Kyser Show Will Be Heard From His Home In The South

Kay To Play In Rocky Mount, N. C., At World Premier Of His New Film; Dock Rockwell On With Fred Allen

Kay Kyser, creator of radio's college quiz, will meet his students at the Center theatre in Rocky Mount, N. C., for his Wednesday broadcast at 10 p. m. over WEAF. When he steps up to the microphone in the town of his birth, the genial maestro will be in the midst of a tremendous home-coming celebration in honor of the world premiere of his first picture, "That's Right, You're Wrong." Kyser's band also will be heard playing for a monster dance later in the evening over WEAF from 12 midnight to 12:30 a. m.

Gov Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina has accepted an invitation to attend the world premiere of Kyser's picture.

A meeting of two of the most satiric minds in radio will take place when Doc Rockwell jousts with Fred Allen Wednesday at 9 p. m. over WEAF. One of the first big-time name comedians to go on the air in the early days of radio, Doc Rockwell is such a fountain of sense and nonsense that sometimes it's hard to tell the difference.

Leaving only room for Fred's newsreel and his "Question of the Week" will be the rest of the cast, including Portland Hoffa, Harry von Ze", the Merry Macs with Helen Carroll, songstress Wynn Murray, and Peter Van Steeden and his orchestra. The Mighty Allen Art Players will follow Fred to the badlands in a horse opera thriller, "Murder in the Saddle," or "One Dead Cowboy Is Better Than A Double Feature."

Elmer Blurt decides to give up door to door low-pressure salesmanship and look for a job! That's the flash news for the Al Peace program Wednesday from 8 to 8:30 p. m., over WABC.

Arlene "Human Chatterbox" Harris will have difficulty with Junior in a cafeteria and Billy "Ton of Fun" House will use "The Gentle Art and Vicious Habit of Sneezing" as the theme of his "But We Know, Don't We?" story.

Interest in whether or not a boy becomes a criminal after he's sent to prison will be revived Wednesday when the Star theatre produces "Criminal Code," starring Burgess Meredith, Helen Claire and Arthur Byron. The program, heard at 9 p. m. over WABC, will highlight the dramatic conflict that arises when the boy (Meredith) learns that the D. A. who sent him has become warden, a fact further complicated when the jailed boy falls in love with the warden's daughter (Miss Claire).

On the Hollywood end of the Star theatre, Bela Lugosi, screendom's favorite horror man, will guest with Ken Murray, Irene Noblette, Kenny Baker and Frances Langford.

Kay Francis, glamorous movie star, will share the spotlight with Herbert Marshall during the Hollywood Playhouse production Wednesday at 8 p. m. over WEAF. They will co-star in a radio version of the recent release, "Female Married An Artist," fast-moving comedy built around the marriage of a temperamental couple, he an artist, she a designer. Into the new variety program, Breezin' picture steps a model with designs of her own.

For his second edition of the Along, Johnny Green's orchestra and the cast will feature divers arrangements of "Stop, Its Wonderful," including a Green Piano solo, and an interpretation by the swinging Bel-Aires; as a highlight of the Wednesday broadcast at 8 p. m. over WJZ.

Other selections include tenor Jack Smith's solo, "Many Dreams Ago," the orchestra in "Scatterbrain," "The Sheik," a Johnny Green solo with the Groove Group, and Beverly and her Bel-Aires swinging "Washboard Blues" and "All Those In Favor Say Aye."

"All-American," a drama by Theodore Bawer, will be the Great Plays presentation Wednesday at 9:30 p. m. over WJZ. The play centers around Johnnie Borkowski, a sturdy lad who went to college on a football scholarship, but with a desire to study and play the violin. The realization that he is only expected to play football puts Johnnie in a difficult situation. Lester O'Keefe, of the NBC production division, will direct.

An original comedy skit will be featured by Red Skelton during his variety show, Avalon Time, Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. over WEAF. With the assistance of Del King, m. c., Skelton will present Edna Stillwell, Dick Todd, baritone, Bob Strong's orchestra, and the Avalon Chorus.

Herbert C. McKay, noted photographic authority, will give expert advice to camera clickers during the second broadcast of Adventures in Photography, new public service program to be heard Wednesday at 10:30 p. m. over WJZ.

But her papa, ex-Park Commissioner Walter R. Herrick, said "No!" emphatically. Then, "Romeo" Lowther charges, papa kept Eileen "virtually a prisoner." He has asked for a writ to obtain permission to see his "Juliet."

Double Bill At The Sigma Offers Fans Comedy, Drama

"Two Bright Boys" And "Night Work" Are Attractions; Heifetz Featured In New Hit On The Ohio Screen

"Two Bright Boys," a crashing drama of the fight for oil, starring Jackie Cooper, Freddie Bartholomew and Alan Dinehart, is now current at the Sigma theatre. Completing the bill is "Night Work," the story of the "Fitches," without a doubt one of the funniest, most human and most lovable screen families in America. Members of the family are Mary Boland, Charlie Ruggles, Donald O'Connor and Billy Lee.

"They Shall Have Music," current Ohio attraction, is the story of the touching romance of a youth and a girl whose happiness is bound up with the hopes and dreams of a hundred poor kids. Jascha Heifetz, the world's greatest violinist, makes his screen debut and is ably assisted by Andrea Leeds and Joel McCrea.

