Swing And Sway Will Rule At The Lyric On Tuesday

"Time Out For Rhythm" Has Rudy Vallee, Ann Miller And Rosemary Lane Cast In The Leading Roles

Swing and sway will be the order of the day so far as the Lyric theatre's Tuesday film, "Time Out For Rhythm" is concerned. Heading the cast of the film are Rudy Vallee, Ann Miller and Rosemary Lane. In the schedule co-feature, "She Knew All the Answers," Joan Bennett and Franchot Tone have the leading roles. Showing for the last times Monday are "Billy the Kid in Texas" and "Ellery Queen's Penthouse Mystery."

"Singapore Woman," a story of love, jealousy and death is now playing at the State theatre with Brenda Marshall and David Bruce in the starring roles. Bob Hope is the star of the co-feature, "Caught in the Draft," able comedy of the lighter side of conscription, with Dorothy Lamour in the leading feminine role. Others in the cast are Eddie Bracken and Lynne Overman.

Now at the Quilna theatre is "Belle Starr," the story of a girl who could capture an arsenal, seize government trains, repeatedly route United States troops, and still look beautiful and have time for love. Gene Tierney portrays the title role, and Randolph Scott in the character of Sam Starr, the dashing guerrilla leader who loved and married Belle.

"This Woman Is Mine," adventure romance with Franchot Tone in the starring role, is currently showing at the Sigma theatre. Others in the imposing cast are John Carroll, Walter Brennan and Carol Bruce in a story of the hazardous voyage in 1810 of a band of adventurers who set out to establish the fur industry in the Pacific Northwest.

"Navy Blues," streamlined musical comedy now at the Ohio theatre, trips the light fantastic from the opening scene to the closing grand finale 108 minutes later. Stars of the film are Ann Sheridan, Martha Raye, Jack Oakie and Jack Haley in a story of reckless gobs and gorgeous girls frolicking on and off a battleship in Hawaii.

Currently in the Majestic are "Hired Wife," with Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Virginia Bruce at the head of the cast, and "Quarterback."

SIGMA

John Carroll is the tallest man in motion pictures, and one of the most adventurous young stars in Hollywood.

Six feet, four inches tall and a soldier of fortune from the time he was 10 years old, Carroll is regarded as one of the screen's most important "discoveries" in many seasons.

Carroll at the moment is portraying the most picturesque role of his career as a laughing, loving French-Canadian riverman in "This Woman Is Mine," now showing at the Sigma theatre.

Of French extraction, Carroll was born in New Orleans. He ran away from home at the age of 10 and earned his own living at odd jobs until he was 16, when he signed on a freighter. After a trip around the world he worked in Houston, Tex., as a floorwalker, but this was pretty dull for a restless youth like Carroll and so he went around the world on another freighter.

Afterward he finished his school, attending both Holy Cross and Northwestern universities. During this period he developed a singing voice and a patron sent him to Italy to study. While there he met a deep-sea diver whose life so fascinated John that the youth gave up vocal studies and decided to become an underwater man in Florida, which he did.

A Hollywood friend whom Carroll had met telegraphed him to come to the movie capital for an athletic role. John convinced the producer of his prowess by jumping out of a second floor window, landing unharmed. He got the lead in "Hi Gaucho." That was only a few years ago and he has been working steadily ever since.

Carroll's hobbies are fishing, hunting, golf and gun collecting. And he can play the piano and cello.

QUILNA

"Belle Starr," the Technicolor film depicting the exploits of the southern beauty who became the bandit queen of the Ozarks, marked the first time in years that studio heads gave their permission for a picture to be shot in continuity, that is to say in the natural sequence of events.

It was the director's plea that, in order to do justice to the many intense emotional scenes in the story of the petticoat terror, the normal continuity should be followed in filming that production.

Thus Randolph Scott, Gene Tierney (who plays Belle), Dana Andrews, John Shepperd, Elizabeth Patterson, Chill Wills and the entire cast, right down to the bit players, were on call during the entire shooting and no sets were "killed" until the picture was completed.

"Belle Starr" opens in Belle's home in Carthage, Mo., and shows the dramatic developments immediately following the Civil war which influenced an aristocratic southern beauty to become history's most famous woman bandit.

It also concentrates on Belle's romance with and marriage to Sam Starr, guerilla leader and outlaw, whose band she joined, becoming its most reckless member.

OHIO

If poker hands means anything to a movie cast, Warner Bros. has better than an all-pictures full house in "Navy Blues," the big filmusical which is at the Ohio.

Four Jacks and two Queens would be an over-size hand in anybody's poker game and that's exactly what "Navy Blues" is holding in its big, all-fun cast.

Ann Sheridan and Martha Raye are the Queens. Jack Oakie, Jack Haley, Jackie C. Gleason and Jack Carson are the Johnnies, and for good measure, altho he doesn't fit into the poker arrangement, are Herbert Anderson, getting the biggest break of his career, and six de-lovely girls dubbed the Navy Blues Sextet.

In contriving "Navy Blues," Hal Wallis, Warner Bros. executive producer, has gone all-out for loveliness and laughs.

