Questions, Answers

Alien Vet Can Receive U. S. Pension

By HASKIN

A reader can get the answer to any question of fact by writing The Press-Telegram Information Bureau, 316 Eye St., N. E., Washington 2, D. C. Please enclose three (3) cents for return postage.

Q. Must a veteran of World War II be an American citizen in order to qualify for a pension? A. D. C.

A. It is not necessary for a veteran of the United States armed forces to be a citizen in order to be eligible for a pension.

Q. What was the name of the publishing house with which Mark Twain was connected? V. A. R.

A. In 1884, Mark Twain engaged in the publishing enterprise of C. L. Webster and Co., the failure of which some 10 years later involved him in heavy losses. He paid much of the firm's indebtedness and restored his own fortune by proceeds of lectures and books.

Q. Is the word alright correct? B. B. S.

A. There is no such word as alright in modern English. The expression is correctly written in two words—all right.

Q. How should a hammered aluminum ice bucket be cleaned? The outer surface has become badly spotted. W. E. D.

A. To restore the original polish on aluminum, use either fine steel wool and plenty of soap, or a good metal polish, then rinse and dry.

Q. In case of incurable disease or sickness, is there any state which has legalized "mercy deaths?" R. W.

A. The U. S. Public Health Service says that no state has legalized the so-called "mercy deaths."

Q. Is the subject matter in the Congressional Record an actual transcription of what has taken place in the Senate and House of Representatives? R. McK.

A. The Congressional Record contains an official shorthand record of everything said on the floor by Senators and Representatives, but the appendix often includes material not spoken on the floor. A member of the House may ask leave to extend his remarks and have printed in the Record a speech not a word of which was actually delivered. He may even place in the speech interpolations such as "applause," or "loud applause," etc. In the Senate the practice of interpolating remarks is not resorted to.

Q. What was the cost of the chinaware that was bought by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for use on state occasions in the White House? M. R. T.

A. This new set, consisting of 1680 pieces, cost $9301.20—an average of $5.53 for each piece, from the 10-inch dinner plates to the demi-tasse saucers. It was the first purchase of its kind since Mrs. Woodrow Wilson added to the service.

Q. For whom is Adelaide, Australia, named? J. D.

A. The city was named in honor of Queen Adelaide, consort of William IV of England, because the king desired it. Adelaide was founded in 1836.

Sen. Soaper Says:

By H. V. WADE

ONE IS NOT surprised to note, among the morning accumulation of such advices, that such plans for a national cranberry week have jelled.

A BRITISH medical journal tells of a subject cured of baldness by moving to another house. Either that or the subject is standing under thatched eaves.

A western girl bandit was driven to robbery, she tells the court, because she is to be married. But must one train at the expense of strangers?

Something to remember: From the collected legal papers of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes: "I have no belief in panaceas and almost none in sudden ruin."

Raising vegetables through the long summer so strengthens the gardener's arm he can almost unscrew a jar of the same, come January.

While stylists in many fields are finding inspiration in the "Joan of Arc" film, one hopes and trusts that no widespread outbreak of the hotfoot is in prospect.

SANTA LOSING HIS FAITH?

Old St. Nick Bogged Down by Difficulties

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. (AP) The question this Christmas isn't whether the children will continue to believe in Santa Claus.

It's whether Santa Claus can go on believing in himself. Every year he must be finding it more difficult.

No figure of modern times—except perhaps Mother Goose—has had a harder time keeping his self-confidence than the fun-loving Saint. He has more critics than a French premier, and season after season he is finding himself cabined, crimped and confined by more restrictions.

Take 1947—a really tough year for Santa. Psychologists issued stern warnings that he could derange a child's whole personality by giving him the wrong gift.

And the Saint was brought under municipal ordinance. In one place he was forbidden to show up at department stores for his usual pre-season warm-up if he had taken a shot of rock-and-rye to guard against pneumonia. In some cities he had to have his beard fireproofed. In others they turned the flit gun on the old man—his whiskers had to be 99 and 44/100 per cent pure.

NEW HURDLES

The approach of the 1948 season finds new hurdles, hedges and barriers in the path of the red-suited man of good will. Mr. Claus must promise to quit promising the moon to children. And his voice is being deboomed. The 1948 Santa no longer will bellow—"Ho! Ho! Ho!" He will titter—"Tee, hee, hee."

These new points were decided on this week at a one-day training school for Santa Clauses held at—of all places—the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Nineteen Kris Kringles showed up—most came by taxicab—as well as a number of child psychologists and parent education experts.

The conferees, all former children themselves, pretty well agreed that for years Santa's booming laugh has been so loud it startled many lisping small fry. So that Christmas tradition is out. And the Santas present, in order to get a gilt-edged diploma certifying they were fit to deal "intelligently and sympathetically" with children, also had to pledge "to make no promises unless they can be fulfilled."

BLEAKER FOR '49

The prospect for 1949 and the years to come looks even bleaker for Santa Claus.

For if this old soft-hearted scalawag is really to fit himself into the pattern of the atom age, there are a lot more changes to be made.

Why, for example, should the idol of childhood remain a fat man? Too much fat is unhealthy. Santa Claus is going to have to go on a diet, train off his blubber and put on some good solid muscle.

Spraying his whiskers with D. D. T. is only a temporary measure. He's going to have to whack off those germ-catchers, get rid of his five-o'clock shadow permanently. The best he can hope to hold on to is a mustache—like Thomas E. Dewey.

And dear old Santa is going to have to mend his past—and perhaps change his clothing. Why do you suppose he wears that red suit? Did you know that Santa Claus isn't merely the patron saint of virgins and children? He's also the adopted patron saint of seafaring men, thieves, and—yes,—Russia.

