Ruffing Gets Eye After Batting Slump

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK—Red Ruffing was all alone in the Yankee dressing room between games Tuesday. He was sitting naked on a little stool cooling off before going back on the Yankee bench for the second game of the double-header between the Yanks and St. Louis Browns.

Red had just won the first game, 7-3, scoring his 12th triumph and his fourth in a row in the opener, and now he had to go back and wait around to see if he could help do anything about winning the second game. "I'm the only pitcher in baseball who doesn't get the rest of the day off after pitching the first game," said Ruffing. "But I like it. If I can go out there and get a hit and help some other pitcher win a game I'm happy. Because I know many times some relief pitcher goes in and saves a game for me."

Ruffing has long been classed as one of the best hitting pitchers in the majors. Pride in his stick-work almost got him in serious trouble with Col. Jacob Ruppert in the spring of 1937 when he held out and, during the negotiations, asked for a couple of extra thousand for his pinch-hitting.

Col. Jake was flabbergasted and asked: "What's this game coming to? First thing you know players will want to be paid extra for putting on their shoes, for getting homers, for making difficult catches. My answer to Ruffing is not a cent extra for anything."

Ruffing came to terms and had his best year in the majors, winning 20 games and losing 7 for a percentage of .741. Ruffing was especially proud of his 12th victory Tuesday because he came out of his batting slump and thumped out a pair of man sized doubles to drive in three runs and score one himself. Before the game his batting average was .111, but after the game it had climbed to .141.

"I didn't take batting practice for a month," said Ruffing. "When Grove struck me out the other day I made up my mind to get in batting practice and get my eye back. I was a little sore today when the Brown's pitcher walked Gordon to lead the bases and get at me. I really hit that ball."

Ruffing was referring to his 415-foot double over Mel Almada's head in center which cleared the bases off Bill Cox. Ruffing was tossed out trying to stretch it into a triple. His first double also was a hefty clout, traveling nearly 400 feet to left-center.

One of the clubhouse attendants came in and Red yelled, "What's the score?" "Two to nothing," he answered. "Yeah, but favor who," Red asked. "Us," the attendant replied. "Good," said
