

Popular Networks Baritone Will Join Pearce Monday

Buddy Clark, well known young network baritone, will join the gang of zanies headed by Al Pearce as a guest singer in the WEAF broadcast Monday, at 8:00 p. m.

The program will feature "candid camera" self-revelations of the Gang's principals, including Arlene Harris, Tizzie Lish, Eb and Zeb Vince Barnett and Carl Hoff.

Hoff and his orchestra will play, among other numbers, "This is It," from the new Broadway success, "Stars in Your Eyes." Gotta Get Some Shut-Eye and "Honolulu."

Mayor Angelo Rossi, of San Francisco, will personally escort Eddie Cantor and his Caravan troupe from Los Angeles to Frisco this week for the banjo-eyed comedian's broadcast Monday, over WABC at 7:30 p. m. direct from Treasure Island, Bert Parks, the Mad Russian, Sid Fields, Kay St. Germain and Edgar Fairchild's orchestra will also make the trip with Eddie.

The sunny shores of Italy will be the next stop on the Contented Hour's musical tour, when Opal Craven, the Continental Quartet and Marek Weber's orchestra present "Neapolitan Night" during the broadcast over WEAF Monday, at 10:00 p. m. Miss Craven will sing the popular "Santa Lucia," and Earl Tanner, tenor, will be heard in "O Sole Mio."

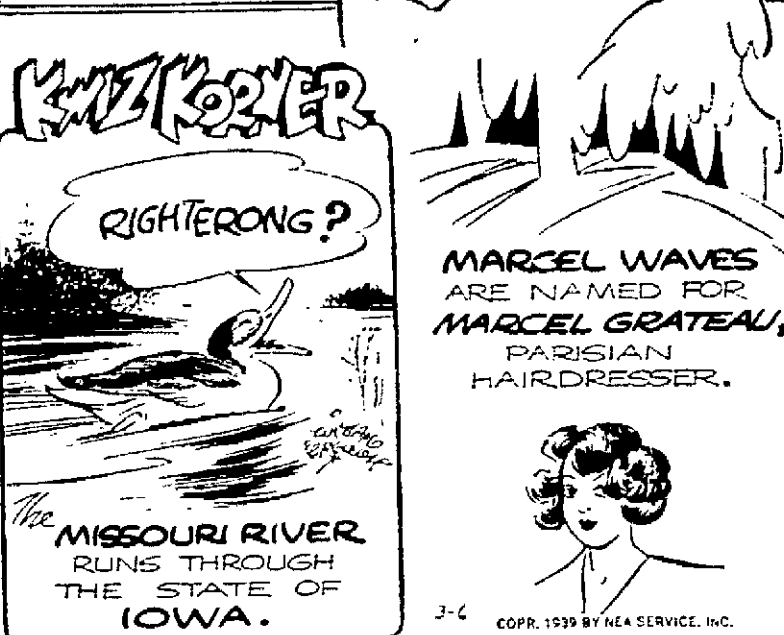

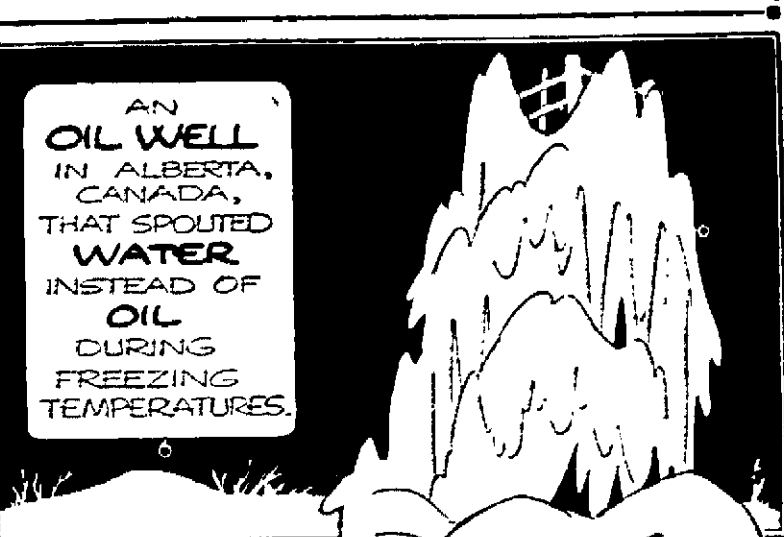

The quartet will offer "Maid of Surriento" and "L'Addio A'Napoli," and the orchestra will play "Funiculi Funicula," "Pestalozzi's 'Cari Bini Bini,'" and "Arditi's 'Il Bacio.'" Weber's violin solo will be "Torna A' Surriento" by Di Curtis.

Margaret Speaks, soprano, will sing the aria "Ebben, Ne Andro Lontano" from Catalani's opera "La Wally" as a highlight of the Voice of Firestone program Monday, at 8:30 p. m., over WEAF.

Other solos by Miss Speaks will be Valverde's "Clavdivito," Scherzinger's "One Night of Love" and La Golondrina. The symphony orchestra, conducted by Alfred Wallenstein, will be heard in the Paganini suite, Paderewski's "Minuet," and Brahms' Hungarian Dance No. 5.

FIRST PRIVATE TOY PREVIEW IS LAUNCHED

Manufacturers Show Ingenuity in Plaything Creations

DOLLS PLAY ORGANS

"Broadcasting" Units For Home. $10 Table Tennis Paddles Offered

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—Toy manufacturers turned on high voltage ingenuity in plaything creations for dolls and children—and even mama and papa—in preparing their first private preview which has just opened here.

