New Lisbon Grid Prospects Poor

NEW LISBON — Football prospects at New Lisbon high school are decidedly poor this year. Only five lettermen return from last year's entire squad; Coach A. E. York will have a heavy and rugged eleven but it will lack experience.

New Lisbon opens its season Friday night in a non-Juneau County league game at Sparta. It opens its conference schedule against Mauston, defending champion, at Mauston on Oct. 7. Squad members: Allen Marlon, Wallie Robertson, Pete Peterson, and Ken Bogert, ends; Stu Richard, Clayton Johnson, Elmer Johnson, Gerald Larson, Glenn Wagner, tackles; Art Johnson, Marvin Nuttal, Hugh Gibson, Bud Moran, and Conant Smith, guards; Jack Kallies and Bob Frank, centers; Henry (Heinie) Lukes, quarterback; Richard Kallies, Robert Plager, Fred Sharkey, Irvin (Snuffy) Goetz, and Robert Baugard.

New Lisbon's schedule: Sept. 23—at Sparta (night); Sept. 24—at Portage (night); Oct. 7—Mauston; Oct. 14—Neeshah; Oct. 21—Wisconsin Dells; here, Nov. 13—Mauston here.

Atlanta Attendance Drops, Still Leads

NASHVILLE, Tenn. —(INS)—The 1938 Southern association attendance, 1,013,231—showed an increase of 48,656 more than the total figure last year, Maj. Trammell Scott, rounding out his first year as president of the loop, announced here today. Chattanooga showed the largest increase, and the pennant-winning Atlanta Crackers the largest decrease, Scott said, explaining that the Crackers played seven less "home" games this year than last.

Despite the fact they showed the largest decrease in total attendance, Atlanta still led the league with a total of 331,363 customers — Approximately 90,000 more than the New Orleans Pelicans.

Three Timagami beauties

If there is any time in the fishing season more enjoyable than the early fall, we don't know of it. After the first frost has nipped the leaves, bringing out gorgeous tints of red and gold, the bass, pike and muskies really show fight. With the passing of scorching summer days the bothersome insect horde has gone. In from the deep holes swim the fish, eager to fallen before the freeze-up comes. No longer must we wake before the roosters or stay up at unceasing hours to coax the lethargic monsters to strike. No longer must we cope with sore teeth, soft flesh and generally jaded appetites. Cool waters now bring out the finest fighting spirit of the fish. By mid-October our sport will reach its annual peak. From now on the bass will be in the shallows, wallowing chubs and plugs with their early spring-time zest. And the chances of landing a big boy become greater as the days pass by. Shoot your casts right into the lily pads these days. Risk your plugs by flitting with the thickest weeds. That's where you'll find fall bass. Rig up the fattest frogs obtainable. Drop them on the pads and plop them into the water. Fall bass love a greenie feast. And pickerel, which you may have cussed as lazy during July and August, now are ready to double your pole and snap your line. Whether or not you are a hunter, give that rod a few more workouts before the snow begins to fly. The added ginger in the fighting qualities of all fish will give you a real treat! They luckily happened upon old

U. S., New Lisbon Dodge Land Damage Suits

NEW LISBON — Some of the farmers along the Lemonweir river here are wondering a bit about their governments, and who owns the dam? Their problem comes from the municipal dam, built with the aid of federal funds to create a park. The water went up, and some land went under. And now the farmers don't know whether to start damage action against the city or the federal government. Some of them said they asked the city, and the city said ask the federal government, and in turn the federal government said, go back to the city. Another difficulty is over flowage rights. The farmers contend that the old flowage rights going back to 1850 or so are void, but the city contends not.

Refrigerator Plays Mother to Chicks

PARIS, Tex. — (INS) — It hasn't been especially hot in this part of Texas this year—but just the same the cold storage eggs are hatching. A crate of eggs placed in a local cold storage vault one Sunday morning became a "mother" that night. Employees of the company investigated the mysterious "chicks" they heard coming from the crate and discovered that three baby chicks had made their way into the "cold" world.

Henry Armstrong Explains How He Developed Style

By JACK GUENTHER (The "Press Staff" Correspondent) LOS ANGELES, Cal. — (UP)—That intriguing, "how does Henry Armstrong do it?" was explained in party today by the triple-distilled champ himself. He claimed his unique style, which has been likened to a hurricane, a wind-mill, a buzz-saw, was the product of deliberate and scientific study. The mild-mannered colored boy added quickly, however, that it wasn't books he had studied, but a trio of prize fighters who have been distinguished in varying degrees. In order of importance, to Henry and not to boxing, they are Dave Abad, a featherweight; Jack Dempsey, a heavyweight; Maxie Rosenbloom, a light-heavyweight. Henry and his brother, Harry, thought of it in Pittsburgh. "It was after I was knocked out for the first and the last time," he said. "A port-sider, Al Irvina I think the name was, caught me in the stomach when I tired about the fourth round. I was disappointed and ready to go back to shining shoes, but Harry said, 'No, I was all right. I just needed a style.' I needed to learn to duck punches and yet inflict damage myself." Copied, but Changed So they saved pennies and went to see Abad fight Benny Bass. "Abad, you know, was one of the cleverest defensive fighters of the past decade. We liked his skill in slipping blows with a peculiar body roll. We thought this was effective. We tried it ourselves in a gym. Then we saw Abad fight Eddie Shea. There was one thing we didn't like. Abad slipped punches, but then he stopped and stepped back. Harry decided I should slip and then step in, rolling from side to side all the while. We practiced day after day but something still was missing. They luckily happened upon old

Buffalo Goes Into International Finals

BUFFALO — (UP)—Buffalo advanced to the International league playoff finals Sunday by handing Syracuse a fourth consecutive defeat, 5-3. It was the series' second mound victory for Ken Ash, Buffalo right-hander. He allowed nine of the 12 Syracuse hits before relieved in the ninth. Ash was aided by three double plays. Martin, Buffalo third baseman, and Mack, Syracuse first sacker, hit home runs. Buffalo will play the Rochester-Nebraska series winner to determine the league representative for the "little world series" with the American association champion.

Rochester Takes 3-1 Lead Over Newark

ROCHESTER, N. Y. — (UP)—The Rochester Red Wings took a commanding lead in the International league playoff series with the Newark Bears Sunday when they defeated the pennant winners for the third time, 5-3. With the champions having won only one game, Rochester needs only one more victory to qualify for the finals against Buffalo.

Mother Goat Tracks Down Kids

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — (INS)—Mother love proved more potent than law-enforcement officers when a thief took twin kids from their farm home here. Owner Jesse Amick immediately telephoned for police when disappearance of the kids was noted. Before the officers arrived he led the mother goat down the road hoping the animal would pick up the trail of her offspring. The goat sniffed her way to a shed where the kids had been held. The thief, however, sensing trouble had fled.
