Explosive Issue of More Cash for States' Schools Facing California Solons

By WILLIAM H. ALLEN

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 24. (AP) Do California's public schools need more money—$50,500,000, say, to do a satisfactory job of educating the constantly growing crop of children? And if so, will it take additional taxes to provide the extra millions?

That promises to be the most explosive single educational issue that will face state legislators when they return here next month.

(A veteran leader in school legislation will be missing. Sen. Chris N. Jespersen (R-Alameda) died suddenly Wednesday night. Other members probably will hand in his many school bills.)

One bill (AB 1981) proposes to raise the level of state support to schools by $50,500,000 and to finance the increase by a 2-cents a pack tax on cigarettes. A similar measure got through the assembly but died in the senate last year.

The author, Assemblyman Francis Dunn (D-Oakland), says he won't press for the cigarette tax unless it's clear the proposed expenditures can't be met from existing state revenues.

EXTRA MONEY

Dunn's bill would provide $30,000,000 without tax increases for elementary schools, $7,500,000 for high schools and $13,000,000 for junior colleges plus some extra money for things like transporting pupils to and from school.

(The school support of $229,000,000 accounts for more than one-fifth of the Warren 1951 budget.)

[illegible] AB 1926 (Geddes) [illegible] motor vehicle fees [illegible] for [illegible] schools.

[illegible] of grants [illegible] growing school [illegible] Robert [illegible] State [illegible] based on the number of pupils in average daily attendance during the past school year. The Geddes bill would make it the current school year instead.

[illegible] Colgan [illegible] of [illegible] Dunn [illegible] increase the minimum salary for credentialed teachers from $2400 to $3000 a year (AB 1562, Geddes).

Require the Division of Architecture—which passes on school plans for earthquake proofness—to approve applications for alterations if the changes would increase safety even though they would not bring a building up to the division's standards (AB 2425, Luckel, by request).

O. K. high school fraternities and sororities (AB 1085, Brown).

state school building fund—most of which has been committed—and a measure to put another $150,000,000 bond issue on the ballot (ACA 46, Gaffney).

SENATE MEASURE

A public school building authority is proposed in a Senate measure (SB 1465, Jespersen). The authority would have broad powers to issue bonds to construct school buildings which would be paid for over a number of years by school districts.

The superintendent of public instruction, now elected by the people, would be appointed by an elective board of education under as assembly measure (ACA 31, Kirkwood).

Kirkwood also wants to set up a state college board to plan for improvements of the state college system.

Proposed new educational institutions include these:

A California School of Mines in eastern Kern County (SB 152, Dorsey, and AB 27, Kelly); a state college at or near Modesto (AB 4, Brown); an aviation school at the University of California College of Agriculture, Davis (SB 1128, Coombs); a state rehabilitation center for physically handicapped children and adults (AB 3315, Dunn).

A revolving fund to make loans of up to $500 to deserving high school seniors to allow them to go to college is suggested (AB 2119, Knecht).

The legislators have bills to make student body fees at state colleges mandatory. The federal government has refused to pay these fees for veterans attending college under the GI Bill of Rights because they were optional.

OTHER BILLS

Other school bills would:

Raise the age at which children can enter kindergarten and the first grade by three months (present limits are four and one-half and five and one-half years, respectively); set up a salary scale for county schools superintendents, ranging from $4000 a year in the smallest counties to $16,000 in the biggest (AB 380, Dunn);

Guinea Pig Tests Urged in Fight Against Smog

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24. (AP) Animal experimentation for indirect determination of the effects of smog on humans is proposed by the Los Angeles County Medical Association.

Outlining the plans, Dr. Fred Bryan of University of California at Los Angeles told a group of chest disease specialists yesterday that $430,000 would be needed to start the project and carry it for one year.

Rats, guinea pigs, rabbits and perhaps cats would be used. They would be placed in special smog exposure chambers.

"If we really want to know what, if anything, smog does to humans, animal experimentation is the only answer," Dr. Bryan said. "We don't dare subject human 'guinea pigs' to concentrations of particular suspected irritants in smog."

Gordon P. Larson, county smog control director, told the meeting that progress is being made but "Los Angeles must look ahead at least 50 years if it is to solve this air pollution problem."
