TIP O' THE MORNING: If "The Petite Waltz" continues to pile up sales, look for somebody to write lyrics.

* * *

Jose Limon and his company of dancers brought tragedy of heroic proportions and fantastic comedy to the stage of the Wisconsin Union theater Tuesday night, regaling an audience of 1,100 persons with a variety of forms and stories.

Besides Limon, the group consisted of Pauline Koner, whose remarkably mobile and expressive face complemented her dancing and pantomimic abilities; Lucas Hoving, an adept performer whose build and coloring helped make him a perfect foil for Limon; Betty Jones, a graceful and fragile girl; Ruth Currier, a first-rate ensemble dancer, and Simon Sadoff, a fine accompanist.

Limon himself showed many facets of his skill—as mimic, as tragedian, as comedian, as an inventive choreographer, and as a dancer with superb control and a feeling for what in music would be called the "melodic line."

His own "The Moor's Pavane," particularly imaginative work, telling the familiar story of Othello in a set of variations on the pavane, a slow and stately dance. Sadoff's arrangement of Purcell music set the scene well.

Dances on Bach preludes and fugues opened the recital with a grouping of abstractions, in which the dancers set up interweaving patterns, and a variety of ideas, from the serene to the frivolous, in solo and group compositions. In the mood of strolling players, Limon, Hoving, and Miss Koner told a Mexican legend in the colorful "La Malinche."

And there was rich fun in "The Story of Mankind," in which Limon and Miss Koner told the rise of man from cave to penthouse, and his return to the cave as he groveled in unreasoning fear before the threat of the atom.

ART: Four members of the University of Wisconsin art education faculty are represented in shows in Pennsylvania, California, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

Among the 511 works in the 48th annual Exhibition of Water Colors and Prints at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia, are entries of Warrington Colescott, John Wilde, and Dorothy Zupancich.

Colescott's water color, "Shoveling the Walk," is one of 109 pictures in the 30th annual exhibition of the California Water Color society at Pasadena.

Leonard Good has two paintings in the 32nd annual exhibition of the Association of Oklahoma Artists in Oklahoma City and two in the Prairie Art Group show at Wichita, Kans. Good came to Wisconsin this year from the University of Oklahoma.
