John Barrymore Will Head Stars On Vallee Broadcast

Shelia Barrett, Gabby Hartnett And Lou Holtz To Be Heard On Program At 7 P. M. Thursday

Rudy Vallee draws John Barrymore of the stage's royal family as the headline attraction for his Chicago broadcast Thursday, which will also include such well-known personages as Sheila Barrett, Gabby Hartnett and Lou Holtz.

In the windy city for personal appearances, Rudy looked up his old friend, John Barrymore, who is currently playing there in the comedy, "My Dear Children." Tho he has been ill of late, Barrymore readily agreed to do a playlet on the Vallee Hour which takes place at 7 p. m. over WEAF.

Sheila Barrett, mimic extraordinary, pays a visit to the hour that made her nationally famous. She had a several weeks' run on the Vallee show before doing a program of her own.

One of the most colorful figures in the sports' world is Gabby Hartnett who manages the Chicago Cubs as well as doing the catching chores. His radio interview with Rudy comes up when he is rapidly nearing Ray Schalk's long-standing record for the total number of games caught by one man in the big leagues.

Melvyn Douglas, whose smooth acting has led him to the enviable spot opposite Garbo in her new picture, will join Bob Burns in his Music Hall broadcast Thursday from 9:00 to 10:00 p. m. over WEAF. Fay Helm, ingenue featured in Burns' new film "Our Leading Citizen," will chat with Bazooka Bob and Emanuel Feuermann, concert cellist, will be heard. At this broadcast Burns also hopes to welcome back Ken Carpenter, KMH chimes master.

"The Two Orphans," famous play of the last century, adapted from the original French of D'Ennery and Cormon by N. Hart Jackson and first produced in this country in 1874, will be presented over WEAF on Thursday at 8 p. m. EDST, as the next in the NBC series of America's Lost Plays. The story, from which the successful film, "Orphans of the Storm," was derived, is considered to have been as popular as "Uncle Tom's Cabin" during its quarter-century of continuous running. James Church, of the NBC production staff, will direct the radio performance.

When Arturo Toscanini, world-famous conductor of the NBC Symphony orchestra, is heard over WJZ on Thursday, in a symphonic program broadcast from Lucerne, Switzerland, it will be his first broadcast for this country since he became a Swiss "citizen."

NBC's great conductor was made an honorary citizen of Lucerne by Dr. J. Zimmerli, mayor of the city. At Toscanini's home, situated on Lake Lucerne near Tribschen, the villa which for years was Wagner's retreat, the mayor presented Toscanini with his "citizenship paper," a leather-bound volume hand-lettered in medieval illummated script, which formally proclaimed him an honorary citizen. Only Toscanini and Mayor Zimmerli were present during the ceremony, which took place Tuesday, June 27.

Toscanini's broadcast, over WJZ from 4:00 to 5:00 p. m., is the first of two concerts which he will conduct from Lucerne before returning in the fall to his season with the NBC Symphony orchestra.

Mystery, Thrills And Comedy Furnished In Quilna Hits

"Charlie Chan In Reno" And "It Could Happen To You" Are Current Attractions

Mystery, thrills and comedy are plentiful for Lima theatre goers Thursday.

"Charlie Chan in Reno," current Quilna film, is the Oriental detective's most thrilling and ingenious case. Sidney Toler is cast as Chan. Other notables include Slim Summerville, Ricardo Cortez and lovely Phyllis Brooks.

A roitous comedy, "It Could Happen To You," completes the Quilna bill. It features Stuart Erwin and Gloria Stuart, who are involved in a murder mystery.

Hilarious as well as serious moments of Mickey Rooney are seen in "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," the film now showing on the silver screen at the Ohio. Many who have already seen the picture, according to Manager Wallace Elliott, agree it is the best of the Hardy series. Rooney is assisted by Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker and Fay Holden.

Barton MacLane, who is Detective Steve McBride in the Torchy Blane series, portrays an underworld king in the play, "Big Town Czar," half of the Sigma bill. In this picture of gangland rulership, MacLane is featured with Eve Arden, Frank Jenks and Tom Brown.

Sally Eilers and Allen Lane have the featured roles in "They Made Her a Spy," which completes the Sigma fare. Miss Eilers becomes entangled in a web of espionage while hunting her brother's murderer.

