RELIGION AND TV: Radio is only whistling in the dark when it insists that television will not replace it in the immediate future, the Rev. Everett C. Parker, director of the Protestant Radio commission, declared at the opening meeting of the Fifth Annual Religious Radio Workshop at Temple university.

With rural as well as city dwellers owning television sets throughout the country, he pointed out, religion must be adequately represented in this new medium.

"The churches will not be denied access to the people of America through this medium of television which is, in truth, a gift from God," he added. "We will not bow before the demands that soap and cigarettes be first in people's thinking. Nor will the churches allow religious programming on television to be captured by so-called evangelists whose sole qualification is the ability to pay for net-work and station time."

To meet the demands of religious television programming, Mr. Parker recommended the use of good religious film produced according to good television standards. He spoke of the beginning that has already been made in the field by the Protestant radio commission with its films of Biblical stories enacted by puppets.

Rotary Club Hears Aircraft Industry's Potentials for War

The nation's aircraft industry is not as well geared for war as it was at the time of Pearl Harbor, an aviation authority told members of the Madison Rotary club at its noon meeting Wednesday in the Park hotel.

The speaker was Harvey Stowers, Los Angeles, assistant to the president of the Aircraft Industries assn.

Stowers pointed out, however, that the U. S. aircraft industry is in far better shape for an emergency expansion than it was two or three years ago, or in 1939 when Hitler first started his aggression.

This recent improvement in the industry was largely due to action of congress following the reports of the Congressional Aviation Policy board and the Air Policy commission, Stower pointed out.

He emphasized that it is the responsibility of the aircraft industry to organize manpower, money, machines, material, and plant facilities to produce the greatest volume of aircraft in the least possible time and at the least possible cost.

Enrolments Lifted for Officer Corps

The ceiling on enrolments in the University of Wisconsin's Army Reserve Officers Advanced Training corps has been raised by a minimum of 50 to a new high of at least 545 cadets, Col. Winfred Skelton, commandant, announced Wednesday afternoon.

The change was authorized by Fifth army headquarters when many more qualified Wisconsin students applied last June for advanced training than could be accepted under the old quota of 495. Col. Skelton has been authorized to request an even higher quota if the demand continues to grow.

Under present regulations, advanced corps cadets are exempt from draft. Only high-ranking basic course graduates are accepted in the advanced corps. Cadets who successfully complete advanced course work are offered reserve army commissions.
