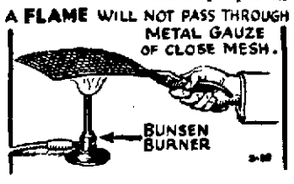
COAL MINERS THANKED DAVY FOR INVENTION OF HIS SAFETY LAMP

Humphry Davy's tests with laughing gas, or nitrous oxide, helped to bring him an offer from the Royal Institution, which had been formed only a few years before. It did not amount to very much at the time, but it was to grow into a great center of science.

The talks which Davy gave at the Royal Institution did a great deal to make it famous. Young as he was, he had a gift of speech, and was able to make people interested in what he said. The hall in which he spoke was crowded, and he often performed chemical or electrical tests in front of his audience.



In addition to gi
