State Law Hearings Set

(By United Press)

Law enforcement officers Wisconsin will converge on the capitol this week to convince legislators that modern methods of maint-ining law and order and apprehending criminals will pay dividends throughout the state. Police chiefs, sheriffs and constables all will join in asking the senate committee on state and local government to recommend passage of a bill for a state and local sage of a bill for a state bureau of police radio communications at a hearing scheduled Wednesday. Tri-Party Bill

The bill was introduced by senators from all three political parties, A. J. Connors (P., Barron), Harry W. Bolens (D., Port Washington), and Michael A. Mack (R. Shiocton). Connors is probably the first member of his party in recent years to affix his name to any legislation even suggestive of a system of state police.

The system would broadcast police dispatches and reports and render all possible aid to peace officers throughout the state. In emergencies the director could make use of the present state-owned long wave stations, WHA and WLBL, for police use.

Five-Man Board

A board of five men, appointed by the governor, would control the system with the state bureau and its director doing the administration work. The board is to be composed of two policemen, two sheriffs, and one citizen. The governor would select the officer members from nominations made by the Wisconsin Chiefs of Police assn. and the Wisconsin Sheriffs assn.,

A measure setting up a state departmental research bureau and indicating the direction of the administration's reorganization plans will come before the joint committee on finance for hearing Tuesday.

The bureau would be empowered to make investigations, boards and commissions, recommending the feasibility of consalidating, rearranging, or creating departments to eliminate duplication, reduce cost of administration, recommending the feasibility of consalidating, rearranging, or creating departments to eliminate duplication, reduce cost of administration, and increase efficiency.

The work would be carried on under a $5,000-a-year director with an annual appropriation of $15,000.

Abolish Commissions?

The creation of a "super legislature" by imposing all the duties of the state administrative commissions on the legislature in addition to its regular lawmaking, is asked in a bill by Sen. Bernhard Gettelman, (R., Milwaukee) which comes up for rehearing Thursday.

Gettelman would abolish the industrial, public service, insurance, conservation, banking, and tax commissions, board of control, banking review board, and the board of agriculture and markets, and transfer their functions to legislature in addition to its regular lawmaking, is asked in a bill by Sen. Industrial Organizations. Loren Houser, Detroit, and Charles Madden, Pontiac, Mich., left the Martin camp to join forces with 18 other board members who have CIO support in their battle to oust Martin from the union presidency. Their action left Martin, now one of two rival presidents in the dual union, with but three supporters on the executive

In changing their allegiance, Houser and Madden said suspension of 15 officers of the union by Martin "was in violation of the held in Cleveland, March 27, as the legal union meeting. Martin also called a convention to be held here March 4.
