State Asked to Find 'Liberties' Document

BOSTON—(U.P.)— Massachusetts may be in the market for the original copy of a measure approved by the general court of the Bay colony in 1641.

When Judge Daniel J. Gillen of Boston municipal court heard that an original of the "Body of Liberties" had been found in England and given to the Huntington museum and gallery in Pasadena, Calif., he asked the Massachusetts state legislature to search for and buy one for the state.

This Evening is Set Aside for Glimpse at New Year's Opportunities; Predict Yours

What will 1950 bring for you? If from it you gain one new friend, it will be a good New Year.

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

The Powers Girls and I sat down together the other day to discuss the New Year's greetings we wanted to send to all our friends. We compiled a bunch of telegrams that are going to keep the delivery boys hustling all day tomorrow.

The New Year's greeting is a mighty fine custom. Certainly, it comes awfully close on the heels of Christmas messages but it's not the same thing at all. On Dec. 25th, you're looking backward over your shoulder at a year that is behind you so that you can share your warm feelings of the remembrance with dear friends.

But on Jan. 1st, facing straight forward, you have a great opportunity to wish with all your heart the future good health, good fortune, and good life for your friends and your neighbors everywhere in the world.

As the Powers Girls made up their list of folks they wanted to include in their good wishes you might have been surprised to see your name. Right at the top under "Friends" came, "Our Readers".

Of course, I wasn't a bit surprised because I already knew that the girls have come to feel with me that you are very close to us. We know it for sure from all the letters we receive from you every day from every corner of the country. It maks us feel warm and wanted and wonderful.

For this reason, the girls felt that no ordinary greeting, no matter how heartfelt, would do. So they set about composing something special for you. It tickled me when I saw them put their heads together so seriously.

Here's what they finally came up with after long deliberation. I hope you find their hearts in it, because they're there!

Crippled Miner Proves Schooling Pays Off

HERRIN, Ill. — (U.P.) — J. H. Graves, a former coal miner who is a firm believer in education, boasts that his four children have spent a total of 75 years in school.

Graves' youngest son completed his schooling only this year. Graves has had no steady employment since he lost his leg in a mine accident in the early '30s.

Two of his boys, Harold and Allen, have doctor of divinity degrees, James is a physician, and a daughter, Rachel, holds a PhD.

"I missed an education myself," Graves said. "I know what it means."