The toys—familiar and novel ones—will go on general exhibition at the regular summer showing but today wholesale buyers are offering to trade these brand-new creations.

Radio "broadcasting" units for the home.

Two dollar table tennis paddles. Remote control, double-headed trains that stop at stations and whistle while a train announcer goes into his routine inside the depot.

"Organ-playing" dolls that sell for as low as $75 and as high as $200.

A complete line of wild animals, some as tall as a couple of feet.

New ideas in making things with beads—from animals and men to handbags and hotplates.

OLDER DOLLS LATEST FAD

It was the first showing of the double-headed engines—heretofore impractical because of lack of proper synchronization—and of perfected remote control coupling and uncoupling of cars in units or singly, even while the train was in motion.

Dolls are more mature—about 17 years old—getting away from the new-born baby type popular until the last year.

The organ-playing doll doesn't move its fingers but sways as its hands move over the keyboard of the five-foot-high organ. A synchronized phonograph supplies the music.

The home broadcasting unit is one of the preview's highlights.

Government regulations prohibit indiscriminate sending of signals, into the air so this "toy" complete with sound effects and microphone, is wired to the regular home radio which sends out the program just as if it were coming over the air.

A show may be staged in another part of the home, from opening announcement to sign-off, with such sounds as rain, thunder, fire, animal noises and half a dozen other effects.

A companion piece is a receiving set, broken down, that the child may assemble. It has a receiving radius of 50 miles—bringing in any commercial stations in that area—but has no loud-speaker. A head-phone set is used.

Summerville And Treacher Are Paired In Quilna Film

Aviation Picture Heads State Twin Bill; Lyric Offers Comedies And Ohio Shows Mickey Rooney's Latest

Slim Summerville and Arthur Treacher, two of Hollywood's tallest and most humorous comedians, appear together in the film comedy, "Up the River," which now is showing at the Quilna theatre. In the principal roles are such favorites as Preston Foster, Tony Martin, Phyllis Brooks and Bill Robinson.

Also at the Quilna is "Pardon Our Nerve," another comedy starring June Gale and Lynn Bari and featuring Guinn "Big Boy" Boyly.

"The Dawn Patrol," a great aviation epic of the World War I era, is one of the pictures showing at the State. The brilliant all-star cast is headed by Errol Flynn, Basil Rathbone, David Nye, Donald Crisp and Melville Cooper.

"Swing That Cheer," a gay story of campus life and football heroes, is the second State offering. Tom Brown, Andy Devine, Robert Wilcox and Constance Moore are seen in the leading roles.

Monday is weekly laugh day at the Lyric. "Three Broadway Girls," starring Joan Blondell, Madge Evans and Ina Claire is the principal feature. Six laugh hit comedies will complete the comedy bill.

Mickey Rooney in his first solo starring vehicle, Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," is seen at the Ohio currently. This picture tells the story of a Mississippi river boy and his adventures, dramatic, comical and pathetic, while seeking to aid a runaway slave to escape to free state in the days before the Civil war.

"St. Louis Blues," a motion picture inspired by the unforgettable song of the same name, more than lives up to its expectations. With Dorothy Lamour, Lloyd Nolan, Tito Guizar, Maxine Sullivan, and Mary "Punkin'" Parker forming a stand-still cast, it is showing at the Sigma.

CASTING Dorothy Lamour as the lead in a story that satirizes a portion of the star's own career is one of the best ideas to come out of Hollywood in many a month. It combines with good music and fine acting to make the new Lamour picture, "St. Louis Blues," which opened Saturday at the Sigma theatre, a witty, colorful and highly original production.

Since "St. Louis Blues" is a story of life aboard a Mississippi showboat of 1929 vintage—with very little of the "ole man ribber" touch about it—it has a setting well suited to high-geared romance, vital characters and credible situations.

Miss Lamour, the central figure in the drama, (and looking as glamorous aboard a riverboat as on the remotest tropical isle), portrays a theatrical celebrity who rebels against her manager's dictum that she never appear in public except in a sarong. When the manager, a picturesque character played by Jerome Cowan, remains adamant, Miss Lamour throws up the sponge—or rather the sarong—and runs away from him during a tour of the Middle West.

When the desperate celebrity takes refuge aboard a down-alley hock-shoebus, the romance of "St. Louis Blues" gets into full swing. The owner of the barge, her man Lloyd Nolan, gives the girl a singing job, believing her to be just a poor kid out of work. Her singing and beauty make her the sensation of the Mississippi region, and the reluctant Nolan gradually becomes her most ardent admirer.

"Up the River," the comedy at the Quilna theatre, proved to be a great memory bringer-backer for Phyllis Brooks who shares the romantic lead with Tony Martin. The first scene in the film is with Robert Allen with whom she previously worked in New York when both were commercial models. Also, she had appeared opposite Tony Martin when both made their movie debuts in a short subject called "Foolish Hearts."

"All I need now" laughed Phyllis.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Underwood and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Underwood and daughter, Diana Lee, took Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kent and daughter Chloe, of near Harold.

Mrs. Susie Turner and Mrs. Estella Downing were Monday afternoon guests of Mrs. Retta Lowman.

Mrs. Colleen Grubb of Findlay called at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Coon Thursday. Miss Beatrice Coon of Lima was a week-end guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ackerman and son Dickie of near Bluffton were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Erna Ackerman and family. Miss Lois Hurlinger of Allentown was also a guest.
