an audience which responded enthusiastically to its vigorous appeal, voiced in the resonant crash of field guns, the dazzling glitter of polished steel, as bayonets and native blades cross in deadly hand-to-hand fighting, all etched in unforgettable detail against the exotic atmosphere of the mysterious Orient.

The feature is adapted from Rudyard Kipling's famous poem of the same title, its central figure being a bhisti, or regimental water-carrier, who develops from a humble servant into a heroic fighting man, and makes the supreme sacrifice for the sake of his comrades. Dominating the adventures of Gunga Din are three sergeants, a strong-arm scrapping trio who meet an attack by tribesmen of the murderous cult of Thuggee as a British military patrol advances from a British outpost.

The plot includes a quest for a secret treasure by the bhisti and his pals, a love in which one of the sergeants is enmeshed, and a finale which shows the imprisonment of the four adventurers by the native rebels, terminating with an assault by the white infantry on the Thug headquarters, and the sacrifice of his life by Gunga Din.

Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., fill the roles of Sergeants Cutter, McChesney and Ballantine, with Sam Jaffe cast as Gunga Din, and Joan Fontaine as the girl in the drama.

QUILNA

One of the best rifle shots and horsemen in the motion picture industry 13 years ago was William Nigh, now one of Hollywood's leading directors. Nigh's most recent picture is "Gangster's Boy" starring Jackie Cooper at the Quilna theatre.

On one occasion Barrymore, who was visiting Nigh on a set agreed to let Nigh shoot a cigaret out of his mouth. Nigh did it without ruining the famous profile.

"Gangster's Boy" is the story of today's high school youth. It concerns Larry Kelly, played by Cooper, who is one of the school's leading athletes and students. Complications in the small town of Millford arise when Kelly's father, a big-shot gangster, decides to quit the rackets and live with his son and wife.

In the cast are Robert Warwick, Lucy Gilman, Louise Lorimer, Tommy Wonder, Selmer Jackson, Bobby Stone, Betty Blythe and William Gould.

Projecting a far-reaching social problem, plus a daring expose of one of the most amazing blackmail rackets practiced in society today, is depicted in "Rebellious Daughters," showing at the Quilna theatre.

Whose is the responsibility when the younger generation flits around with reckless abandon, seeking thrills and running afoul of the law? This question forms one of the vital situations in this dramatic film.

Statistics prove that the newspapers are filed with the unhappy results of improperly supervised home-life.

LYRIC

A splendid blend of balanced screen entertainment—with two-fisted action, tender romance, tuneful music and delightful comedy in thrilling proportion—is current on the Lyric theatre screen. In "The Colorado Trail," the Lyric has a colorful, completely enjoyable picture of western adventure.

Charles Starrett, two-fisted hero of many an outdoor action film, offers not only in the finest performance he has ever given the screen, but the most novel story in which he has ever appeared.

"Heavy" of "The Colorado Trail"—the ruthless and crooked cattle buyer who foments a range war because of his greed—is no less than Starrett's own cinematic father. This father-and-son feud in a screen story is cinematically new.

Glorious in its sweep of exciting adventure in India, moving in its depiction of gallantry and heroism is the current Lyric feature, "Storm Over Bengal."

Hollywood has turned out the season's new adventure spectacle in "Storm Over Bengal," and its carefully chosen cast rips thru the vibrant screen play forcefully and realistically.

The dashing Patric Knowles, taller and handsomer than ever, is the leading figure. Knowles portrays Captain Jeffrey Allison, hero of the British army in India. Richard Cromwell is seen as the younger Allison, bitter toward his big brother, because he is constantly flung in his face as a fine example to live up to. Jeff has set a mark for the younger brother to shoot at.
