Methodist Bishop Denounces McCarthy

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A Methodist bishop has denounced Sen. Joseph McCarthy and Rep. Harold H. Velde for "invasions of personal freedom" in their investigations into Communist activities.

Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke said the congressmen were tools of "right-wing subversives" who have adopted the same techniques employed by the forces which seek to destroy our government.

The churchman blasted the tactics used by McCarthy who heads the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee and by Velde who is chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

TIP O' THE MORNING: His work in "The Caine Mutiny" has brought to Fred MacMurray a starring role in "The Killer Wore a Badge."

STERLING performances by soloists and accompanists marked the University of Wisconsin chorus' presentation of Pachelbel's "Magnificat in C" and Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" Tuesday night in the Wisconsin Union theater under the direction of Prof. Paul Jones.

Bettina Biorksten, soprano, and Donn Weiss, bass, were particularly effective, giving to the Bach music a greater emotional impact and a finer feeling for dynamics than their companions.

Ralph Nielsen nevertheless offered a musically secure and technically sound performance with his now-familiar tenor voice, whose brilliant quality has been reported here in other years.

Nielsen and Mrs. Bjorksten showed their familiarity with the oratorio style, for both have sung in many. Weiss, a graduate student less experienced in the work, displayed a voice which has reached the maturity promised in his first appearances on the campus.

Undergraduate soloists were Mary Otto, whose rich and fluent alto was heard in the "Magnificat;" Dan Saunders, bass, who produced beautiful tone but who found the Pachelbel solos a bit beyond his most effective range; Ruth Zerler, with a light, pure, and accurate alto, and Helen Joos, soprano, who was a delightful echo of Mrs. Bjorksten.

Gertrude Stillman, organist, and Juliette Gerke, pianist, teamed perfectly in the accompaniments, playing sensitively and with a feeling for both contrast and merger of tone.

The chorus itself never reached the peaks to which the two works were entitled. There was some lovely singing in the Bach chorals, and a burst of the power inherent in so large a group—219 voices—when it sang the deservedly popular "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light."

The potential strength of the "Fecit Potentiam" of Pachelbel was passed up; on the other hand, the women's voices found the beauty of his "Suscepit Israel."

Mainly, however, the concert's success was in the hands of Mrs. Bjorksten, Weiss (their duet was the best thing of the evening), and Nielsen.