What is he doing up there at the North Pole anyway? Just toying around? This fellow Claus will bear a lot more looking into. He has plenty to explain—this mysterious stranger, who comes and goes in the night.

STUDY OF MAN

A UNIVERSITY of Texas chemist, Dr. Roger J. Williams, made a common-sense contribution yesterday to the current meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. It consisted of a simple but necessary reminder that civilization is not threatened by atomic bombs and biological warfare but by man himself. Of themselves, the phenomena of nuclear fission and disease on a global basis remain only potential horrors. There has to be a man behind the gun, and it is with him that we should be primarily concerned.

Dr. Williams has not, of course, come up with anything new or startling. But in the context in which he was speaking the commonplace was worthy of the reiteration. It was a reminder to the scientists, who perhaps more than any group in society hold the future in their hands, that a science of man must be regarded as the real frontier of inquiry if that future is to hold forth anything but chaos. Back of all the gadgets, however frightful or marvelous, is the factor of human personality.—Baltimore Sun.

NEW LOOK?

ROBOTS, we read in a headline, may make man look like a lame brain. What do circumstances and conditions already have him looking like?—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

WE are setting up America's best insurance policy against communism or any other kind of "ism," and against those who believe that it is the function of the state to regulate completely the lives of all men.
—John L. Lewis, U. M. W. president, referring to the miners' pension plan.

THERE is no disagreement between the Western powers. We agree on the policy we shall pursue; we are not committed to war; we have not reached that stage.
—British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

The horizon is dark with even graver problems beyond our shores. We can't meet them as Republicans or Democrats. We can only meet them as Americans.
—Gov. Earl Warren of California.

One thing the English-speaking lands have proved over the span of the past 800 years, that there is one thing valued above all others in this world—above wealth, or suffering or even life—and that is freedom.
—Dwight D. Eisenhower, president, Columbia University.

The critical world situation . . . will require a great deal of wisdom. I hope the discussions (in Paris) will bring us toward a more peaceful world, but hope alone is not enough.
—Secretary of State Marshall.

The Republican-controlled Congress has sat idly by while the prices of food and clothing have mounted to unprecedented heights. Has the housewife had enough of that?
—Sen. Alben W. Barkley (D.-Ky.).

There are so many contacts for children outside the home that parents must go outside the home, to help raise their children.
—Mrs. John E. Hayes, first vice president, National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

WHILE international blood pressures remain high, we might emulate the example of our Pilgrim forefathers: build our houses, plant our fields, but keep our loaded arquebuses handy.
—Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, commander of U. S. Third Army.

UNFAIR RIVAL

IT WOULD be interesting to know how many poor confidence men have been thrown into work by that soulless mechanized competitor, the slot machine.—Louisville Times.

Face to Face
By Ed Shery
"The Assyrian Price Assassin"

It seems like the more money you have, the more relatives you have. Now a poor boy like me shouldn't have any trouble with relatives. But I do. Yes I do. I have my mother-in-law who wouldn't have a friend in the world if it wasn't for me. I have my sister, the poor man's idea of an underfed Hedy Lamarr, and Boefhead, my salesman who really isn't a relative but has that dumb look which indicates that he's somebody's relative.

LOW RENT ROW

Now everything being relative, you'll find that the suits I sell for $35.00 to $85.00 are much better and cost less than these same suits cost down along high rent row. And if you've been reading this column long enough, you'll know that Ed's For Style is on Low Rent Row, at 1211 East Anaheim. My prices are lower because my overhead is lower and the opposite is true where the overhead is higher. Now isn't that sound reasoning? Certainly it is. Any red-blooded man will agree to that.

TEN PERCENT REFUND

And where else do you get a big ten percent premium refund on every price listed, and on every item you buy at Ed's For Style. Nowhere, of course. That's why more people are coming to Ed's For Style at 1211 East Anaheim every day. More and more and more, and they'll continue to come too, you can be sure of that because low prices and the privilege to use either a credit or layaway plan is making Ed's the most popular place in town for everyone who likes to dress well and for less. There's no sin in saving money, so you might as well join the rest of the crowd of laugh-happy customers that look to me for smiles, styles, and low prices.

Since I'm my own landlord, I can raise my own rent or lower it as I see fit . . . guess what I'm going to do. Lower my rent, lower my prices, and keep everybody happy. That's me. Anyway in most cases, the landlord often raises a tenant's rent when the tenant himself can't raise it. That's my ha! ha! story for the day.

Come in and meet me "face to face" at Ed's For Style, 1211 East Anaheim. Ask about our new friend, Cob Hokum. Never told the truth in his life. A real poor man's Munchausen.

Answer to Question No. 1

Yes. This is already required in South Dakota. Scientist H. M. Pollock, in the American Journal of Mental Deficiency thinks every person should report annually on his or her health, education, occupation, achievement and social behavior. Adults should include details about love, marriage, divorce, family life, etc. These reports would be open to qualified persons—physicians, courts, police, etc. They would be a gold mine for scientists, educators and public health students.

Answer to Question No. 2

No, a bad sign. Psychologists Nomkoff and Wood gave the Bell Personality Adjustment Inventory to 500 co-eds, and found dating at an early age in high school was a sign of good social development but "going steady" in high school was a sign of poor emotional development. Nearly all students who had "gone steady" against their parents' wishes were maladjusted.

Answer to Question No. 3

True. The world today, is divided between Communists and Democrats. A democracy is, of course, government by the people. They hate each other. Communists would take away all liberty, Democrats would preserve all liberty. Socrates, Plato, Confucious, Jesus, Washington, Jefferson, and Franklin urged moderation in all government—and life. All wise men do.
