Today's Smile by Dick Turner

"What's it say about the weather, Fitz-Smedley—bullish or bearish?"

Soviet Spokesmen

IN PERMITTING 23 delegates from Soviet Russia's bloc of states to enter the United States, the government is admittedly giving free reign to Communist propaganda.

These individuals are to attend a meeting of the National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions and no one expects they will express any view except that dictated by the authorities in Moscow. However, if they were denied entry the U. S. government would be guilty of the very practices for which we condemn the U. S. S. R. Thus, the decision was the lesser of two evils.

Americans reading the forthcoming accounts of the conference, we believe, will be capable of appraising them at the true worth. The time has long passed when the informed citizens of this country or any of the western countries stupidly succumb to the exaggerations of Soviet spokesmen.—Oakland Tribune.

Questions, Answers

Institution Devoted to Safety

By HASKIN

A reader can get the answer to any question of fact by writing the Long Beach Press-Telegram Information Bureau, 918 Era St., N. E., Washington 2, D. C. Please inclose three (3) cents for return postage.

Q. PLEASE GIVE some information about the Underwriters' Laboratory? H. H.

A. Originally sponsored by insurance companies, the Underwriters' Laboratories is now a self-supporting non-profit organization which, for more than 50 years, has been examining manufactured products to determine their safety. Research laboratories are maintained in New York, Chicago and San Francisco and there are representatives of the organization in 200 other cities in the United States and Canada. Approved products generally bear the UL label.

Q. What part of the snail is it that protrudes from the shell? T. N. A.

A. The part that protrudes is the foot, upon the forward end of which is the head. The visceral hump, containing most of the internal organs, is contained in the shell.

Q. How much danger from lightning is there if the aerial of a television set is not grounded? C. M.

A. The National Bureau of Standards says that a television antenna mounted on the roof of a house is usually supported by a vertical metal rod. The metal rod should be effectively grounded for lightning protection. The transmission line leading from the antenna to the television receiver should have a television-line lightning arrestor located outside the building near the point where the transmission line enters.

Q. How is it possible for a large snake to be tied into several knots and manage to untie itself without harm? L. N. E.

A. A snake can be none the worse for having been tied in two or three knots because of the large number of bones or vertebrae in its back, not because there is a great deal of freedom of movement between the individual vertebrae. The bones of a snake's back are nearly alike from the neck to the end of the body and in some species there are more than 300 of them.

Elephant Will Be Award on Radio Giveaway Show

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK. (AP) It is welcome news indeed that a radio giveaway show is offering a live elephant as a prize.

This is a milestone in the field of education. Wait and see.

To win the elephant all you have to do is answer a phone call and identify a certain tune played on a certain program. This requires no Tuscanini knowledge of music. It requires no long hours of library research.

The correct answers to these radio quiz contests now are printed in $1 tip sheets, hawked on the streets around Broadway's neon temples. They are much more accurate than the four-bit tout cards peddled at most race tracks.

The offer of a free elephant is a sure sign that at last the radio giveaway programs are growing up. The industry is maturing. For too long they have competed to see which could give away the oddest assortment of zany prizes. A typical package might include a trip to the South Pole, four prassiers, a motor car, 200 used pogo sticks, a sow complete with litter, a refrigerator, a stove, a motor car and a leaky Liberty ship.

The winner of such a package was no longer a human being. He became a human hock shop, frantically seeking bidders for his impractical loot.

This chaos is reduced to order at one master stroke by the offer of an elephant. A live whale as first prize would have been only an elfin gesture. All a man can learn from a whale is how to swim.

But an elephant—there's something really practical. It points up anew how barren have been the rewards of higher learning in America till now. In its 336 years Harvard University has never seen fit to offer its graduates an elephant. No, it gives nothing but a broad "A" accent and a paltry sheepskin. They even remove the wool from the sheepskin — wool with which a handy Harvard man could easily weave himself a suit.

Yet Harvard has an endowment of about $160,000,000. It is no wonder, perhaps, considering the tight-fisted largesse of wealthy universities, that more and more thoughtful and ambitious Americans are turning to radio giveaway programs. Here a man's brainpower is exchanged for honest value.

