Columbia Network to Inaugurate New Show, Variety Program

"So little Rosy is engaged . . . and to that swindler, that Merridew. Wa'al, I'd never have thunk it of her. Never!" Thus soliloquizes Aaron Slick, the honest rural hero of the production "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick," when he hears the bad news that the Widow Berry has been taken in by the wiles of the city slicker who is trying to do her out of her farm. "Aaron Slick," which has been played more than 25,000 times in hamlets throughout the country since its first performance in 1919, is the first of several similar, truly American, dramas which will be heard over WBBM tonight at 6.
