From Wisconsin the list included:

In the North African area:

RIDGEWAY—Oscar B. Christinson, principal of the graded schools at Bloomer for nine years, will be principal of the public schools here when the fall term opens Monday, Sept. 6. He replaces F. W. Paull, who resigned to become principal at West Lima.

Two positions on the teaching staff remain to be filled, one in the science department and the other in the intermediate grades.

Anita Kress, Madison, will teach English and history. Emma Treseder will teach the upper grades and Anna Gardner the primary grades. Florence Gardner, who resigned as teacher in the intermediate grades last week, will teach in the second grade at Dodgeville.

'Jump Crickets' Invade Baraboo

BARABOO—This city has been experiencing an invasion of crickets, and the current topic of conversation is how to get rid of the pests. When business men came downtown Wednesday morning, the streets between sign lights or lighted windows were black with dead crickets, while there were still plenty of lively ones to be attacked with fly spray and fly swatters.

Unlike their brothers who generally "sit by the hearth" these crickets are able to jump or fly some distance into the air, and those familiar with bug-lore describe them as "jump crickets".

Some Victory gardeners complain that they are eating tomatoes in their gardens, while housewives are awaiting anxiously to find out whether they will attack woolens.

McCoy Trip Aids Workers, Official Says

CAMP McCOY —(U.P.)— Beneficial results already were apparent today from bringing war workers to see the fighting tools they manufacture in combat, training, N. E. Schulze, War Manpower Commission official, asserted here.

Recently appointed director for the WMC in 29 western Wisconsin areas, Schulze came here to join war production workers from Milwaukee and other cities on the second conducted tour of Camp McCoy.

Schulze said he could think of "no better way to impress on our workers the absolute urgency for war materials and the disastrous results if our fighters are denied the full use of essential equipment than to bring them out to the field of training." Absenteeism would not be prevalent if the workers could all see soldiers in this rigid training program, he added.

Lieut. Col. C. H. Clinton of the War Production Board production service department brought a representative from each of 31 plants in the Milwaukee area which have won an "E" award for excellence in war production to view the combat training. The group was headed by Irvin J. Ott, secretary of the war service committee of the Milwaukee Assn. of Commerce.

Ott explained that each of the production workers would go back to his plant and give an account of his experiences at the camp and his view of a sham battle on a mock Axis objective. The demonstration was to include a heavy artillery barrage and use of many types of improved war implements.

Fort Gets News of Service Men

FT. ATKINSON—Sgt. Prentiss Kennedy, enroute from California, arrived at the William Scharf home Thursday. His next station will be Camp Crowder, Mo., where he will be joined by Mrs. Kennedy and son, Michael.

Lieut. George F. May, Dallas, Tex., was called to Lake Ripley by the serious illness of his grandmother, Mrs. G. Will May.

Lieut. and Mrs. James Miller of Camp Breckinridge, Ky., have arrived in the city to spend a 10-day leave with relatives and friends.

Sgt. Helmer Kreklow, who served with the MP's at Ft. Adams, Mass., is now assigned to the motor pool at Camp Edwards, Mass.

During his absence his wife and two children will make their home here with his parents.

Burris who left the States several months ago pilots a fighter-bomber. He has a brother, Lieut. Donald Dean Burris, with the weather bureau in Hawaii. Both are graduates of the Wisconsin Institute of Technology at Platteville.

State Wheat Acreage to Climb, Prediction

Wisconsin will contribute 100,000 acres of wheat in the national 68,000,000 goal for 1944, an increase for the Badger state of 30,000 acres over last year, Walter F. Katterhenry, chairman of the Wisconsin Agricultural Adjustment agency, announced today.

According to the AAA chairman, the increased production will be accomplished without the danger of encountering another dust bowl such as occurred after World War I.

The war-increased demand has cut deeply into the surplus created over a period of years, Katterhenry said. Lend-lease shipments plus tremendous increases for stock feed and uses for commercial alcohol further decreased the national supply.

River Suit Sent to Circuit Court

The flowage suit of Consolidated Water Power and Paper Co. against Henryk Nowak and other landowners on the Wisconsin river was remanded to Marathon county circuit court by Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone Friday on the company's motion. K. B. Czernecki, Chicago attorney representing Nowak, has made several attempts to force trial of the suit in federal court.

