Pope Pius' Benediction to Be Broadcast at 3 A. M. Sunday

Nan Grey, above star of the Monday night NBC drama, "Those We Love," hadn't had a vacation in three years until her recent flying trip to Houston, Texas, her home town. Returning to Hollywood by air, she commended the plane's stewardess and persuaded her to play the other characters so Nan could make up for a rehearsal she missed.

The benediction by Pope Pius XI, bringing to a close the 34th International Eucharistic congress at Budapest, will be broadcast in the United States over NBC-WMAQ on Sunday beginning at 3 a. m. The National Broadcasting co. will open its networks three hours earlier than usual in order to broadcast the papal benediction. His Holiness will speak from the Vatican.

Washington

By Harlan Miller

Up in New York there's a financial gentleman who (believe it or not) hates Roosevelt. One day a friend espied a photograph of the president on the Roosevelt hater's desk.

"But why, feeling as you do, do you keep his picture on your desk?" asked the friend.

"Oh," said the hater, "I just keep it there to remind me to hate Roosevelt all day long, every minute."

With all the prattle about McNutt's "2% club" in Indiana, some politicians think the Hoosiers are piker.

Some of these politicians are expected to come to the aid of the party with contributions as high as 5 per cent of their pay checks.

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING: Only about one Annapolis midshipman in 70 ever becomes an admiral. . . Maybe American congressmen should have alternates, like members of Norway's parliament to vote on bills while they're at the ball game. . . Or away campaigning. . . Tom Corcoran, roving ambassador for the White House, occasionally refers to the president mystically as "The Top"—as "I'll see The Top about it tomorrow."

"Dutch boy and Katzenjammer's" To listen to Dr. Arthur Morgan, you'd think he has been the little Dutch boy with his thumb in the dike, saving the TVA, while his colleagues, Harcourt Morgan and Lilienthal, have been the Katzenjammer kids trying to douse him with water pistols and play all sorts of pranks on him. . . And at other moments he sounds like Capt. Katzenjammer in the act of spanking.

Not since Bryan, Volstead, and Dr. Townsend has there been such a monopoly of righteousness.

Sign of American decadence: The annual ball game between the house of representatives and the press gallery is now kittenball instead of the too, too strenuous regular, old-fashioned baseball. . . That must be the congressman's choice; the journalists seem as tough as ever. . . (Incidentally, I'll just mention this once that I hit a two-bagger in the press-solons tilt, and then say no more about it.)

By an odd coincidence, cases involving two lies were prominent in the news the last few days. One concerned a midshipman at Annapolis who tried to alibi about cutting a class, after three years and eight months at the naval academy, just four months from his graduation. He was dismissed from the service.

The other was the Nazi denial that Berlin was mobilizing troops at the Czech frontier, when Hitler actually was concentrating large contingents at the border.

No one fired the Nazi who told the lie. . . In fact, the British, tongue in cheeks, began to consider a Nazi proposal to "police" the Czech elections.

If diplomats gravely accept lies as instruments of national policy, it's inevitable that youngsters will begin to regard a good lie as good strategy.

Meanwhile, it's reasonable to believe that if this midshipman had been serving under the Nazis, he would have been promoted instead of fired.

Quite a few fathers and mothers of small children think an investigation of toys would go to the roots of things better than the current probe of TVA. They argue that the average tin toy costs from $1 to $5.

These toys go to pieces in the hands of the tots; they are filled with a sense of impermanence and futility, and grow up into the kind of adults who are content to see the world going to pieces in their hands. What they want congress to find out is why a $1 toy can't be made as honestly and ruggedly as a $1 kitchen utensil, tool or gadget for grownups. Why not a 25-cent toy, as strong as a 25-cent can opener?

France Sends Ships to Coastal Patrol

PERPIGNAN, FRANCO-SPANISH FRONTIER (U.P.)

The French government Friday dispatched warships to coastal waters, reinforced frontier patrol and anti-aircraft batteries pending an investigation of the bombing of Cerbere on the French side of the Spanish border.

Mayor Julien Cruzel of Cerbere informed Premier Edouard Daladier that "Italo-German airplanes" of the Spanish insurgents were responsible for Friday night's attack on the town during a fiesta in the market square.

Two persons, including a Frenchman were wounded and three houses were damaged when the insurgent air base at Majorca in the Balearic islands dropped 15 bombs near the railroad station—three-quarters of a mile from Spanish soil—and smashed several railroad coaches.

Premier Daladier immediately asked minister of navy Cesar Campinchi to dispatch several warships to Port Vendres, on the Mediterranean seven miles above the border town of Cerbere, and instructed the general commanding the 16th military district to proceed at once to Cerbere and investigate the bombing.

The Cerbere police prefect said that although the raiding planes could not be definitely identified, they undoubtedly were insurgent because Spanish loyalist anti-aircraft batteries across the border opened fire on them.

The planes, he said, probably dropped their bombs on the French town by mistake in an effort to escape the anti-aircraft fire.

Mayor Cruzel, in his report to the government, demanded increased protection for the people of Cerbere which is separated from the Spanish frontier town of Port Bou by a mile-long tunnel through the Col Des Balistres. Port Bou is 104 miles north of the Spanish loyalist capital at Barcelona.

The government in Paris was ready, if the reports of insurgent frontier violations were definitely proven, to protest strongly to Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime at Burgos.
