Snake Fancier, 16, Cancels Boa; Says Neighbors' Views 'Medieval'

NORWICH, March 15—(UP) A teenage would-be snake trainer glumly concluded today that the attitude of some of his neighbors was "medieval" as he abandoned plans to import a boa constrictor from Kansas to augment his backyard reptile "farm".

Donald Gilley, 16, who dreams of the day he'll be a professional snake expert, was aghast that a State legislator even went so far as to introduce a bill restricting the importation of poisonous or otherwise harmful reptiles.

"I'm awfully sorry he did it," Donald said. "I've already canceled my boa constrictor order because I didn't want any hard feelings." He already has a collection of native reptiles, including poisonous copperheads which he found in his neighborhood.

Nearly residents took a chilly view of the boy's plans to house a boa in the neighborhood, but Donald claimed the snake education of some of them was sadly lacking.

"Some thought that boas, which have no venom, were the most poisonous snakes there are," he pointed out. "Others believed the boa would carry in polio or even cancer."

"The boa," he added casually, "merely squeezes its victims to death."

From Wales' highest point of 3,560 feet at Snowdon, England, Scotland, Ireland, and Man may be seen.
