ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

By HASKIN

A reader can get the answer to any question of fact by writing The Long Beach Press-Telegram Information Bureau, 318 Eye St., N. E., Washington 2, D. C. Please inclose three (3) cents for return postage.

Q. For what crimes is the death penalty inflicted? D. J. E.

A. In nearly all civilized countries capital punishment is used for only two crimes, treason and murder in the first degree. Blackstone reported that in 1760, in England, there were 160 offenses for which a man might be put to death.

Q. How great a distance is covered by the stride of a race horse? L. E.

A. The stride of a race horse is about 30 feet, measuring from the time the one hoof leaves the ground until that hoof strikes again.

Q. What is implied in the term "purchasing power of the dollar?" R. N.

A. It means a measurement of the quantity of commodities and services that can be purchased with a dollar in a given period as compared with another period.

Q. Does the Eye Bank in New York use the eyes of persons of any age? G. P. R.

A. The age of the donor makes no difference. The eyes of a stillborn infant and those of an aged persons are equally valuable, provided the cornea is clear.

Q. Who was the first person to discover the existence of a continent in the Antarctic? J. R. M.

A. Nathaniel B. Palmer, a native of Stonington, Conn., is credited with having been the first person to sight the Antarctic continent, when in 1820 he sailed his sloop Hero into these waters.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

Answer to Question No. 1

Just because you are in love. Of course, cold-blooded psychologists think that while being in love is a mixture of many feelings, it is largely the feeling of absolute success. You are "on top of the world" because you have succeeded in winning the approval of the one whose approval means more than all the rest of the world put together.

Answer to Question No. 2

No, if we may judge from experiments on animals and children. Psychologists Jeannie Stewart and J. P. Scott studied "dominance" and "leadership" in a herd of goats and found dominating buttinskys were never the real leaders. Leaders were animals that "secured the voluntary co-operation of the followers." Psychologist H. H. Anderson found this true of children—the leaders were not dominating; rather they were those who explained things and secured confidence of others. Many studies of adult human leadership agree with this.

Answer to Question No. 3

Yes. This was one of their many fine achievements. Psychologist S. S. Stevens found what sounds are most frequently misunderstood over the phone and radio. This study reduced errors in vocal communication and doubtless prevented many a disaster.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

About once a year I publish a series of articles on the smother play, one of the most fascinating plays in bridge. However, very few smother plays have been presented to me.

It came as a surprise, therefore, to receive a letter from John Harvey Jr. of Lexington, Ky., with today's hand. Harvey said he played it in a rubber bridge game.

You will note that with South the declarer at six clubs, if East refuses to put up his club king, he never should lose it, should he? Declarer can lead dummy's queen of clubs, and if East does not cover, he can lead a small club, win with the jack, cash the ace of clubs, and the king will still be good in the East hand.

The smother play is one which smothers East out of his king of clubs. Here is the way Harvey played it:

He won the opening lead in dummy with the ace of diamonds, then led the queen of clubs. East did not cover. A small club was played and the finesse of the jack taken.

When West showed out Harvey decided to try for the smother play. He cashed the ace and king of spades and trumped a small spade in dummy with the six of clubs. Hoping for a break in the heart suit, he cashed the three heart tricks, then cashed the king of diamonds and followed with the five of diamonds, which West won.

At this point West was left with the ten of hearts and jack of diamonds, North with the nine and eight of clubs, East with the King and seven of clubs, South with the ten of spades and ace of clubs.

No matter what West led, North would trump with the eight of clubs. If East overtrumped with the king, Harvey would win with ace of clubs and the last trick would be won in dummy with the nine of clubs. If East underruffed with the seven, Harvey would discard the ten of spades. Thus East was smothered out of his king of clubs.

Modest Maidens

By Jay Alan

"All I really need to go to Florida are some clothes, a hotel reservation and a few thousand dollars. I have my bathing suit!"

SENATOR SOAPER SAYS:

Asked about it, a U. S. Senator says sure he traded in cotton, but sees no weevil in that.

Proposing a tax cut after he has vetoed two such, our Harry falls back on the now familiar principle, be sure you're right, then waver.

"In India, rubies ground to a powder are thought to cure hysterics." If these fail, try a new mink coat, administered whole.

A certain lack in the sense of fitness of things is noted in the matter of Benjamin Franklin, a careful spender, whose face is to appear on a 50-cent piece worth 20 cents in trade.

Colorful Cussword

ORDINARILY reserved and even sedate of speech, the National Geographic Society has coined a purple phrase in an article about barnacles. We think it's a lulu. "Glue-headed cousins of lobsters," barnacles are, the society writes.

Nobody needs to tell us that National Geographic is stating this as a simple fact, and is not swearing at anybody, but nevertheless it is as pretty a piece of invective as we have seen in many a day.

Besides it, "bow-legged, wampy-jawed son of a seacook" lacks dignity. Beside it, "sawed-off, knocked-down brother of a donkey" is without color. Next time we get mad at anyone, we are going to speak with dignity, color and scientific accuracy. "You barnacle," we are going to say. "You glue-headed cousin of a lobster."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

HARDY PIONEERS

IT'S A WONDER the west ever became populated. Imagine the hardiness of the pioneers plodding toward a setting sun without benefit of dark glasses. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ELECTRIC BLANKETS
so light . . . and yet so warm!

It's amazing—your rest is so much more relaxing when you sleep beneath a modern electric blanket. There's no heavy weight, no bothersome bulk. Just a downy soft covering that is worth far more than its weight in comfort.

They're feather light, but oh, so warm—these electrical beauties! One is all you need for snug safety from chill winter nights. Just set the bedside dial; automatic controls keep you as warm as you wish, whether the room temperature rises or falls.

Modern electric blankets are lovely, too. In soft pastel colors, richly napped to a luxurious frosty sheen. They're washable—so they're completely practical.

For really refreshing sleep and a new high in comfort, get modern electric blankets. They're available now in a wide variety of styles, and in just the colors you want.

See them at your dealers!
