FALL WEATHER TO DRAW BUYERS FRIDAY NIGHT

Autumn weather was expected by Lima merchants Thursday to bring even more shoppers into their stores Friday night than on last week's inauguration of the factory workers' night to buy.

Thriving business was reported last Friday night, with many workers in industrial plants and their families availing themselves of the opportunity given by merchants to those who are busy during hours normally devoted to shopping.

Again Friday and on succeeding Fridays the downtown retail stores almost without exception will open at 12:30 p. m. and remain open until 9 p. m. Morning and afternoon hours will be observed as usual on other days.

Dead Man Walks, Talks And Kills In New Quilna Film

Michael Shayne Mystery Adventure Opens Friday Night, Co-Starred With "The Postman Didn't Ring"

A dead man walks, talks and kills at the Quilna theatre in the new Michael Shayne mystery adventure, "The Man Who Wouldn't Die," starring Lloyd Nolan as private detective Shayne and commencing with the Friday preview showing at the Quilna theatre. A grand surprise package of entertainment is the co-feature, "The Postman Didn't Ring," starring Richard Travis and Brenda Joyce. Showing for the last times Friday is "Orchestra Wives," starring Glenn Miller and his orchestra, George Montgomery and Ann Ruthford.

A distinguished trio made up of Fay Emerson, Julie Bishop and Frank Wilcox have the stellar roles in "Lady Gangster," now at the State, a hard hitting, fast-shooting, swiftly moving story of crime and its consequences. Also on view at the State is "Powder Town," starring Victor MacLaglen, Edmund O'Brien, Dorothy Lovett and June Havoc.

Ricardo Cortez, Bill Henry and Rochelle Hudson have the top roles of "Rubber Racketeers," a story of criminals dealing with the precious commodity, commencing Friday at the Lyric theatre. Charles Starrett and Russell Hayden, western stars, have the leading roles of the co-feature, "West of Tombstone." Showing for the last times Thursday are "Song of the Islands" and "Lady For a Night."

More songhits than have ever been written for any one picture are heard in the much-heralded Irving Berlin show, "Holiday Inn," now at the Ohio theatre. Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire share starring honors in the film, with Marjorie Reynolds, Virginia Dale and Walter Abel in featured roles.

Currently offered at the Sigma theatre are a pair of adventuresome films titled "Busses Roar" and "One Thrilling Night." Richard Travis and Julie Bishop appear in the first named film, while John Beal tops the cast of the latter.

The Friday attractions at the Drive In theatre are "Go West, Young Lady," starring Ann Miller, Penny Singleton and Glenn Ford, and "Sailors on Leave," starring William Lundigan and Shirley Ross.

LYRIC

Hoof-thundering chases, bullet-streaked gun battles and rousing songs are promised in double doses on Friday when the rip-roaring new western, "West of Tombstone," makes its first local appearance at the Lyric theatre. Co-starring those two action aces, Charles Starrett and Russell Hayden, the outdoor thriller, third in a Columbia series, is said to be filled with the kind of hard-riding action and gun-blazing excitement that appeals to every red-blooded adventure fan!

Aided by a skilful supporting cast, which includes such seasoned veterans as Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards, Gordon DeMain, Clancy Cooper, Jack Kirk, Budd Buster and Tom London, Starrett and Hayden are in excellent company as they battle against each other in the opening sequences of the film. Starrett is seen as Steve Langdon, U. S. Deputy Marshal, while Hayden playing the son of Billy, the Kid, appears in the role of a suspected outlaw, determined to avoid the long hand of the law.

Starrett wins out, tho, and succeeds in capturing and imprisoning Hayden. This action, however, leads to the punch-packed climax of the show when Billy, the Kid, notorious outlaw, returns and sets out to wreak vengeance on the gang of bandits who brought about his son's arrest. Barricaded in a cabin, high on the mountains, Billy is fighting a losing battle against the outlaws when he is joined by Starrett and Hayden, who come riding to the rescue!

The stirring gun fight that results promises to be the best seen in a long while, with bullets and bandits biting the dust with lightning-like rapidity!

Lovely Marcella Martin, a comparative newcomer to the screen, is the sole woman in the adventure film.

QUILNA

There is something new in the way of cinema musicals and, just to prove it the Quilna offers a delightful entertainment dish that has, besides the nation's number one orchestra and a superior cast, a sparkling story and tunes that set your toes a-dancing.

"Orchestra Wives" is the film and it is particularly welcome because of the joyous presence of Glenn Miller and his celebrated orchestra. George Montgomery, Ann Rutherford and a galaxy of gay featured players, including Lynn Bari, Cesar Romero, Carole Landis, Virginia Gilmore and Mary Beth Hughes, not to mention the Nicholas Brothers, one of the most arresting dance teams in the country.

The story is as enjoyable as its tunes and, yes, different, too. Musical comedies had become a sort of Mr. Anthony, dealing almost exclusively with the tribulations of struggling ingenues and backstage heart-break. But "Orchestra Wives" is way off this beaten path. Indeed, it beats a new path for itself. It gives an intimate wife's eye-view of the boys who play the nation's love songs — to everyone but their wives.

Recommended without qualification, too, are the batch of new songs Mack Gordon and Harry Warren whipped up for special treatment by Glenn Miller. Most of them already are leading the various hit parades, songs like "At Last," "I've Got a Gal in Kalamazoo," "People Like You and Me" and "Serenade in Blue."

That's it folks! The number one band in the number one musical of the year. For which the following may stand up and take a bow: Producer William LeBaron, Director Archie Mayo, and Karl Tunberg and Darrell Ware, who wrote the script from an original story by James Prindle.
