TIP O' THE MORNING: A tribute to the memory of Prof. Philo M. Buck, Jr., will be broadcast at 3:30 p. m. Friday by WHA—on which he was one of the most popular lecturers.

* * *

Every quality one could want in a musician, regardless of his instrument, was found Wednesday night in Dame Myra Hess by an audience of 1,200 which was, by turns, enchanted and excited by her piano playing.

There was something intimate about the concert, despite the size of the Wisconsin Union theater and the number of listeners, despite the feeling of majesty and might which Dame Myra often gave. It was like being in a drawing room with a gracious and talented hostess who was playing just for you, caressing the keys lovingly, or evoking massive, virile sound.

From the grace and elegance of a Bach sarabande to the witty and sometimes caustic comments of Schumann's "Carnaval," Dame Myra ran the gamuts of emotions and manners.

So different were the works that one could not say "this was best" or "that was best." Each work, in its own way, was the peak of enjoyment for the moments it occupied, and each left its impress on the memory. Hardly had the statelness of the sarabande left when the pianist turned out a vivid "Toccata in G Major." Then came Mozart, with the intertwining melodies, the superb climaxes of the "Sonata in C Minor."

And, to end the first portion of the program, there was the monumental, magical Beethoven "Sonata, Opus 109"—one of the last three of his 32 for the keyboard—marked by intricacies of writing and playing which became no less than thrilling.

Here, then, was everything, played superlatively.

But the audience, filled with what it had heard wanted more. Dame Myra gave in encores, some "gentle music"—Granados' "The Maiden and the Nightingale," a Scarlatti sonata, Brahms' C-major intermezzo, and Bach's "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring."

After the quiet beauty of that Bach, more music might have been sacrilege.

In a brief chat with her audience before the program began, the artist said that she didn't like listeners who talked; that she had injured a finger, so some notes might come out wrong; that she would have music in front of her because it helped her relax—"I know the pieces," she added.

YULETIDE MUSIC: The 70-voice Philharmonic chorus of Madison will sing the first of its two Madison concerts of the season at 8 tonight in West high school, with Pianist Leo Steffens as guest soloist. Robert Petzold will conduct the program, made up of Christmas-season music.

MOVIE MEMOS: Edith Gwynn, State Journal correspondent, reports from Hollywood . . .

Paulette Goddard leaving for holiday hoop-la in Mexico City, says she may go to Europe to star with Maurice Chevalier in a picture that her best beau Cy Howard ("My Friend Irma"—and other girls) is dreaming up.

The movie Mickey Rooney made in Mexico recently, originally tagged "Rio Grande," is now "My Brother, the Outlaw."

John Barrymore, Jr., is bewildered by all those items about him pub-crawling with various femmes. Most of 'em the 18-year-old Jawn has never met.

Irony in the news: Richard Long finishes his stint in "Air Cadet" this week; then reports immediately for army induction.

Personal opinion: That Margaret Truman has been given a more stupendous publicity break by her Pa these past few days, than any singer ever dreamed of or prayed for. Now a mere few million who otherwise might not be listening, will lend an ear to her notes—just to hear if what that critic said was true or flat! Or sharp! Why should Margaret cancel her coming tour, as "predicted"? After all, she seems to have a sense of humor.

Paramount has the important "Submarine Story" (Bill Holden, John Lund, Bill Bendix) shooting. Now Monogram has scheduled "Submarine Story," to star Wayne Morris.

John Carroll, with no cinema chores at the moment, goes on a stage tour showing off his very good singing voice, starting first week in January. But first, he'll show off another talent he's more proud of than anything. And that is his cooking! He's giving an exhibition feast at a small local cafe he's hired, with most of his mixings flown in from New Orleans for the special Creole dishes he'll personally prepare. Judges and "consumers" will be such chums of his as the John Waynes, the Walt Disneys, Alice Faye and Phil Harris, the John Irelands, the H. Bogarts, and Brod Crawford.

Olga San Juan lost out to Barbara Lawrence as the the fourth femme cast in the star-studded "Two Tickets to B'way," but, nothing daunted, has taken off for "The Main Stem" to puruse a play offer from Cheryl Crawford. "Paint Your Wagon," Hubby Edmond O'Brien has gone along to look into the matter.

THE WORLD OF MUSIC: A foundation to perpetuate the works and memory of Bela Bartok, Hungarian composer, is being set up.

Prominent musicians and the American Guild of Musical Artists are promoting it. Among the objectives are publication of three Bartok works still in manuscript; recordings of his unpublished works; a memorial archive devoted to the world literature of recorded music; an annual Bartok memorial concert; music fellowships at universities or libraries, and an award to a composer or to performing artists.

To further the project, Yehudi Menuhin has offered to donate the proceeds of a special concert which he will give in San Francisco in the middle of next season.

'Messiah' Soloist Is Ex-U. W. Girl

MARJEAN MOORE

Marjean Moore, soprano who will be soloist in "The Messiah" at the Masonic auditorium at 3 p.m. Sunday, is a former Evansville resident, a former University of Wisconsin student, and the daughter of a Madison woman, Mrs. Blanche Moore, 310 S. Bassett st.

Besides that, she has been a member of one of the nation's top singing groups—the Robert Shaw Chorale—since it was founded in the spring of 1948, and was a frequent soloist in that chorus' nationwide radio series two years ago.

Miss Moore's voice is recorded on discs made by the Chorale for two major recording companies, some now available and some still to be released.

Among them are Bach's B-Minor mass, Brahms' "German Requiem," Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols," and albums of hymns and carols.

Miss Moore attended Evansville graded and high schools and studied at the University of Wisconsin in 1940-41, when she was a member of a campus chorus.

From here she went to Princeton, N. J., where she was a member of the Westminster choir, and thence to New York, where she sang with the Collegiate Choral, National Art chorus, Columbia chorus of the Columbia Broadcasting system, and other groups.
