"Dangerous Passage" Apt Title For Sigma Picture

"Dangerous Passage" is an apt title for the picture which arrives Wednesday at the Sigma theatre and starring Robert Lowery and Phyllis Brooks. It deals with a sea adventure aboard a tramp steamer and is guaranteed to keep the movie-goer's hair standing straight up with no support.

The intrigue starts almost at once with Lowery finding he's the sole heir to a sizeable fortune left by his grandfather. He needs only to present himself at Galveston to claim the money. Since he is in British Honduras, a long boat trip awaits him and it's on this trip that the lion's share of the action takes place. Sharing the billing is "I Accuse My Parents."

For one youngster, 19-year-old Robert Arthur of Aberdeen, Wash., "Roughly Speaking," currently showing at the Ohio theatre, was a great break. Eleven days after he arrived in Hollywood following an honorable medical discharge from the Navy, he got the job of portraying one of Mrs. Pierson's sons. It was his first film role, but he won a studio contract by it. Rosalind Russell plays the role of Louise Randall Pierson with Jack Carson and Donald Woods.

Whenever you see the East Side Kids are booked for a movie you can count on a good time. Coming from the tougest district in New York City, the East Side, this gang of rough-necks more-or-less play havoc with that end of the city. "Bowery Champs" is currently featured at the Quilna theatre with the picture, "A Guy, a Gal, and a Pal," starring Ross Hunter.

Joan Davis is the zany star of the hilarious comedy whodunit "She Gets Her Man" which will open Thursday at the State theatre. In her first dual role on the screen, Joan plays herself and her mother and in one of the funniest scenes of the year, she argues with herself.

Just a peek at the cast of "Ever Since Venus" now showing at the Sigma theatre, is a tip-off for film fans, and brings many chuckles of past happy moments. Romance and comedy lead the way with a cast roster almost a foot and a half long.

Corn Insurance Plan Is Tested

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 20 — (AP)—Champaign, as a typical Ohio county "offering average crop risks," has been selected by the department of Agriculture as one of 14 counties in major corn producing areas to participate in a three-year corn insurance program.

Elmer Kruse, chairman of the Ohio Agricultural Adjustment Agency, explained the insurance plan guarantees the farmer at least 75 per cent payment on his crop regardless of damage by rain, hail, insects, plant diseases and other natural hazards.

The insurance plan, set up on a trial basis by congress last January, will cover 1945, 1946 and 1947. A farmer may obtain insurance for three years or less. oionrw g

Cab Driver Admits Killing 6 Persons

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Mar. 20—(UP) — City and state police today checked details of a confession by a 24-year-old taxicab driver that he had committed six murders, five within the past year.

James W. Hall calmly admitted the crimes to police last night. Among his victims, he said, was J. D. Newcomb, Jr., chief boiler inspector for the Arkansas Labor department. Newcomb's charred body was found in the back seat of his car near Heber Springs Mar. 8.

To remove the odor of fish from dishes, wash them in a strong hot solution of salt in water, without soap.

Stilwell Has Yen To Secure Infantry Badge

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20—(AP)—Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, who already can wear most of the medals in the book, has a yen for still another. But he can't have it.

The medal, the Army disclosed today, is the combat infantryman badge awarded for satisfactory performance in ground combat against the enemy.

Stilwell, chief of Army ground forces, has had plenty of such experience. But there's a catch. The infantryman badge goes only to "officers, warrant officers and enlisted men" assigned to infantry regiments, battalions and units of such organizations. Stilwell's rank keeps him from getting it.

Even tho he holds the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Service Medal and other decorations, he doesn't wear any of them.

But if he could get infantryman's badge, says Stilwell, "I'd wear it."

Liberalize Curb On Restaurants

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20—(AP)—In a further liberalization of the midnight curfew, the government ruled today that restaurants serving food to "essential" workers may remain open after midnight.

Previously restaurants which were not customarily open all night could stay open after midnight only if they served food to war plant workers exclusively.

The change was announced by War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt.

McNutt did not say what the test of a worker's essentiality will be. He did say that the revision "should not be construed as exempting those restaurants serving food primarily for entertainment seekers."

WMC also eliminated a requirement that restaurants serving war plant workers file a written application for exemption.
