Three Generals Honored In "Army Hour" Broadcast

Three commanding generals and the U. S. Army's newest officer will share the spotlight when the "Army Hour" honors the infantry Sunday, (WEAF, 2:30 p. m., EST). Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley, commanding general of the Twelfth Army Group in France (First and Third Armies; Lt. Gen. Mark Clark, Fifth Army, Italy, and Lt. Gen. Walter Kreuger, Sixth Army, Southwest Pacific, will speak direct from their theatres of operation.

The fledgling officer, however, is yet to be identified. He will be the 50,000th infantry officer to be graduated from the school at Fort Benning, Ga. Major Gen. Fred L. Walker, cammandant of the school, also will participate. Another feature will be the unveiling and demonstration of several secret infantry weapons used in the invasion.

With the orchestra under the guest conductorship of Alfred Wallenstein, the "World of Song" program for Sunday features two artists who have been heard often on this WJZ network musical highlight at 3:30 p. m., EST, Regina Resnik, dramatic soprano, and Morton Bowe, tenor, both members of the Metropolitan Opera and former winners of the Met Auditions of the Air.

He had been a powerful politician until he was exposed as a crook. After years in prison, he was freed and tried to regain his power. But violent death intervened. Dr. Benjamin Ordway, title character of the "Crime Doctor" (WABC, 7:30-7:55 p. m., EST) will solve this baffling mystery with his usual uncanny skill this Sunday.

In observance of the Jewish New Year 5705, NBC presents "Behold the Jew," a half-hour dramatization of Ada Jackson's epic poem, Sunday over WEAF 1-1:30 p. m., EST.

This special Rosh Hashonah program has been adapted for radio by Milton Geiger. Mrs. Jackson, one of Great Britain's foremost poets, was awarded the British Greenwood Poetry Prize for 1943 for "Behold the Jew."

Leo Carriloo will sign Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy's guest book on their program Sunday at 7 p. m., EST, over WEAF. Mortimer Sneed and Effie Klinker will extend their greetings to the visiting screen star.
