'The Honest Brakeman' Pulls Off a Fast One

By JACK CUDDY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Harry Balogh, who might be considered the most prominent man in all boxing, has not been on good terms with Lew Diamond, the honest brakeman, for the last couple of years, but yesterday they said, "Hello!"

And in the tones of those "hello's"—given off at the 20th Century club—you could feel the vast respect which each man held for the other.

Balogh is ultra-prominent in the world of wallop because he is Indiana's outstanding announcer—successor to the late Joe Humphries and the even earlier Billy Jordan.

Balogh, dark-haired, handsome, dreamy-eyed, is the man you see in the movies, raising the hand of the winnah. His is the background voice you hear over the radio, introducing the principals and announcing the winnah.

Balogh, always immaculate in tux and black bow, figures himself the streamlined clarioner of clout, and naturally places a certain dollar and cents evaluation upon his expressions from the ring—redundant though they may be. "Benefits" are the bane of his life.

Hence his misunderstanding with Lew Diamond, the honest brakeman—so-called "because he never stole a box car." Diamond is a large man with a blimpish body. He is an intinerant promoter, manager, and what not, with a mind so buoyant that sometimes it bounces into his own belly and surprises himself. "Evil Eye" Finkle is but one of his contributions.

Anyway, back in 1938 Diamond was entertaining a group of newspaper men in Hymie Caplin's (now defunct) tavern, right next to the (now defunct) Hippodrome. And the rotund Diamond was wondering how he would pay for any more rounds of drinks when he spied the great Harry Balogh, standing all alone at the bar.

Diamond called Balogh over to the party and said, "Harry, I am staging my opening boxing show at Miller's Stadium, West New York, three weeks from tomorrow night. Gus Lesnevich is fighting Buddy Ryan in the main event and it's big-time throughout. I want you to do the announcing."

"That's interesting — but what can you pay?" Balough replied.

"I used to pay Joe Humphries a thousand smackers," said Diamond.

Balogh said, "times were better then. I'll take five hundred. And I'm buying a round of drinks for the crowd.

"I didn't expect to get you so cheap, but you're hired," Diamond said. "Of course you've got to send me pictures and mats of yourself for the New Jersey newspapers."

Balogh spent nearly $15 on pictures and mats, which were duly forwarded to Diamond. Then—10 days later he met Diamond on the street.

"Lew—I hope the show's going all right that I'm going to announce," he said.

"It's going swell—so swell that I want to be assured you'll be there to announce—now that I've given your pictures and mats to the papers," Diamond replied. "To make certain that you'll be there I want you to give me a $100 forfeit now."

Balogh staggered. "A hunnert dollars forfeit! Are you insane and crazy? I an't no fighter nor boxer. You're jus' tryin' to tap and fleece me, I'm quittin' the job. I'm firin' myself."

Diamond was nonplussed, not at losing Balogh but at losing the prospective $100, because the printers had been demanding payment for tickets, and the printers had so much company that Diamond had called Miller Stadium "Little Shelby."

Diamond had no more idea about how he was to pay off than the promoters at the Dempsey-Gibbons affair at Shelby, Mont.

Balogh forgot about the affair, and a week or so later he was sitting in Caplin's discussing a cooling drink, when Jim Braddock and Joe Gould came over to him and said, "We're appearing at a benefit tonight. We'd like to have you come along with us."

Balogh went. And after several Scotches, he found himself in a boxing arena. He heard someone telling the crowd that "the wolld's greatest fight announcer is wid us tonight." He announced the main event, and was amazed to discover that it was between Lesnevich and Ryan.

But the truth of this "benefit" didn't dawn upon him until he heard a ringside reporter asking a blimpish man in brown about the size of the gate. The cheerful, blimpish man was D-i-a-m-o-n-d.

All-Ohio World Series Gets Shot in the Arm

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The All-Ohio world series got a shot in the arm Tuesday when the Indians and Reds staged last ditch rallies to pull games out of the fire.

The Reds were losing, 2-0, going into the ninth. Bill Lohrman, Giants' pitcher, had the league-leaders handcuffed. They had made only three hits off him and hadn't got a man past second. Then things began to happen fast and furiously, and when Bill Terry and the Giants recovered the Reds had won, 3-2.

Pinch-hitter Lew Riggs started the Reds' ninth inning rally with a double. Then Gamble and Werber flied out. Lohrman needed only one more out, but he couldn't get it. Lonnie Frey singled through First Baseman Johnny McCarthy, scoring Riggs. Then Ival Goodman doubled down the right field foul line, sending Frey to third. Frank McCormick was next up and Terry elected to pitch to him, even though first base was open. McCormick singled off the left field fence, scoring Frey and Goodman to win the game.

Gene Thompson hung up his fourth victory over the Giants and his 12th of the season by outlasting Lohrman at the finish. Both runs made off Thompson came in the first two frames and then not a Giants reached third during the last seven innings.

Cleveland, with Bob Feller on the mound, was trailing the Red Sox, 5-2, going into the eighth. Then the Indians went on the warpath and scored seven runs off Jack Wilson and Emerson Dickman.

Campbell, pinch-hitting for Hemsley, singled to start the rally. Then Jeff Heath, batting for Feller, hit a homer. Dickman came in and Chapman singled. The payoff blow was a homer by Ken Keltner with the bases loaded. Eleven Indians went to bat in the eighth. Although Feller was relieved in the eighth by Johnny Allen he received credit for his 22nd victory and his eighth in a row.

Both triumphs were highly important to the pacemakers. Cleveland picked up a game and a half and increased its lead to 4½ games over Detroit as the Tigers bowed to the Yanks twice, 4-3 and 4-2.

The Reds also gained a game and a half and lengthened their Margin to 5½ games over Brooklyn as the Dodgers took a double tumble before the Cards, 3-0 and 4-3.
