Unfenced Hole Owner Convicted of Violating Law

Loy L. Smith, 47, of 1851 Lime Ave., was found guilty by Judge Dana Williams in Signal Hill Justice Court yesterday of charges that he violated the County "Kathy Fiscus Ordinance" by failing to fence or fill an excavation on his land just west of the San Gabriel River near Del Amo St. in Lakewood.

Defense Atty. Charles E. Smith requested and was granted continuation of sentence until May 11 at 10 a. m.

County Ordinance 5307, adopted after the tragic death of Kathy Fiscus in an abandoned San Marino well, requires that excavations near residential areas must be fenced to prevent access by humans or animals; or must have banks sloped at an angle of one foot or less vertical drop to four feet horizontal. Under water, the slope must be one foot or less vertical to two feet horizontal. Smith was arrested April 14 by the sheriff's department on charges that his property did not conform to these requirements.

The defense attorney based his case yesterday on claims that the ordinance is unreasonable because it would impose undue hardship on Loy Smith, who claimed that he had no money to fence or fill the pit. The attorney also claimed that the ordinance was unconstitutional.

Feb. 3, Roger Lee Mayon, 10, of 1210 Marwick Ave., Lakewood, was drowned while playing in water in the excavation.

Six hundred of the 1500 AFL strikers heeded pleas of their union leaders and job stewards to return to work, pending action by the Wage Stabilization Board on a disputed wage increase. Others were expected to return today.

The issue that touched off the strike was a wage negotiated last September to become effective last Tuesday. Maxon Construction Co., project contractor, insisted on waiting for WSB approval before paying the boost.
