Cal. Tech Is Worst in America

By JACK GUENTHER (United Press Correspondent) PASADENA, Cal. (U.P.)—Brothers, the millennium has arrived, and will Dana Bible of Texas and Babe Hollingbery of Washington State please take note. California Institute of Technology proudly claims title to the worst football record in America—and nobody wants to fire the coach.

Furthermore, and this is a body blow to jealous sons of Knox, Hobart and Albany colleges—all three renowned as incubators of the finest intercollegiate football assemblages in history, the Tech engineers don't stop claiming to be worst for this one year only.

They insist the honor be extended to last year the one before that and, in fact, to all seasons between 1932 and 1938, making them the worst for six years hand-running. Take a look at the record:

- 1. They've lost 20 straight games.
2. This year they've played 13 points. The opposition has scored 178.
3. In six years they've played 34 games. Results: Six victories, three ties and eight "no-decisions."

That last one slipped in by mistake," explained a spokesman who wouldn't permit use of his name. "We beat La Verne in that 34-7 one, and, you see, they don't play football at La Verne. Fact is they've disbanded the team at La Verne and that's one reason we have to pass the marks of Knox, Hobart and Albany with 27, 23 and 28 straight losses respectively. We don't have to play La Verne any more."

All these games have been lost to teams in Tech's own class; the reason is de-emphasis.

"W. L. Stanton, known as 'Fox' to the coaching profession, is the Tech coach," continued the spokesman. "There are hundreds of fans who vigorously maintain that 'Fox' Stanton would raise merry Ned in the football world if he had a few football players and wasn't forced to use students."

"Moreover, we think it's a bit silly for colleges to try and get good teams to play in the Rose Bowl. We played in the Rose Bowl 20 times during the past six years. Maybe that's why we lose; we're just spoiled."

For the sake of clarity let it be mentioned that the Rose Bowl is Tech's home field. Tech meets Occidental there Friday, and the spokesman was happy to report Tech would be a 1-10 short-end.

NEW YORK (U.P.)

A torn muscle over the right ribs may keep Sid Luckman, Columbia's passing star, out of the University of Virginia game Saturday. Luckman, who has completed 47 passes for 575 yards in 91 attempts, was injured as Columbia bowed to Cornell last week. He is expected to be in shape for the Navy game on Oct. 12.

There will be betting on the race

There will be betting on the race the sixth on Pimlico's opening day card of eight—straight or win pool only. By a special ruling of the Maryland commission, race tickets will be refunded at their face value in case the two horses finish in a dead heat. Most of the experts look on the race as an even thing.

War Admiral and Seabiscuit Ready for Match Race

By HENRY McEMORE BALTIMORE, Md.—(U.P.)—One more setting sun, one more rising sun, and War Admiral and Seabiscuit will run their long-awaited match race on the brown loam of Pimlico to decide which of them is the greater horse, the faster horse.

Tonight is Halloween and as far as Baltimore is concerned the most feared of the evil spirits that will visit the city is the threat of rain. If the rains come the match race will be postponed to the day after tomorrow.

Pimlico officials, accepting wholeheartedly the authorized forecaster's promise of clear, cool weather for Tuesday say that the track will be lightning fast and ready for smashing runs by the Admiral and the Biscuit.

According to the careful agreement between Charlie Howard, owner of Seabiscuit, and Samuel D. Riddle, owner of War Admiral, a decision on the condition of the strip will be made shortly after breakfast time Tuesday morning by a neutral referee, Jervis Spencer, Jr., chairman of the Maryland Racing commission. Each owner has posted $5,000 forfeit to be surrendered if Spencer okays the race and the other fails to start.

The track was what is known among handicappers as "good," but this condition was remedied by ceaseless toil on the part of groundcrews. Howard feared that while the top soil might come around, the deep down footing might remain sticky and thus handicap Seabiscuit, a mediocre performer when the going isn't of the best.

The Californian was high on his horse, however. After the Biscuit had breezed a mile he said his horse had never trained so well and was as sound as a dollar. George Woolf, who will have a leg up on the five-year-old, had this answer when asked what he thought of his chances: "We're a pipe."

Odds Favor Admiral

Woolf is in the minority, however, because War Admiral was on the short end of the betting today, and is certain to go to the post the favorite. The Admiral also had an easy mile gallop Sunday, and when he returned to his stable his trainer, touchy old George Conway, answered any inquiries with a curt: "We're fit and ready to race. One man likes one horse, another man likes another. We like ours. There'll be no excuses."

The only calm and unperturbed creature in Baltimore today were the horses. A crowd of between 40,000 and 45,000 is expected to jam the old tradition laden course for the race.

California barely got by Oregon

California barely got by Oregon State, 13 to 7; Dartmouth showed power to burn in burying Yale, 24 to 8; Notre Dame, with a great climax runner in Ben Sheridan, put herself back on the glory road with a 19-7 triumph over Army; Duke, a great defensive team, showed across top touchdowns for a victory over North Carolina.

Ten Major Elevens Share 'Charmed Circle'

By HARRY FERGUSON (United Press Sports Editor) NEW YORK—Ten are seated today in the charmed circle of major football teams that are undefeated and untied, but five of them must risk their records this week against rowdy outfits aching to bring about upsets.

The lucky 10 are Pittsburgh, Texas Christian, California, Tennessee, Notre Dame, Santa Clara, Dartmouth, Duke, Oklahoma and Iowa State. Somewhere in that list are your Rose Bowl and Sugar Bowl contestants.

Five of them seem certain to survive the week. Duke, a team that has gone its quiet way without yielding a point this season, doesn't play. There is not much chance, either, that these can lose: Tennessee which plays Chattanooga, Dartmouth which meets Dickinson, Santa Clara which plays San Francisco, and Iowa State which takes on Drake.

Charmed While Threatened But the other five have jobs cut out for them. Pittsburgh must get past Carnegie Tech, TCU meets a tough little Tulsa squad, California must dispose of Southern California, Notre Dame confronts Navy, and Oklahoma plays Kansas State. The chances are that there won't be 10 chairs in the charmed circle next Saturday night.

Looking back over the week-end there is nothing to do but preach from the old, familiar text: "Woe unto him who plays Pittsburgh and Texas Christian."

Saturday was to be the day of Pitt's trial by fire. Fordham, a stout, tricky team, was supposed to be able to cage the Panther if anybody could. And, for three periods, Fordham did. Then fate, which plays in the Pittsburgh backfield under the aliases of Goldberg, Siebbins, Cassiano and Chickernie, took a hand and that was the end of Fordham. When they picked up the pieces the score was 24 to 13.

Texas Christian, too, was supposed to have trouble on its hands with Baylor. The only trouble that developed was with scoreboard attendants who had trouble keeping up with the Texas Christian team. They finally figured up that it was 39 to 7.

These performances marked Pitt and TCU as the standouts in some post-season affair the arguments about them will go on for years.

Minnesota lost its seat in the charmed circle when a rearing, ripping Northwestern team finally shoved across the touchdown that gave it a 6-3 victory. Northwestern makes a habit of knocking off Minnesota when nobody else seems able to do the job.

The second big upset occurred at State College, Pa., where a heretofore mediocre Penn State team magically came to life and swamped strong Syracuse, 33 to 6.

California barely got by Oregon State, 13 to 7; Dartmouth showed power to burn in burying Yale, 24 to 8; Notre Dame, with a great climax runner in Ben Sheridan, put herself back on the glory road with a 19-7 triumph over Army; Duke, a great defensive team, showed across top touchdowns for a victory over North Carolina.
