JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby

An honest opponent is sometimes worth his weight in gold. When you are wondering how to play a hand, you are delighted to see signals from an opponent who is in the habit of telling the truth. Today's hand, played by Charles Hall of Cincinnati in last year's summer national championships, illustrates the point.

West opened the king of spades, and Hall decided not to take his ace immediately. East signaled enthusiastically with the ten of spades on the first trick, so West continued with the queen of spades.

This time, naturally enough, South took the trick with the ace. East's signal, asking for a continuation of spades, indicated that East intended to ruff the second spade. Obviously East had the jack of hearts, so Hall led a third spade and ruffed with dummy's ace.

He then returned the king of hearts from dummy and took a finesse by overtaking with the ten of his own hand.

When this finesse held, declarer drew the rest of the trumps with the king and queen.

Only nine tricks were secured at this point, and Hall might have been planning to take a club finesse in the attempt to win his 10th trick except for the fact that East had made another revealing signal in the meantime.

When South ruffed his third spade with dummy's ace of hearts, East carefully discarded the jack of clubs. This indicated that East had strength in clubs, and since East was a very honest player, Hall believed him.

For lack of any better plan, declarer laid down the ace of diamonds and led another diamond out of his hand. East had to win with the king of diamonds and return a club up to dummy's ace-queen, thus giving declarer his 10th trick.

East's defense was rather inept, but he could not have saved himself by dropping the king of diamonds under South's ace. A diamond continuation by South towards dummy's jack would permit West to take the queen of diamonds and a spade trick, but then dummy would furnish declarer's 10th trick in the shape of the jack of diamonds.

Burke Legion Post Announces Officers

A new American Legion post, called Town of Burke Post No. 661, formed on Madison's East Side, has announced the election of charter officers.

They are: Fred Zenk, sgt. at arms; William Fisher, first vice-commander; Robert Black, second vice-commander; Marvin Bass, adjutant; Dale Gannon, finance officer; Orlyn Krenz, historian; Cornelius Howard, chaplain; John Henry, sergeant-at-arms; John Schaps, assistant sergeant-at-arms; Harold Kneller, service officer; Bill Lapham, publicity officer.

GOOD IDEA

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Each time this city completes 100 days without a fatal traffic accident the city officials order parking meters covered and declare a day's moratorium on parking fees.

Bill Boudreau's SPOTLIGHT

TIP O' THE MORNING: Feature of the 1954 edition of "Ice Capades" will be a 30-minute version of the Walt Disney "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

• • •

TWO NEAR-CAPACITY audiences saw the 1953 edition of "The Greatest Show on Earth," Wednesday at Truax Field, and roundly applauded just about everything on the 160-minute program, from the miniature musician, Mr. Mistin Jr., to the ponderous pachyderms, known as elephants by everybody except press agents.

This year's Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus had thrills, beauty, and sheer massiveness. The quality of the performance was so high generally that one hardly noticed the fact that there was no one act of sensational calibre.

From about 4 a. m. Wednesday until early today, it was circus day for a good share of Madison's population and hundreds of visitors, as well. Scores saw the unloading operations at the Commercial ave. crossing of the North Western railway, watched the procession of wagons, with their still mysterious contents: trucks, elephants, horses, and people to the showgrounds.

There, more hundreds watched the tents go up and the cages and seats and other paraphernalia moved inside. By 1 p. m., when the doors opened, the lot was well filled with people, and the matinee attracted almost 9,000 persons. Scores of sketchers—students and "Sunday painters" were on hand, too.

Again at night, the tent was well filled, although attendance appeared to be slightly under the matinee figure. Then many stayed around to watch the dismantling (which had started during the performance) and others went to the railway tracks to see the wagons and trucks placed in proper order on the long flat cars, ready to move to LaCrosse for two shows today.

Mr. Mistin Jr., the widely-heralded musical prodigy, turned out to be a vigorous, vivacious lad of 5 who hammered the bejabers out of a xylophone, playing the "Poet and Peasant" overture and some popular songs with amazing dexterity. He invited the audience to sing, which it did.

"Candyland," the major spectacle, drew storms of applause for its brilliant costuming and its fast-moving panorama of childhood scenes—the little red schoolhouse, the Land of Oz, the Wild West, the show boat—and its depiction of such characters as Tom Sawyer, Peter Rabbit, Kukla and Ollie, and Rip Van Winkle.

Other high points of the long program included:

Oscar Konyot's lions, so anxious to perform that they started doing high hurdles before the trainer entered the cage; presented with a touch of comedy, rare in such turns; and climaxing the act with leaps over Konyot, claws on the cage's bars;

Albert Rix's handstanding, cycling, and somersaulting bears;

Tell Teigen, balancing on four chairs atop a 40-foot pole;

Miss Mara's startling drops on the trapeze, catching herself by the bare heels;

Tassi and his hat-stealing dog, and Hammerschmidt's popular monkeys with their bedtime antics;

Harry and Long, comedy and skill on the parallel bars;

Czesian Mroczkowski's featured horse, lying immobile on his back while the trainer whipped out a candle balance on the animal's hoof;

Pinto del Oro's thrilling trapeze balancing, with a head stand as the climax,

Pinito del Oro's thrilling trapeze balancing, with a head stand as the climax;

Dieter Tasso, tossing seven cups, seven saucers, a lump of sugar, a coffee pot, and a spoon to the top of his head while he swayed on a slack wire;

Roberto de Vasconcellos' high school horses;

The balancing Heltanos, with two upside-down slides on a wire;

The Flying Palacios, real trapeze thrillers, with twisting fliers safely caught;

The Camillo Mayer troupe, chilling the audience with high-wire feats.

And so on, and on . . . with Otto Griebling's untiring clowning before and during the show, Emmett Kelly's funny-sad face, Merle Evans' wonderful music . . . and on, and on.

Yes, sir, it was quite a show.

IN DOOR COUNTY: With Thor Johnson as director, the first Peninsula Music festival will open tonight in the Gibraltar high school, near Fish Creek and Ephraim in Door county.

JOHNSON

The Wisconsin-born conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra has organized an orchestra of 40 professional musicians for the event. Among his soloists will be Frank Glazer, pianist; Lois Marshall, soprano, and Louis Sudler, baritone. The American Woodwind quintet of Indiana university also will appear.

Thirty-three works will be performed in the eight concerts. They will include the first playing of Vittorio Giannini's "Divertimento" on Aug. 13.

Besides tonight, the evening programs will be on Aug. 8, 11, 13, and 15, and the matinees on Aug. 9, 14, and 16.

Upstate Indian Fined; High Court May Decide

ASHLAND (AP) — In a decision which may eventually find its way to the State Supreme Court, Municipal Judge Thomas Anich Wednesday found Ervin Wiggins, a Chippewa Indian, guilty of hunting deer in the closed season.

Wiggins admitted hunting deer June 16 but claimed the right to do so under an Indian treaty of 1854. He was hunting on taxable land within the Bad River Reservation.

Wiggins was given a choice of a $50 fine or 30 days in jail; but an immediate appeal to circuit court is expected.

AID TO ANIMALS

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP) — After a fire in the home of Lillian Clem here, firemen used an inhalator to revive a Pekingese dog, a Manchester terrier and two cats.
