TRANSPORTATION REVEALED AS MAIN WEAKNESS OF GERMANY

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

MADRID, Dec. 18 (By Wireless)—The repatriation of escaped soldiers, Allied and Axis alike, from prison camps thru Spanish cooperation makes this a newsworthy place if you set out to talk to men who have finally worked their way to Madrid from Germany.

Among these, the highest-ranking officer of an Allied army on the continent to reach here — after escaping near Berlin and making a four-month trek disguised as a workman—told me today much that he had seen from the viewpoint of a professional soldier.

Being an officer, he was given a choice—as are other captured officers in German prisons—of either remaining in prison or working outside, the latter naturally meaning a better chance of escape. But if an officer chose outside work, for instance as a shop foreman, the Germans required the signing of an affidavit swearing not to attempt to escape and never again to take up arms for his homeland.

Like every other officer in his prison, this man refused such a pledge. He remained confined for two years. Three attempts at escape ended in failure. The fourth succeeded, and there began the long trek which ended here today.

In our discussion, as he changed his clothes, drank some of my American coffee and prepared to live again, he told me that German transportation remains the weakest link in the German war machine but that much remains to be done before the transport system is crippled.

* * *

THE German trains are moving better than we have thought, he said. For example, in blitzed Cologne, near the famous cathedral, the railway station familiar to so many Americans was hit hard but the long four-track bridge leading from the station across the Rhine still operates daily and is repaired whenever hit.

In the opinion of this escaped officer and others, that point should be vital in a readjustment of any idea we may have that the bombing of trains and tracks means an early collapse of Germany.

What is happening, however, is that supplies are believed delivered to German plants so erratically that our estimate of the effect of such bombings on industry is correct, and this will have its impact on the battle lines some months from now.

Equally important is the slowdown among the amazingly high percentage of foreigners working in Nazi plants. The highest such proportion I found from talking here to persons formerly employed in these plants and now escaped is 15 Germans to 110 Frenchmen, Belgians, Poles and Russians in one motor repair shop at Frankfurt.

The fall of Italy improved the coal supply in Germany somewhat, because of less diversion of coal to Italy. It is the shattered windows in the big cities that hurts the heating situation most now, and makes winter such a factor on the home front.

* * *

THE cleavage in thinking between young Germans and older ones is as great as ever. The old ones have been drawing a fatal parallel with the last war since America entered this one. The young ones, however, have never known anything but the idea of victory. It is almost impossible for Americans to realize the extent of the indoctrination of the German youth. For example, their continued references to danger to the United States from South America, and their conviction that a secret weapon will destroy England, where they believe we have concentrated everything.

Both New York and Washington have been heavily bombed, they are sure, and I am a liar when I deny it to Germans in the neutral capitals because they know of aviators who have bombed us. They associate the Cairo and Teheran meetings with the "great Arabian war" now going on so mysteriously, as a result of which they say England is out of the Moslem world forever, with staggering losses. They have been sold on this phony Arab war plenty—and so has a full-blooded American Indian, who calls himself White Cloud and who is the most bizarre individual I have ever seen in Europe.

* * *

AT the time of Pearl Harbor, White Cloud was interned at Bad Neuheim along with other Americans, including George F. Kennan, who had been first secretary of our embassy in Berlin and is now counselor of our legation in Lisbon. I continued this by telephone with Kennan in Lisbon. After a long internment with his fellow Americans, White Cloud was finally taken with them from Bad Neuheim to Lisbon, where the liner Drottningholm was ready to carry them across the Atlantic.

But the unpredictable White Cloud left the party at the gangplank and returned to Germany to finish his interrupted but unexpired vaudeville contract, and then to tour wartime Europe with his bow and arrow and fancy targets and without any passport whatever, except a Portuguese police card saying he was harmless and quite an arrow-shooter.

He has changed his name several times, but White Cloud is not a spy. He is simply the arrow-shootingest Indian that anybody between the Baltic and Gibraltar ever saw.

NEWS BARRIERS WILL BE EASED

Future Policy To Drop "Hold For Release" Basis

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—(AP) - President Roosevelt, taking stern measures to prevent leaks of important war information, today directed the War and Navy secretaries and the director of the Office of War Information to refuse to issue in advance, for release to the public at a future hour, any news having a security value.

"The American people," he said in a memorandum, "want promptly all the news which can be told safely, and they are entitled to have it without the interposition of artificial barriers."

The text of his memorandum: (200)

"You are fully aware, I know, of the regrettable confusions which have arisen recently over the issuance of official news relating to the war, particularly in connection with the conferences at Cairo and Teheran.

"We may all be proud that American newspapers, news agencies and broadcasters kept the faith and observed the release dates which had been fixed by international agreement. It is most disappointing that such loyalty should have been penalized by failures elsewhere.

"I see no point in prolonging the controversy over what is passed; the important thing is that we take decisive action to prevent a recurrence. To that end, your department and all other branches of the government will be guided by the following.

"First, no information having a security value in connection with the war will be issued in advance, for release to the public at some future hour.

"Secondly, all such information will be given out instead at the earliest moment consistent with national security, for immediate publication and broadcast.

"The American people want promptly all the news which can be told safely, and they are entitled to have it without the interposition of artificial barriers."

7 ARE KILLED WHEN EXPRESS TRAIN HITS CAR

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Dec. 18—(INS)—Seven persons, including six members of one family, were killed today when their automobile was struck by the Fairmont Express on the Pennsylvania railroad crossing at nearby Courtney.

The victims, who were enroute to Monongahela for a Christmas shopping tour, were: Benjamin Rist, Sr., 67; his son, Herbert, 34, his four grandsons, Herbert, Jr., 14, Benjamin, 13, John, 8, and Thomas, 6; and a schoolmate of the children, Herbert Carden, 9. All were residents of Courtney.

The train dragged the car more than 50 feet. Four of the victims were killed instantly and two were dead on arrival at Memorial hospital in Monongahela. Herbert Rist, Jr., died there several hours later.

Herbert Rist, who was driving the car, was a brakeman for the Union railroad. The children's mother was at work in the Shire Oaks yards of the Pennsylvania railroad when the accident occurred. Another child, Daisy, 11, was left at home.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 18 — (AP) — The University of Illinois basketball team unloosed a furious second half scoring burst to defeat the University of Missouri Tigers 39 to 29 tonight, after the Tigers had acquired a 20-13 halftime lead.

Dick Foley, Illini freshman, who will report for Army service before his team will begin defense of its eastern Conference championship, led the scoring with 16 points. He gathered seven of his eight baskets during the Illinois sprint in the second half.
