Test Made of 8000 Air-listening Posts

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 23. (AP) Eight thousand observation posts in the United States were manned by more than 210,000 volunteer spotters today in a vast tryout of the nation's aerial defenses.

Military planes of the United States and Canada participated in the week-end exercise, flying over predetermined routes to give the spotters practice in reporting movement of aircraft.

Their reports will go through 26 filter centers to regional air defense headquarters at Newburgh, N. Y.; Kansas City and Hamilton Field, Calif. Headquarters of the nation's Air Defense Command is at Ent Air Force Base, Colorado Springs.

Lt. Gen. Ennis C. Whittehead, Ent AFB commander, said the spotters can report aircraft movements at lower altitudes in areas where radar, due to its limitations, is ineffective.

Today's exercises extended over the northeastern and Great Lakes states, plus Minnesota, Wisconsin, California, Oregon and Washington. They provided the volunteer ground observers corps with its first night training since September, 1949.

The pilots still are held in Czechoslovakia.

Senators to Quiz Florida Governor

MIAMI, Fla., June 23. (AP) Florida's Gov. Fuller Warren will get a subpoena, probably Tuesday, to appear before the Senate crime investigating committee in Washington July 9.

The subpoena, first issued by the Senate crime probers for a state's chief executive, was announced at the end of a two-day hearing in Miami yesterday. Spectators cheered.

Sen. Herbert O'Conor (D.-Md.), chairman of the committee, made the announcement and handed the subpoena to Deputy U. S. Marshal Jack F. Peeples.

Warren, resting at Ormond Beach, had no comment.

Warren had declined invitations to appear before the committee in Miami. Yesterday O'Conor announced he received a telegram bearing the governor's name and said, "That's the only word we have received from him."

In the telegram, Warren defended his record and declared, "No gambler or gangster made any contribution to my campaign, so far as I know."

O'Conor had outlined six questions the committee wanted Warren to answer. These included whether he knew of large contributions made to his 1948 campaign and if any came from gamblers or racketeers.

O'Conor said reports at hand indicate Warren has information which would aid the committee.

On he final day of its Miami hearing, the committee was told that marijuana, heroin and cocaine came to Miami from the north, and that considerable quantities of marijuana came from South America on banana boats.

A woman testified she peddled drugs in Miami and said the morphine came to Miami by plane and was brought in by Cuban pilots. "I believe in large quantities."

THE KENNY TREATMENT

Virus of Polio Has Never Been Seen

(Last of Six Articles)

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Reporter

WASHINGTON, June 23. (AP) The question of which polio treatment is best is a tough one—but so are the questions surrounding the mysterious polio bug itself.

It has never been seen, even by the most powerful microscopes. There is only indirect evidence as to its size. It's estimated that 25,000 germs could fit on the head of a pin.

The risk of a severe polio attack lessens sharply after a child passes age 10. Beyond the age of 20 there is only about one case in every 100,000 population even during extensive outbreaks.

Adults rarely suffer a severe or recognizable attack, scientists say, because the vast majority of people are believed to have had polio in a mild form and thus gained a practical immunity to it without ever being aware of it.

It's virtually certain that the disease is transmitted by "human contact." But it still is unknown whether the contact always is direct. Flies and other insects have been suspected as possible transmitters of the virus, but no insect has been incriminated definitely.

It is not entirely settled as to how the virus enters the body, although the strongest evidence points to the mouth and nose.

NO KNOWN DRUG

No known drug—not even any of the so-called "wonder drugs" like penicillin—can directly attack the virus itself.

No vaccine has yet proved sufficiently satisfactory to warrant more than limited research use as a possible preventive.

So-called "convalescent serum" from the blood of persons who have recovered from polio has been used, but results are inconclusive.

The search for drugs and vaccines is complicated by these facts:

There are at least three different "strains" of the virus, one of them bearing the fancy name "Brunhilde." And within recent years a virus called Coxsackie has been discovered which causes symptoms identical with mild polio.

Up until a few years ago it was impossible to "grow" any of the true polio viruses in test tubes. And only certain kinds of laboratory animals can be infected with human polio bugs. Even now, only a few researchers are engaged in "tissue culture" work—that is, growing of virus in test tubes.

Vaccines have been produced which apparently are effective in preventing polio in mice and monkeys. But, as one scientist puts it, "many workers feel that the jump from mouse to man is too great to be made with safety."

FINDING VIRUS

One line of research is directed at finding a polio virus which would not cause polio in man but would build up his resistance to the disease.

There is evidence that certain drugs can kill polio virus — but they also would destroy the body cells in which the virus lurks.

For lack of chemical or other weapons to fight the virus directly, doctors generally attack what they term the "symptoms" rather than the disease itself.

Disciples of the Kenny concept of polio believe, however, that treatments primarily designed to combat effects of the virus also may have some effect on fighting the virus itself.

Sister Elizabeth Kenny contends that the virus can directly attack muscles and other parts of the body. The general medical concept is that the virus attacks only the central nervous system and that muscular effects are secondary. Adherents of this latter view say it is more than a "concept." They say it is a fact based on scientific evidence.

What can you do if the disease should strike your community?

1. Avoid becoming panicky. Experts say there is no reason to cross the street to avoid passing a patient's home, that such elaborate precautions are of no avail and only add to any hysteria that might exist.

AVOID CONTACT

2. Observe the precautions you would observe against any communicable disease. Avoid all unnecessary contact with persons with any illness suspicious of polio. Avoid contact with new groups of people as far as possible.

This latter point is pertinent to why some authorities caution against using swimming pools during an epidemic. It is not, they say, that water has been incriminated as a lurking place for polio virus, but that a pool offers a place of possible contact among groups of people from different areas.

3. Avoid overfatigue.
4. Observe personal cleanliness.
5. Avoid sudden chilling.
6. If possible avoid tonsils and adenoids operations during an epidemic.
7. Watch your children for symptoms of headache, moderate fever, stiff neck, muscle weakness and listlessness. Call your doctor immediately if you have any suspicions at all.
