Watson Heads Education Board

BARNEVELD—Stewart Watson was reelected director of the board of education at the annual meeting of school district No. 15 July 10.

Fred Starry, John Baylis, and W. C. Davis were elected to the auditing committee. Holdover members of the board of education are O. Christopherson and Neil Arnold.

It was agreed to make a $10,000 tax levy in order to carry on the business of the coming year. It was voted to hold nine months of school.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Blue, Black and Red Have Been Used as Beard Dyes

Of all beards, those which belong to white men are the longest. No other race can compare with the whites in the power to grow hair on the face.

Some Japanese and Chinese are able to grow fairly good beards, but not such good ones as white men. American Indians and African negroes have little in the way of whiskers, mustaches or chin beards.

Beards used to be looked upon as a sign of manly health in several countries. Among the ancient Jews a man was ashamed to go around without a beard. King David's ambassadors were seized in an enemy country, and their beards were cut off. Learning about this event, the king sent word to them to stay in Jericho until their beards grew again.

The common custom in Babylonia and Egypt was for men to shave hair from their faces. The Egyptians let their beards grow only when they were mourning the loss of a relative or close friend. False beards were worn by some Egyptian kings.

Babylonian kings also wore false beards, often curling them and dying them blue or indigo. It was common for Persian kings to dye their beards black, and to plait them with golden thread.

Beards were common among the Greeks of long ago. Statues of Socrates and other famous Greeks show them with a strong growth of facial hair.

When Mohammed became the prophet of the Arabs, he had his own ideas about beards. He said that men who followed his faith should wear them and added that the best color was golden. He did not want them to have black beards like those of the Persians.

Because of Mohammed's words, many of his Arab followers have let their beards grow long and have dyed them with red dye.

The Mohammedans often say "by the beard of the prophet and by my own beard" when they want people to know that what they say is true. Some of them comb their beards after praying, and save the hairs which comes loose. The hairs are buried with a man when he dies.

Saxons in old England grew beards, and so did some of the Normans.
