Will this lower telephone ever stop ringing? Friends, Romans and otherwise, all of the transcontinental programs are arriving on the Pacific Coast one hour later owing to cessation of daylight saving time in the East. Amos 'n' Andy drop in on you at 8 instead of 7. And while we're talking about daylight, welcome to KHJ's Hallelujah Hour once more. Ken Niles is again taking up the microphone of ceremonies at 8 each morning except Sunday, starting today, and they've planned a program that will hold your dial.

Hallelujah Hour begins to tick again with Ted Osborne, Bobby Gross, the Three Cheers and the maneuvering quartet. You know it takes a mighty good team of entertainers to zip you up at 8 o'clock in the morning, particularly when they walk into a studio that's cold, everybody is sleepy and life is a task. And then they've got to approach the microphone and smile: so give them more than three cheers if they bring a bit of a smile to your face.

We'll tackle the balance of the features in today's Radio High Lights, but perhaps the romance-riven will be happy to know that Bing Crosby returns to KHJ today at 4 p.m. Yes, a handful of songs that whip romance into high speed.