Some may wonder why the award of an elephant over the air is of historic importance. They may recall that in Siam a wealthy man often took revenge upon his poorer neighbor by giving him a white elephant. The white elephant was sacred. And the poverty-stricken neighbor sank into ruin as the elephant ate him out of house and home.

But an elephant—white or gray, not pink—would be a real economic asset in any American home today. Elephants make wonderful baby sitters, and all they ask is hay. As any parent knows, what baby sitters ask nowadays certainly ain't hay.

Elephants also are more handy around the home than a husband. They will move heavy furniture about all day long without complaining. They can be taught to sweep, spray dirty dishes, dust rooms. They are loyal and won't gossip about your household affairs, as some maids have been known to do.

An elephant won on the radio should be regarded, for tax purposes, as a capital gain rather than as pure income. The owner could read him the encyclopedia—or send him to Harvard. After that he could become quickly wealthy by letting the elephant, a beast of fabulous memory, compete for him on the radio giveaways.

Who knows? Some day they may put a human being up as first prize—and an elephant will win him.

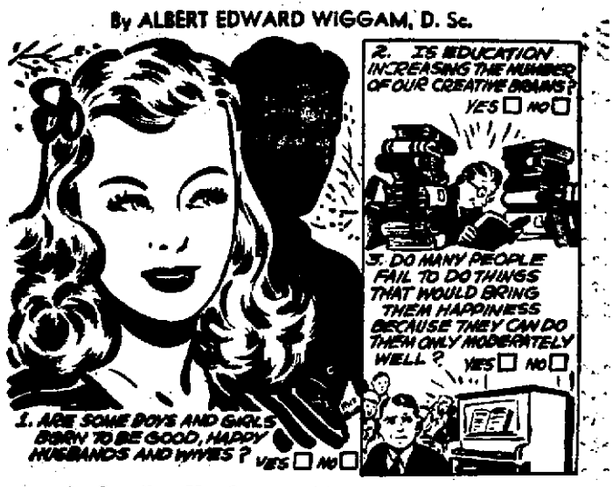
Let's Explore Your Mind

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.



Answer to Question No. 1

Yes. Some people are born with happier temperaments than others. But environment can spoil the best temperatments and improve the worst. In her wise book, "Life With Family," Jean Shick Grossman said to her maid, "It's wonderful, isn't it, that my daughter is still in love with her husband"? "Why shouldn't she be?" replied the maid. "She was born to it, wasn't she? She's seen it around her all the time." Think this over, you ornery husbands and frigid tempery wives who never show love for each other.

Answer to Question No. 2

Yes, to some extent, but not fast enough. The U. S. Office of Research and Developments says: "Our current need for creative brains is not being met." One-third of the top men in Army tests had only high school education or less. Thus, one-third of our ablest young men with the finest personalities and most stable characters are not given advanced education. Our first and cheapest step for defending our nation is to find these men and give them advanced training.

Answer to Question No. 3

Yes, because they fear they will be criticized or ridiculed. Philosopher Harry Overstreet says we want to be perfect and if we can't be some of us refuse to try. To salve our egos we retreat into envy or self-pity or claim we had no chance." Overstreet set up a little workshop, where anyone could come and try painting or modelling with no instructor or critics. The result was a new life for many. One woman who had been afraid to try modelling made a bucking bronco so fine people said, "Look out it'll kick!" Others developed unsuspected talents. If you're unhappy, do something . . . get a hobby and let the critics go hang!

WHY BECOME BALD?
Heed these Danger Signals
Choose Thicker Hair—NOT Baldness!
Baldness can be prevented! Danger signals, such as (1) thinning hair; (2) scalp itch; (3) dandruff, should warn you that you need to act immediately to avoid baldness. Do as a half-million other persons have done—let Thomas rid your scalp of baldness-producing local disorders, and then stimulate normal hair growth for you.
Come in today and see how the reliable Thomas method (A) conquers 14 local scalp disorders; (B) corrects abnormal dryness or oiliness; (C) helps your hair grow thicker, as Nature intends it should. Only Thomas offers you the technical skill and "know-how" which comes from 25 years of success. Consult a Thomas expert today—without charge—let him show you exactly how Thomas can help you get rid of imbedded dandruff and stimulate hair growth so you won't become bald. Remember—scalp examination is free.
★ Important—Thomas offers only professional service, given exclusively in Thomas offices.