Sparkling songs were written for "Navy Blues," by Arthur Schwartz and Johnny Mercer. Extravagant, girl-studded dance routines were concocted by Seymour Felix, the man who staged all of the late Flo Ziegfeld's greatest successes. A laugh-a-minute script is contrived to give full scope to the four Jacks' wisecracking (plus lots of nifties for Miss Sheridan and Martha Raye.)

LYRIC

One of the biggest personality parades in recent film history, sings, dances, romances and clowns its way across the Lyric theatre screen on Tuesday "Time Out For Rhythm," star-spangled and music-filled, has been hailed by Hollywood as the year's big new musical romance, with Rudy Vallee, Ann Miller and Rosemary Lane heading the impressive cast of radio, stage and screen celebrities.

Others important to the stellar cast are Allen Jenkins, Joan Merrill, Brenda and Cobina, the Three Stooges, Richard Lane, Six Hits and a Miss, Eddie Durant's Rhumba orchestra and Glen Gray and His Casa Loma band. Sammy Cahn and Saul Chaplin penned the seven hit tunes, which highlight the comedy.

With Vallee cast as a theatrical booking agent, Miss Miller is seen as his petite new dancing and singing "discovery," and Miss Lane as a singing star determined to advance her own career regardless of the cost to others. Within the framework of the smoothly-knit story, which describes Vallee's efforts to "put across" the talented Miss Miller, Director Salkow has achieved a splendid blending of music and mirth, of heart-throbs and romance.

Starring Joan Bennett and Franchot Tone, the hectic new comedy, "She Knew All the Answers," also opens Tuesday at the Lyric theatre. John Hubbard, Eve Arden and William Tracy are important featured members of the cast, and it is a gay story of a night club performer who goes to work on and in Wall-st.

FASHION ART HOME COURSE MAY BE STEP TO CAREER

Charts Explain Figure Drawing

From amateur to fashion artist, earning good money! Does that seem a long stride to take?

You might make it a short one with instruction to guide your talent. You can learn at home, with charts, how to draw figures like those you see in newspapers and magazines.

Drawing a glamorous pose isn't so hard if you start the right way. Sketch an oval for the head, then a vertical line to foot supporting body weight.

Now study the pose. How do shoulders slant? Hips? Draw lines as our diagram shows, noting that shoulders and bust slant the same way and that waist and hips are also parallel to each other.

Following these guides you sketch the face and body, remembering rules of figure proportion; for instance, the knee is halfway from pleats to ankle, the eye line divides the head.

How to draw the clothing smartly? That, too, is easily learned!

Our 24-page instruction book has charts showing figure and face proportions, tells in detail how to draw professional fashion figures. Explains perspective, foreshortening, techniques.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of "Fashion Drawing Made Easy" to The Lima News, Home Service, 635 Sixth-av. New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of instruction book.

MONEY EVERYWHERE, AND NOT A CENT TO SPEND

By GLADWIN HILL

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 This'll kill you, or at least stun you: Several people around the country this week had so much money they didn't know what to do with it!

The state treasurer of Ohio had $33,000,000 which all the banks refused because they were overloaded with deposits . . . (where he finally stashed it was not reported maybe under his pillow) . . . The state of Connecticut had $3,000,000, and the same difficulty. They ended up putting the money in the treasurer's safe. . . .

A Houston, Tex., man left $1,500 to relatives in Latvia, which couldn't be delivered because of the war so the court finally ordered it invested in defense bonds . . . and a Springfield, Ill., official who applied at a bank for a $200 cashier's check accidentally was given one for $1,000,200 - just a million dollars off. He took it back. An honest man.

With all this dough lying around, the burglars of the week picked some funny things to swipe. In New York City, somebody stole a 50 pound five foot mail box . . . In Fayetteville, N. C., an exhibitionistic pilferer lifted a policeman's brass buttoned coat and strutted down the street wearing it. . . . And in Spartanburg, S. C., a thief made off with seven rocking chairs, obviously a juggler gone wrong. . . .

And speaking of encumbrances, an Oregon university student who worked for a construction company that went bankrupt applied for part-time work for himself and one steam roller!

In Wilmington, N. C., soldiers were discovered buying nail polish as a cure for chigger bites. . . . A guest who set a Fayetteville, N. C., hotel on fire a year ago smoking in bed set it on fire again . . . smoking in bed . . . again . . .

The Muskogee, Okla., city council deliberated putting a tax on toilet seats. . . . A Wilkes Barre, Pa., motorist who ran out of gas dispatched a carrier pigeon with an order for more. . . . A 10-year old boy who had never gone to school entered Western Reserve university. . . and a Dodgers fan in Norwich, Conn., gave such a jump for joy that he broke his nose, gashed his forehead, and blacked both his eyes. . . .

Food and Wine Dept. . . . A Buffalo woman asked the marines not to enlist her son because "beans make him sick" . . . A Pennington, N. J., boy won the junior doughnut-dunking championship by downing three in one minute, 50 seconds. . . . An army private from Greer, S. C., consumed 19 bananas and a raw onion in four minutes flat. . . .

And a Chicago man who salts his beer accidentally gulped down the top of the salt-shaker. . . .

Oh, (glug) Sam! . . .

At one time, any round fruit was known as an apple.