Clarence Sletz, manager of the State theatre, announced Wednesday that Western Union and Postal Telegraph messenger boys will be admitted free to see "Call a Messenger," half of the bill. Starring in this picture are Billy Halop, Huntz Hall and "The Little Tough Guys." "Bachelor Mother," also on the bill, features Ginger Rogers and David Niven.

Opening Thursday at the Lyric are "The Texas Wildcats," depicting the thrills of western cowhands attempting to capture a phantom outlaw, and "Youth Takes a Fling," starring Joel McCrea and Andrea Leeds.

"Smuggled Cargo," and "Inside Story," telling the thrills of New York City reporters, will show Wednesday.

"Beware Spooks," current Quilna attraction, is Joe E. Brown's funniest picture and Mary Carlisle, his leading lady, has distinguished herself as a comedian. Brown, cast as a patrolman, is fired from his job when he allows a gangster to escape thru his dumbness, but, he eventually gets his job back and a vacation as well.

Second picture is "U-Boat 29," a timely and authentic drama of submarine warfare and international espionage.

QUILNA

Lovely blonde, Mary Carlisle, it has been said, sky-rocketed to stardom. The familiar Hollywood phrase is, fortunately, a decidedly inaccurate one. Sky-rockets go up in a blaze of glory, but they come right down again. Mary Carlisle has spent the past six years going up and she's still going up.

The young lady, currently featured at the Quilna theatre as Joe E Brown's leading lady in "Beware Spooks!", began her flight to fame when she was given a screen test while lunching in a Hollywood commissary. The screen test won her a chance to dance in pictures, but her histrionic ability was more than adequate. As a result, Miss Carlisle was given an ingenue comedienne role in "Montana Moon," appeared in "Night Court" and "College Humor" and a long list of other films.

To date, she is officially accredited with some 35 screen roles. At one time in her career, she appeared in 15 pictures in 12 months, which obviously kept her busy. She enacted all sorts of roles, altho she was not asked to dance.

Among the pictures in which she has played leading roles are "Saturday's Millions," "East of Fifth Avenue," "This Side of Heaven," "Handy Andy," "Superspeed," "Double Or Nothing," "Hold 'Em Navy" and "Dr. Rhythm."

Miss Carlisle was born in Boston, Mass., on Feb. 3, 1912, and was brought to California by her mother when two years old. She was educated in convents and by private tutors and had no particular ambitions until she was noted by a producer while lunching and offered a screen test.

"U-Boat 29," also is showing.

SIGMA

"Night Work," a new comedy about the "Fitches," that lovable, funny family which America has taken to its heart, is at the Sigma theatre. Co-featuring Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles as the heads of the "Fitch" menage, and Donald O'Connor as "Butch," one of their adopted sons, the picture shapes up as even better screen fare than "Boy Trouble," the rollicking comedy in which the "Fitches" were introduced to the public.

Trouble starts when Donald O'Connor runs away because he doesn't like his school work, and isn't quite certain that the family wants him. They persuade him to remain by assuring him that his grandfather will arrive shortly to certify that he can be legally adopted.

The old gentlemen makes his appearance that night. A rugged old fellow, a steeplejack by trade, he is skeptical of Charlie's ability to bring up the boy properly. Mary and Charlie do their best to show the old gentleman that they are the sort of people Donald should have for parents, but all their efforts go for naught when one of Charlie's childhood friends rents an apartment in the building which Charlie is managing. He invites the family to dinner, and proceeds to point out that Charlie was known as "Wishy Washy" in his youth!

Donald's grandfather is about to take the boy away with him when Charlie, in a funny climactic scene proves that he really is a courageous parent.

Excellent in supporting roles are Billy Lee as the other adopted son, "Joe," Joyce Mathews, as the daughter who is very much in love, and John Hartley, as Miss Mathews' boy friend. William Frawley delivers one of his best comic portrayals in a small role.

"Two-Bright Boys," completes the bill.

OHIO

A new landmark in motion picture history was reached Wednesday when Samuel Goldwyn, one of Hollywood's foremost producers, brought Jascha Heifetz and his immortal violin music to the screen in "They Shall Have Music," a richly human story at the Ohio theatre. In addition to marking the screen debut of the great Heifetz, "They Shall Have Music" also brings to millions of moviegoers all over the globe the thrilling music of the California Junior Symphony, an orchestra composed of 45 boys and girls who have been hailed as juvenile prodigies.

Directed skilfully and dramatically by Archie Mayo, "They Shall Have Music" is the story of a slum boy, who has inherited talent for music from his dead father. The boy lives his life on the streets, frightened by an irate stepfather, lured by gang stories and anxious to make easy money. Thru a series of strange events, he lands in a settlement music school run by an idealistic professor, who takes him under his wing. When the grateful youngster learns of the desperate financial straits of the school, he undertakes to win the patronage of the great Heifetz, who is in New York for Carnegie Hall concerts.

The featured roles in "They Shall Have Music" are brilliantly played by Andrea Leeds, Joel McCrea, Walter Brennan, Gene Reynolds and Terry Kilbourne. Special praise must be given to Brennan, who as the absent-minded professor, turns in one of the most stirring and realistic performances seen on the screen anywhere. The brilliant genius of Heifetz's playing can hardly be described adequately, but let it suffice to say that this world-famous virtuoso renders such offerings as Saint-Saens "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso" and Tschaikowsky's "Melodie."
