Hollywood

By Edith Gwynn

It will be Victor Mature playing opposite Betty Grable in "Wabash Avenue."

While Jimmy Fidler was broadcasting that Peggy Cummins was soon to leave for England to visit her heart, Derek Dunnett, Peggy and Derek were sitting in her living room listening to the spiel. Derek had been in Hollywood visiting Peggy for over a week.

The nerve of that new record outfit—the way they're advertising the platter, "Ooh, Doctor Kinsey!" as though nobody but Martha Raye had anything to do with it! No mention of Phil Moore who composed and arranged it. What's more, he originally did the song for Julie Wilson who introduced it, and for our money, delivers it in much more intriguing style!

Career of pretty little Barbara Bates, whose charms have been touted here, is coming right along. She was so good with Danny Kaye in his latest, "Happy Times," that she was borrowed for "Quicksand" with Mickey Rooney—and now her home lot, Warners, is poking around for pithier parts for Barbara when she returns to the fold.

Those items elsewhere that Darryl Zanuck of 20th-Fox and execs of the American Broadcasting Co., were about to close a deal giving D.F.Z.'s film company control of that network, are very premature. Zanuck says the matter hasn't even come up yet—though it might in the future.
