Radio News and Programs Gerald Walker Claims He's Found Another Potential "Dizzy" Dean

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

7:30--WIND 8:30--WGN WCFL 9:00--WCFL 8:45--WIND 10:00--WIBA WBBM 10:00--WENR WLW [United Press Staff Correspondent]
HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(U.P.)—
Gerald Walker, the happy-golucky Mississippi boy who plays outfield for the Chicago White Sox, always wears a smile. But the other night Gerald was smiling bigger than usual. He was happier than Huckleberry Finn with a fishing pole in his hand. You see, Walker, who was here assisting Rogers Hornsby coach some 125 youngsters with base-ball aspirations in the Rajah's diamond school, thinks he has discovered another Dizzy Dean. His name is Mel Kramer, and he hails from Slater, Mo.

"He's the nearest thing I've ever seen to 'Dizzy'," said Gerald. "He's just a 17-year-old kid, but his actions on and off the field are just like 'Diz's'. First time I ever saw him was in the armory, where we worked out one day when the weather was bad. He was firing that ball so hard it sounded like a machine gun when it plopped in the catcher's mitt. I watched him a while and then told him, "Don't throw another hard ball for two weeks.'

Walker Signs Him Half a dozen major league scouts were here looking

Hornsby's talent, and half a dozen of the brighter prospects were signed up, but this lad didn't get a tumble from any of them. Then Walker told Kramer to cut loose one day against the Baltimore club, doing its preliminary work here under Manager Hornsby's direction.

"He showed me plenty," said Walker. "He had speed and a sharp curve and what I liked about him, he just cut loose and threw the ball. He didn't have to aim. Throwing just comes natural with him like it did to 'Diz'. He had so much stuff the Baltimore players couldn't hit him. After he finished I told him to-run right straight back to his rooming house and talk to no one. All the scouts poured out on the field and asked me where I'd been hiding him. I told 'em to lay off I had him all wrapped up for the White Sox."

Walker signed up Kramer, giving him $150. The White Sox will farm him out to their Longview East Texas League farm club this year.

$1.50 Shoes, No Cap "He's about three years away," said Gerald, "but I'd stake my own money on that kid ,making good in baseball."

He was a sod-jerker in Slater, Mo., last year, and before that worked on a Mississippi river boat for his grandfather until the CIO laid him off. He borrowed $150 from his grandmother to enter Hornsby's school and came here with a pair of $1.50 mail-order shoes and no other equipment. When he first reported, he wore a hat on the field because he had

"When I gave him the $150 I asked what he was going to do with it," relates Walker. "He said, 'I'm sending $130 to Grandma and keeping $20 for spending money." Next day he came up to my room and showed me a new suit and asked me how I liked it. I told him fine, and he said it was his roommate's. Then I gave him one of my suits. After that the scouts accused me of giving away my wardrobe to entice players

Such pressure will be needed because foreigners who have suffered prison sentences or who come under the clause of "moral turpitude" are banned entrance to our shores.

The USLTA brass hats are quite set upon having Baron von Cramm visit here this summer. They need him for the five important grass tourneys, and particularly as a drawing card for the Nationals at Forest Hills—now "good that red-headed Don Budge is carving out a quick hundred grand Von Cramm never served his year in prison. He was released on parole in October, because of "good behavior". And recently the baron announced that he was returning to international tennis as professional. They've got to have a big name for the gate. pionships at Cairo, starting in mid-April. Meanwhile he has been practicing on his family estate near Hanover, and will play on the French Riviera before going to Egypt.

Officials of the USLTA will watch Von Cramm's performances in Egypt almost as closely as they will watch the showings of Bobby Riggs, Wayne Sabin and Gene Mako during the early American tourneys. Von Cramm will be 30 years old in July. It is problem-atical if he can lift his game to its former heights.

If the baron does fairly well in his foreign tourneys, it looks like Harris says, "Budge beat Ells- a 10-1 bet that he'll be over here worth Vines in the first half of the this summer, and that he'll be faccurrent tour. And Budge will beat ing Budge as a professional next winter.

"I like the Cardinals' chances," said Terry. "They might be the team we'll all have to lick. They certainly have plenty of potential-ities. There's just one spot on the team I don't like and that's shortstop. But they have five shortstops going to camp so they may find the man they want.
