Bill Doudna's Spotlight

'Mr. Roberts'

The legendary Lieut (J.G.) Douglas Roberts of the United States navy—"Mr. Roberts" to his captain, his crew, and thousands upon thousands of readers and playgoers—joined the company of great theatrical characters in the eyes of a Madison audience Monday night.

Henry Fonda played—or, rather, lived—the beloved cargo officer of the AK-602 for a capacity crowd of 1,30 at the Wisconsin Union theater. More will see the drama today and tonight, and Wednesday afternoon and night.

Don Fellows, Madison man making his first professional appearance here, received the audience's applause when he stepped on the stage and most certainly shared in the blast of clapping at the play's end.

One should see "Mr. Roberts" twice, because its uproarious comedy almost overshadows the basic story and the fundamental idea. Crammed with hilarious episodes, this dramatization of Tom Heggen's novel still has wisdom and pathos and a sensitiveness to the affections which grow in a man's world.

These things, rather than the rough, earthy humor, are what stay with you and are what make you want to see the play again so that you may savor them fully.

Much of the play's effectiveness is in the theater-conscious writing of Heggen and Joshua Logan—its sharp contrasts of gaiety and sadness; its efficient use of situations to emphasize both, with scarcely an unnecessary word or action.

Much also comes from the split-second timing in Logan's direction, the dramatic settings by Jo Mielziner, and the smooth backstage operation which makes amazingly rapid scenic changes.

But without honest, perceptive playing all this would have been flat.

"Mr. Roberts" is the story of a navy officer who wars with his arrogant captain over the right of his men to a fair break occasionally; who trades his own desire for transfer to a combat ship for one tremendous night of liberty for his men; who finds that they, learning of his sacrifice, have risked imprisonment to get him what he wants.

Seldom has the stage given us a more heart-warming scene than that in which the crew presents Mr. Roberts with a shop-made medal commemorating his destruction of a palm tree beloved by the captain but hated by the men; or a more violent combination of fun and sudden maturity than the final one in which Ensign Pulver (played by Fellows) goes to bat for Mr. Roberts' men.

In the cast of 21 men and one woman (a nurse who discovers the men have been spying on the hospital's shower room with binoculars), there was scarcely an actor who didn't contribute much to the play.

Sharing honors with Fonda and Fellows were, in particular, Robert Burton as the sympathetic and philosophical Doc; Curtis Cooksey as the fire-breathing captain, and Ed Moroney as the omnipresent Dolan, writer of Roberts' many pleas for transfer.

MUSIC BY HAGEN: Prof. Oskar Hagen's "Concerto Grosso" for nine soloists and orchestra will be played by the Michigan State College orchestra in a concert Sunday at East Lansing, Mich. Alexander Schuster will conduct the program.

The work was first performed in 1946 in Frankfurt, Germany. Its first American performance was in Madison last October, when it was played by the Madison Civic Symphony orchestra under Walter Heermann.

The concert will be broadcast by WKAR (870 kc.) and WKAR-FM (90.5 megs.)

What kind of a....outfit is this?
I'M ZACK...a retread sergeant from the last war. If you're smart, you live; if you're dumb, you die. Me? I'm comin' out of this alive!
I'M THE CONCHIE...but that was in the last war. If a guy's house is in danger he has to fight for it.
I'M DRISCOLL...the chicken-fed lieutenant. I had to kill a Red and earn the right to wear a steel pot.
I'M THOMPSON...the medic. In North Africa I hustled trucks; in Germany I romanced a rifle; in Korea I'm jumping to the tune of, "Hey! Medic..!"
I'M BUDDHA-HEAD...the bazooka man. I was weaned in Europe against the Nazi Krauts and now I'm fighting for my life against Korean Reds.
I'M BALDY...the replacement. The men are separated from the boys quick here. I was lucky and lived to talk about it.
I'M JOE...a G. I. dogface. We live a dog's life, eat dog biscuits, wear dog tags.
I'M SHORT ROUND...short, because I didn't go all the way with this outfit.
HATS OFF! To the roughest, toughest bunch of guys who ever called themselves U. S. INFANTRY!
It's the REAL Korean story!
