Central High Cage Outlook Isn't Cheery

This is the first of a series of articles on basketball prospects in Madison high schools this year.

By MONTE MACK

Milt Diehl, starting his first full season as coach of Madison Central high school's basketball team, is pessimistic over cage prospects at the uptown institution this fall. He has only three lettermen back as the nucleus of his varsity five.

Three Lettermen

Diehl in speaking of this year's prospects said, "I have only three lettermen back this year and I don't expect the team to be quite as good as the second semester outfit of last year."

Coach Diehl had most of his squad members out before November but the football players reported last Wednesday for the first time, and the squad got its first real workout Monday night.

Wellman Is Tallest

Coach Diehl is planning strongly on Derr and Scallisi. Both played good ball as sophomores and should be much improved with a year of experience. Derr's football experience is expected to make him much more aggressive in the front line.

Bill Joachim and Blaine Hendrickson have been working at the forward opposite Derr. Wellman has the edge at center and Art Turnquist, a clever little ball handler, is being groomed to team with Scallisi at guard.

Wellman is the tallest of the lot, being about 6 feet 11 inch tall. Derr and Joachim are about six feet 8 inches while the two guards, Scallisi and Turnquist, are about 5 feet 6 inches each.

Plans Another Cut

George Torgenson, guard, and Russ Sponen, forward, may be of considerable help before the season ends. Torgenson is a rugged sophomore who weighs about 160 and is 5 feet 9 inches tall. Sponen is six feet tall but is slightly built.

Coach Diehl still has 27 players on his squad but plans another roster follow.

SENIORS: Lucien Tilker, Harold Whiteis, John Leonard, Art Turnquist, Art Wellman, Bill Joachim and Bob Lutz.

JUNIORS: Bob Hanson, Blaine Hendrickson, Leonard Gandolf, Jack Derr, Teddy Scallisi, Russ Sponen, Peter Colletti, Vito Colletti, Claude Milward, and Steve Gambino.

SOPHOMORES: Jack Boyle, Aaron Scherer, George Lauck, Frank Gambino, Alex Steele, George Torgenson, Ernest La Bella, and Joe Colletti.

Cambria Faces Montello Again

CAMBRIA—Cambria high school's basketball team makes its second start of the season tonight in Montello and for the tie is over Coach William B. (Chub) Hatch still won't know how to class his cagers in the Columbia County Little Seven league race which opens on Dec. 2. Montello bested the Cambria cagers in a rigged game here last week, 13-5.

Teachers college, rates his prospects as fair despite the fact that he has seven lettermen forming the nucleus of his team. Last year's team won only five of 20 games, winding up in the cellar of the league standing.

Cambria's returning lettermen are Ralph Patterson, M. Williams, E. Abendroth, Ed Tom, G. Marguard, Morris Rowlands, and Dave Hein. The other candidates drilling for the first start are: Juniors—D. Roberts, B. Hughes, R. Jones, E. Hughes; sophomores—J. Thomas, J. Allan, W. Jones, M. Jones, H. Slinger; freshmen—G. Patterson, E. Leary, Water
