Display Tells Fight for Free Speech, Press

When attorneys for the Nazi saboteurs invoke the Bill of rights to obtain a civil trial, thoughtful citizens begin to reexamine the war-time validity of our "inalienable" rights. The story of our fight to secure free speech and a free press is contained in the books now occupying a special display shelf at the Madison Free Library.

Zachariah Chafee's "Free Speech in the United States" provides a discussion of the meaning of freedom of speech in the first amendment to the Constitution. This is a 1941 replacement of "Freedom of Speech," a publication of 1920 concerned with problems that had arose during the last war. In the new book, Prof. Chafee includes commentary on all important events and court decisions from 1917 to the alien registration act of 1940. He describes the prosecutions and deportations of World War I and the legislation on sedition which followed the armistice of 1918.

Aug. 4 marks the anniversary of an early fight to refuse the sedition laws of England to conform to American opinion. Back in 1735, John Peter Zenger was acquitted of "publishing several seditious libels" against the governor of New York when his lawyer persuaded the jury to decide in favor of "the liberty of exposing and opposing arbitrary power by speaking and writing the truth."

Charles Hart vividly describes the trial in one chapter of "General Washington's Sin of Israel and Other Forgotten Heroes of History." According to Hart, the truth was not adequate as defense in a seditious libel suit during colonial times. In fact, until the Zenger trial, the colonial courts were deciding these cases on the Hanoverian premise that "the greater the truth, the greater the libel."

This reversal of English common law set a legal precedent protecting freedom of the press to print the truth. But "the fact that the principle has been recognized in law offered no absolute security," comments Mauritz Hallgren in his "Landscape of Freedom." This story of "American liberty and tyranny" discusses 300 years of our efforts to secure freedom from all infringements on personal and civil liberties.

Giles Patterson, member of the Florida bar, starts his "Free Speech and a Free Press" by quoting Socrates, and ends his book with a chapter on radio discussion and the first amendment. Intervening sections deal with the struggle for freedom of expression in continental Europe, England, and the United States.

Inge Jollos Plays Two Leading Roles

Inge Jollos, Madison, plays two leading roles in the last two weeks with the Berkshire players, Stockbridge, Mass. She appeared as the schoolmistress in "Letters to Lucerne" and as Gertrude in "Hamlet." Don Fellows, also of Madison, is another member of the company, which appears in four neighboring cities each week.

Lunts to Bring Premiere of 'Pirate' to Union Theater

Promising to be the biggest theater news of the year in Madison, the world premiere of Alfred Lunt's and Lynn Fontanne's new show, "The Pirate" by S. N. Behrman, will be staged Sept. 14-16, at the Wisconsin Union theater.

Mail orders are now being received at the theater box office, and will be filled Sept. 1. Open sale will start Sept. 7.

Interest Rises

Already calls have been received from many out-of-town people who plan to attend. Critics from New York and Chicago papers are expected to attend the performance. The Lunts will take "The Pirate" on tour after the Madison engagement, and will open in New York in October at the Martin Beck.

Lunt will direct "The Pirate," his second directional venture since "Candle in the Wind." It is being produced by the Playwright's Co.

The opening nights will recall to many Madison playgoers the excitement attendant on the opening of the Wisconsin Union theater in 1939, when the Lunts staged "The Taming of the Shrew" as the first production on the new campus stage.

Marks 35th Year

"The Pirate," brought to Madison first at the request of its stars who promised in 1939 to return here with a premiere, will inaugurate the 35th anniversary year of the Wisconsin Union.

The Union has been bringing concert and theater attractions to Madison since 1907—at first in halls rented for the purpose, later in campus auditoriums, such as the gymnasium and the stock pavilion, more recently in the new Wisconsin Union theater.

Municipal Band to Play Circus March Today

In summer spirit, the Madison Municipal band will open its Vilas park concert at 3 p. m. today with "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite March," written by Karl King, former circus band conductor.

Richard C. Church, director of instrumental music at West high school, will be conductor, substituting for Dr. Sigfrid Prager, and Josephine Pfahler, West high student, will be soprano soloist.

The program:

Band: "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite March," King; "Morning, Noon, and Night in Vienna," overture, von Suppe; "Begin the Beguine," Porter; "Grandioso" march, Seitz; "The Student Prince" selection, Romberg; "The Lost Chord," Sullivan.

Miss Pfahler: "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life," Herbert.

Band: "Gold and Silver" waltz, Lehar; "March and Procession of Bacchus" Delibes; "My Hero," Strauss-Alford; "Military Escort in Five Ways," Fillmore.

Miss Pfahler: "In the Garden of Tomorrow," Deppen.

Band: "From Africa to Harlem," Bennett; "Stouthearted Men," Romberg; "The Stars and Stripes Forever," Sousa.

Museum Shows Inflow of Nationalities

"They Made Wisconsin," a visual story of the people who came to build the state, is the newest in a series of special exhibitions which the State Historical Society of Wisconsin is presenting in the main library building at the University of Wisconsin.

In the large center case stands a figure in the costume of the 1830s holding a deed to a piece of Wisconsin land. Representing an early land agent, he is surrounded by four cases of dolls, each one in the folk costume of a European country.

These costume dolls were made especially for the Wisconsin Historical museum by the WPA handicraft project in Milwaukee. There are about 50 dolls, each with an exact replica of the folk costume of the nationality groups which have settled in Wisconsin.

Two Other Cases

Two other display cases contain household articles and keepsakes which were brought to Wisconsin from the immigrants' homelands or native states. Included among these are two fine coverlets, one woven in Pennsylvania in 1816 and the other woven in Ireland in 1804. English lustre ware, Lowestaft china, Bohemian glass, and several Norwegian things are also being shown.

To illustrate what some of the people did, two display cases have been filled with articles such as an early physicians' medical and surgical kit, and early farming, lumbering, railroading, and surveying implements. A miner's lamp serves to recall the lead mining days, while a grain sickle reminds of the difficult harvesting problems farmers faced before the days of machinery.

Show Map Series

A series of maps based on historical society studies trace the stages of foreign pentration from Indian days to recent times. A large map, based on studies made by the University of Wisconsin rural sociology department forms a centerpiece of this display, and locates the nationality groups and their settlements.

Fourteen portraits of Wisconsin men, each representing a nationality group, have labels describing activities of the nationalities, along with biographical sketches of the men portrayed.

All of the portraits and objects on exhibition are from the collection of the Wisconsin Historical museum. The exhibition will remain on view until Sept. 28.

Informal Sing Planned Monday

Gordon to Direct Last in U. W. Series

Madison residents and University of Wisconsin summer session students will join their voices in song under the direction of Prof. E. B. Gordon in Music hall auditorium at 7:30 p. m. Monday. This will be the final informal sing of the 1942 summer session, and it is moved from the Wisconsin Union theater so that the Music hall organ may be used.

The special numbers on the program will be given by the summer session chorus, directed by Paul G. Jones. Included will be "Flocks in Pastures Green Abiding," Bach; an arrangement by E. T. Chapman of the hymn of St. Francis of Assisi "All Creatures of Our God and King," and folk songs arranged by John Jacob Miles. Soloists to be heard are Ruth Marson, Madison, soprano, and Marvin Fennema, Salem, tenor. Ula Mae Knutson, Stevens Point, will be the accompanist.

The singing audience and the chorus will alternate for several portions of the program, and will combine in closing to present Harvey Worthington Loomis' arrangement of "Lovely Appear" from "The Redemption," by Gounod.
