Raft-Bennett Are Teamed In Feature Hit At Sigma

"Dark Command" Continues At Ohio With Twin Bill On Program At Quilna; Revived Western At Lyric

The story of a beautiful and alluring woman, left alone in a hostile world when her husband is convicted for income tax evasion, "The House Across the Bay," starting Wednesday at the Sigma, co-stars George Raft and Joan Bennett. The co-feature, "The Outsider," an engrossing drama, offers George Sanders and Mary Maguire in the lead roles.

"Dark Command," now at the Ohio theatre, is a story of the troubled early western days, wracked with strife and internal troubles, such as the repeated raids of Cantrell and his guerillas. John Wayne and Claire Trevor score in the romantic leads with Walter Pidgeon, Roy Rogers and George Hayes in supporting roles.

Cesar Romero is the star of the Quilna feature, "Lucky Cisco Kid," with Chris-Pin Martin supplying the comedy and Mary Beth Hughes the romance in a stirring adventure of O. Henry's famous character of the country of Mexico. "Sailor's Lady", co-feature, is a clever comedy of sailors and their sweethearts starring Nancy Kelly and Jon Hall.

A re-issue of one of yesterday's favorite western shows, "Tumbleweeds," with the ever popular William S. Hart in the starring role, will be offered at the Lyric theatre commencing Thursday, with "Carolina Moon," a Gene Autry westerner. Showing for the last times Wednesday is "Sky Devils" and "Two Thorobreds."

At the State theatre commencing Thursday is Carole Lombard and Brian Aherne in "Vigil in the Night," a dramatic offering which will be shown with the comedy, "Sandy Is a Lady." Showing for the last times Wednesday are "Buck Benny Rides Again", with the popular radio comedian and his cast included in the show, and "Adventure in Diamonds," with George Brent and Isa Miranda.

OHIO

Gripping, dynamic and unforgettable, "Dark Command," now at the Ohio theatre should be seen by every man, woman and child in America. In the troubled days of the present, it is gratifying to watch a picturization of troubled days in the past, when the innate character and strength of American manhood and womanhood surmounted the greatest obstacles.

John Wayne, who became an overnight sensation thru his splendid work in "Stageconch" and later in "Alleghey Uprising," was the ideal choice for the hero of "Dark Command." Rugged, handsome in a sturdy American manner, the former college athlete seems to be a "natural" in all early American and pioneer sagas.

Claire Trevor, lovely, blonde and feminine, plays opposite Wayne in the role of Mary McCloud, aristocratic southern girl who is bewildered by the cruel trend of events that lie in the wake of the Civil war.

Walter Pidgeon, who has previously specialized in drawing room roles, exhibits unforeseen potentialties in the highly dramatic role of Cantrell, the quixotic villian who was gentle-mannered school master by day and black-hearted murderer by night.

Roy Rogers is outstanding in the role of Fletch McCloud, the young southern aristocrat who falls under the spell of Cantrell.

SIGMA

Highly emotional drama and honest-to-goodness thrills are in store for filmgoers when they witness "The House Across the Bay," now at the Sigma theatre, with George Raft and Joan Bennett heading an imposing cast of Hollywood topnotchers. This new picture not only introduces a new romantic team composed of Raft and Miss Bennett, but it brings the beautiful Miss Bennett forward in one of her most varied and exciting roles to date.

Miss Bennett, in a word, looking more ravishing than ever, plays a straight dramatic role and she does it stirringly and brilliantly. In addition, the star with the brunette tresses does her first dancing on the screen a new type of rhumba which required tireless practice and intricate studio rehearsals.

As for George Raft, his impersonation of Steve Larwitt, a latter-day gentleman of means and ambitions, is as deft as it is clever. Raft knows how to fill his screen characterizations with life-like qualities, with punch and drama, with humor and imagination.

Others who contribute stirring and unforgettable portrayals in "The House Across the Bay" are Gladys George, Walter Pidgeon, June Knight and Lloyd Nolan. Gladys George, as a world-wise wife whose husband is serving a prison sentence, does an impressive piece of down-to-earth acting, while Walter Pidgeon as the second male lead is a romantic hero who hasn't been typed at the studios.

"The Outsider," also showing at the Sigma theatre, is a stirring, compassionate story of love and faith. It is acted with consummate skill by the entire cast, but its outstanding performers are its co-stars, Mary Maguire and George Sanders.

* * *

QUILNA

"Lucky Cisco Kid" with Cesar Romero in the title role is now at the Quilna theatre. This new and thrilling film presents O. Henry's romantic rogue of the Rio Grande at his fightin'est, and is by far the best picture of the series.

The Cisco Kid's latest adventure is set in a colorful Arizona town which is terrorized by raiders. When he and his pal, Gordito ride into the town, the stage is set for action and there is plenty of it. A killer beats him to the draw and a bandit steals his name, but Cisco lives to laugh at them all. Deeper in danger and luckier in love, Cisco's latest exploits afford thrills and laughs from start to finish.

A fine cast of featured players is presented in "Lucky Cisco Kid." Mary Beth Hughes heads the list after scoring hits in such pictures as "Free, Blonde and 21" and "Four Sons." Others featured are: Dana Andrews, Evelyn Venable and Chris-Pin Martin.

"Sailor's Lady" a laugh-packed comedy starring Nancy Kelly and Jon Hall is co-featured at the Quilna theatre. The film has a strong cast of favorites including Joan Davis, Dana Andrews, Mary Nash, Larry Crabbe, Katharine Aldridge, Harry Shannon, Wally Vernon and "Skipper" (Bruce Hampton).