Bill "Hopalong Cassidy" Boyd is fighting for his rancher friends in "Sunset Trail," half of the Lyric bill. The thrills of a hot-headed English youth is depicted in "Duke of West Point, the other Lyric film. Louis Hayward is "The Duke."

Chances that a flier will take is shown in "Women in the Wind," half of the State bill. Feature roles are played by Kay Francis and William Cargan. Completing the new bill is "The Saint Strikes Back," with Wendy Barrie and George Sanders in the leading roles.

OHIO

His role of Andy Hardy is doing things to Mickey Rooney. So declares the debonair son of Judge Hardy in the Hardy Family series, newest of which, "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," is now showing at the Ohio theatre.

"Every new Hardy story contains some emotion or reaction that a fellow has to study and understand. Now and then, I think, it actually changes some viewpoint or other," says the youthful star. "For instance, in the present picture I have to develop a fine case of puppy love for my pretty high school teacher. It goes deeper than any previous cases because I'm supposed now to be somewhat more advanced in romantic experience. I propose, she tries to make her refusal painless, I find out she's already engaged and am in torment, then she, in a sensible talk, brings me to realize that boys like me aren't ready yet for the real romantic things of life. Andy Hardy has to develop an almost adult viewpoint of the matter.

"I studied and mulled over it. And finally I caught myself really developing an adult viewpoint, or at least I think I did. I am convinced playing the character has done a great deal to develop certain character traits. I talked about it to Lewis Stone for we have man-to-man talks in real life, away from the picture, and he tells me that absorbing details of character the actor is playing is really storing his mind with useful experience for future parts. He thinks it's a good thing."

Altho Mickey has his serious moments in "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," he also has many hilarious comedy moments. He writes a high school show, stars in it and helps to build the scenic effects which include a "volcano" that closes the show by setting the schoolhouse on fire. There is a comical quarrel with Ann Rutherford, a farewell scene with the pretty teacher, and a talk about marriage with his father that is grippingly dramatic in its sheer humanness.

QUILNA

Earl Derr Biggers' renowned Oriental detective, Charlie Chan, is at the Quilna theatre this week in his cleverest case to date, the murder of a glamour girl in "Charlie Chan in Reno." With Sidney Toler in the role of Chan, the picture features the wily sleuth with three of Hollywood's most beautiful women: Phyllis Brooks, Pauline Moore and Louise Henry. Also in the excellent cast are Ricardo Cortez, Slim Summerville, Kane Richmond, Sen Yung, Eddie Collins, Kay Linaker and Robert Lowery.

Summoned from Honolulu by the strange murder in Reno, Chan flies half-way around the world to the playground of lovely women to save one of the loveliest from death. It's definitely Chan's most thrilling and ingenious case and makes fine entertainment. Norman Foster gave the film fine, fast-paced direction.

When David Hempstead was made an associate producer on the staff of Sol M. Wurtzel, the latter asked him what story he'd like to make into a picture. Hempstead replied that he'd read one a year before in The Saturday Evening Post and that it was so good he hadn't been able to get it out of his head.

The story was Charles Hoffman's "It Could Happen To You" and as soon as he had outlined it to Wurtzel the answer came, "Let's buy it." Allen Rivkin and Lou Breslow wrote the screen play and stressed the comedy side of the tale. The cast is headed by Stuart Erwin, Gloria Stuart, Raymond Walburn, Douglas Fowley, June Gale and Clarence Kolb. The picture is now being shown at the Quilna.

SIGMA

EM Sullivan, well-known newspaper columnist, agreed to remain "on call" for his initial feature screen role, in "Big Town Czar," now playing at the Sigma thatre.

Sullivan was signed to play in the picture, an adaptation of his original story, but did not appear in early scenes. After a week of production, the studio telephoned to ask the newspaperman to report for his first appearance. At Sullivan's Beverly Hills home the studio was instructed to call a Florida number.

Sullivan was vacationing in the southern state, but hoped the next plane for Hollywood in response to the studio's call, and arrived on schedule.

Barton MacLane, Tom Brown, Eves Arden, Frank Jenks, Walter Woolf King, Gordon Jones, Jerry Marlow and Jack LaRue have leading roles in "Big Town Czar," directed by Arthur Lubin.

How a gigantic spy ring is smashed thru the valiant efforts of a young lady serving as an amateur government agent, is dramatically depicted in "They Made Her a Spy," thrilling action-film featuring Sally Eilers and Allan Lane.

In England, approximately half the motorists involved in fatal road accidents are under 31.