Barclay Gives Tips on Bridge

PROTECT THE SITUATION

THERE IS no point in playing a hand in a way which requires that the six missing cards of a suit be evenly divided between defenders—that is, unless there is no more likely way to make your contract. If there is a method which will work if the six hostile cards are divided four-and-two between the opponents, that is by all odds a better chance to work for. This may entail ruffing a round of the suit as a safety play, and that incidentally may necessitate having an extra entry in the dummy. If the entry can consist only of the third round of trumps, it may be better to take only two trump tricks in the beginning and save the third for later on.

North: ♠ A K 9 8 4 ♥ Q J 7 ♦ 9 2 ♣ 10 8 3

West: ♠ 7 6 ♥ 8 6 5 ♦ K 8 4 ♣ A K Q 9 7

East: ♠ J 10 3 2 ♥ 3 2 ♦ Q J 7 5 3 ♣ 5 2

South: ♠ Q 5 ♥ A K 10 9 4 ♦ A 10 6 ♣ J 6 4

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	2 ♣	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

After East ruffed the third round of clubs so as to make a diamond lead through the declarer, South had to take all of the remaining tricks. He should have, but was too much of an optimist, or else too careless, and as a consequence was set.

Deciding to discard his own losing diamonds on spades, he won the diamond Q with the A, disposed of all the outstanding trumps with the Q, A and K, and then went to work on the spades, taking first the Q and then the A and K. West discarded on the K, however, a small club, and this left East holding the high spade. South therefore was able to get no diamond discard except the one on that spade K trick, so had to lose the setting trick in diamonds.

How easy the contract would have been if South had protected himself against the probable four-two break in spades. After winning the diamond A, he should have taken only two trump rounds, then the spade Q and A, then ruffed a third spade with a high heart. After that, he could have returned to dummy with the heart J and scored the other spades, discarding both of his own diamonds and leaving himself no losers.

Your Week-End Lesson

Do you know the definite provisions of the new Laws of Contract Bridge on these before-the-bidding matters:

1. Reclaiming your own pack when an opponent has used it?
2. Changing the dealer or the pack?
3. When there cannot be a new deal?
4. When a new deal is optional during the deal?
5. When a new deal is compulsory during the deal?
6. The proprieties of the deal?

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK: PLACE NAMES FOR FOOD

NEWS of Sardinia has made me think of several kinds of food which were named after places in the European area.

The island of Sardinia is believed to have given its name to the small fish called "sardines."

Formerly they were known as "Sardinian fish," but the French gave them the name of "sardines."

Sardinia has been under Italian rule, but it is almost as close to France as to Italy. The small fish known as sardines or pilchards are taken in nets from the waters around the island.

UNCLE RAY

Pilchards are a branch of the herring family. They seldom grow to a length of more than 10 inches, and those which are put in cans are usually less than three inches long.

The waters around Sardinia are not the only places where sardines are found. The name has been adopted for small herring taken off the coast of New England; fishermen from the state of Maine have made a specialty of catching such herring.

Japan, Chile and California are among the other centers of the sardine industry. Millions of cans of sardines are put up each year.

On the mainland of Italy is the city of Bologna, and it gave its name to "Bologna sausage". People in our land almost always call this sausage "baloney" or "bologna," but the dictionary has not yet caught up with the change.

The city of Bologna is in the northern part of Italy. Before the start of the present war, it had a population of 315,000.

People in Bologna speak with pride about its long history. They say it is older than Rome. Certainly it ranks among the very old cities of Europe. It was conquered by the Romans 2,132 years ago.

Austria's old capital city, Vienna, is known as "Wien" by the people who live there. Many years ago popular there, and it was sent to markets in other cities. This sausage came to be known as "Wienerwurst." Today most peoples speak of sausages of this kind as "wieners."

In the same way the German city of Frankfort produced the sausage known as the "frankfurter" (also spelled "frankforter.") A frankfurter and a wiener are almost the same but—by old standards—the frankfurter is longer and thicker. Another German city—ruined Hamburg—gave its name to the chopped meat called "hamburger."
