With the Blue Monday Jamboree catching up with the turkey—Monday on radio oozes along with few outstanding highlights—but plenty to coax you to relax and listen.

Cigar store Indians may be passe but the American School of the Air—KHLJ at 11:30—salutes Massasoit, the chief of the Wampanoag Indians. In a dramatization—the story showing how Chief Massasoit helped the early settlers through their first difficult winter seasons and made it possible for them to survive the rigors of the unaccustomed climate. There's your lesson at school today—then you can ramble through the afternoon.

Discovering during the evening a number of excellent concerts until you are stopped dead at 8 o'clock—the Blue Monday Jamboree corners a turkey and begins to strip it of feathers.

Just one grand Thanksgiving party—the reception is composed entirely of the Jamboree comedians—but you can guess what they'll do to the national bird—KHLJ is the station—8 o'clock is the time.
