Roosevelt on Airwaves Wednesday Morning with Message for Youth

Edward G. Robinson and another racket for the benefit of air listeners. Robinson plays Steve Wilson, managing editor of the "Illustrated Press," and glamorous Claire is cast as Lorelei Kilbourne, society editor, who barges in where her rugged boss fears to tread. Their sketches are heard on "Big Town" over WBBM on Tuesdays at 7 p. m.

Egg Gets Praise

The humble egg will be praised the next few weeks in essays by Wisconsin school girls and boys. Every student from the seventh grade through high school has been invited by the state department of public instruction to enter an egg essay contest drafted by the department of agriculture and markets in observance of Wisconsin Egg week, May 8-13. Planned to encourage a greater appreciation of the importance of the egg industry, the contest offers numerous inducements.

First place will be a two-day all expense trip to the Wisconsin State fair, Aug. 19-27, with free admittance to afternoon and evening entertainment and one ticket on each of 16 thrilling rides. Nineteen other awards will be

1,800 Assessors Prepare Report of Farm Data

With the beginning of the new crop year, 1,800 Wisconsin assess-ors are about to make their annual farm statistics report, Walter H. Ebling, agricultural statistician for the Wisconsin and United States departments of agriculture, announced today.

It has been 100 years since agricultural statistics were first gathered in the United States and over 20 years since the Wisconsin law ports. Since Wisconsin assessors began making their reports about consin.

The 1,800 assessors probably will have a busy time for a while. There are now about 200,000 marsh area where no artificial farms in the state, and more than feeding had been done during the 21,000,000 acres are in farm land. 21,000,000 acres are in farm land. winter.
