

King Sisters To Be Heard Monday With Pearce's Gang

New Comedy Act Will Make Bow; Story Of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes Set On Cavalcade Program

The King Sisters those four queens of melody who have proved axes with the Al Pearce Gang listeners, will have their fourth consecutive appearance on the Pearce program Monday on WEAJ from 7 to 7:30 p. m.

Another new surprise comedy act will make its bow during the program, with Eb and Zeb and Arlene "Human Chatterbox" Harris in their usual spots. Everett West, tenor, will sing "The Masquerade Is Over" and Carl Hoff's orchestra will feature "My Heart Stood Still," as well as a swing arrangement of "Liza."

The story of Oliver Wendell Holmes, for 30 years associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, now regarded as one of the greatest single forces in the broad development of American law, will be the subject of the Cavalcade of America broadcast to be heard Monday at 7 p. m. over WABC.

The son of a famous New England poet and essayist, Oliver Wendell Holmes was perhaps a greater man than his distinguished father. The episodes chosen for dramatization by Cavalcade will show that his story was not so much the history of a man's life as the record of a mind.

To development of a man's mind, to Justice Holmes, the law was a living human thing, and while his opinions at first shocked men of his profession because they were not written in complicated legal language, they have survived to become an invaluable legacy to American democracy.

Margaret Speaks will sing the well-known aria, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah," as a highlight of the Voice of Firestone program, with Alfred Wallenstein and the 70-piece symphony orchestra, Monday from 7:30 to 8:00 p. m. over WEAJ.

The soprano star will be heard in Olmstead's "All of My Heart," Herbert's "Kiss in the Dark," and Moya's "Song of Songs." Wallenstein will conduct the "Dance of the Comedians" from Smetana's "The Bartered Bride," the Toreador and Argentine louse from Rubinstein's "Bal Costum" No. 7, and the Strauss waltz, "Roses of the South."

Clifton Fadiman will get all the information he wants when the headman of NBC's Information Please program guests on Eddie Cantor's CBS Caravan Monday at 6:30 p. m. Broadcasting from New York, Cantor's program will include the songs of Kay St. Germaine and Bert Parks, fun by Mr. Guffy and the Mad Russian, and orchestral music by Edgar Fairchild, who accompanied the comedian last week-end.

Frank Morgan made a flying trip east last week for his first visit to Manhattan in two years. During an allotted five days from Hollywood, Frank lost no time—taking an overnight trip to Boston to visit his ill sister, seeing two Broadway plays, and making a comprehensive tour of the World's Fair before flying back

CIRCUS ORPHAN ADOPTS BABY LION AMONG PETS

MARY HILTON, CIRCUS ORPHAN, AND TOOTS

Among the boys and girls with the great Cole Brothers Circus there are a score. They are children of performers and officials of the big show, excepting Mary Hilton, five years old, the little circus orphan.

Tragedy has followed in the wake of little Mary's life. Her father, an aerial gymnast, was killed in a fall from a perch pole at the Chicago Stadium three years ago. Several months later her mother, who, too, was a circus performer, died after a short illness. With no immediate relatives, Mary was adopted by performers of the Cole Brothers Circus.

Also deprived of parental care, Mary is the little sweetheart of all the 300 performers with the show. She has an endless number of Shetland ponies and a wagonload of dogs as playmates.

Added to this list of pets this year is a lion cub, Toots. The little trouper wishes to be an acrobat when he grows up. Her training has already started. Just now Mary is studying her Three R's, under the tutelage of Fred Vost, a clown, and the most schooled performer with the circus.

The Cole Brothers Circus is coming to Lima on Wed., May 17 for two performances at 2 and 8 p. m. Doors to the menagerie will open at 1 and 7 p. m. An immense street parade will be seen on the downtown streets at 11 a. m. There will be hundreds of horses, tumbling wagons of red and gold, tooting calliopes, trumpeting bands, 20 elephants and two caravans of camels from Asia and Siberia.

AMERICANS TRUSTEES OF CIVILIZATION, SAYS MURPHY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 15—(UP)—Today General Frank Murphy assailed governments directed by "arrogant minorities that happen to hold the key to the gun room."

Speaking before a joint meeting of the United States conference of mayors and the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, he urged Americans to realize increasingly their responsibility as "trustees of civilization."

Without naming any government, Murphy criticized political doctrines that recognize human beings "only as cogs in a machine." He described the safeguard of civil liberties as the best American safeguard against such doctrines.

Murphy said he had information indicating that "some public officials had used their power arbitrarily."

"Ordinances have been passed and invoked that are oppressive and unjust and violate common right," he said. "Citizens have been denied the right to express freely their opinions and to worship as they please."

The attorney general cited the establishment of a new unit by the department of justice for the specific purpose of increasing of the federal government's ability to protect civil rights. He said that a deluge of complaints—"some unwarranted and may not be asserting that civil liberties have been received."

"The unmistakable fact is that the seeds of barbarism have been sown among us," Murphy said, "and there are those who would like to see them sprout and grow."

Emphasizing that the federal government is playing an increasingly large part in protective civil liberties, Murphy told the mayors and municipal officials that the

APPROPRIATION BILL SLATED FOR PASSAGE

$317,000,000 Measure Will Be Started On Its Way In Ohio Assembly

SPEEDY ACTION FORECAST

$20,000,000 For Relief And $97,000,000 For Schools Included

COLUMBUS, O., May 15—(AP)—The $317,000,000 appropriation bill for 1939-40, principal item of business in the 33rd Ohio general assembly, will be started on its way toward enactment tonight.

The measure, carrying funds for operation of Ohio's scores of governmental agencies and institutions and including $20,000,000 for poor relief, $97,000,000 for schools and $65,000,000 for old age pensions, will come up for a vote in the house of representatives.

House leaders predicted it would pass handily and be sent to the senate, which may act by the end of the week.

An amendment to exempt state universities from a 3 per cent cut in salary appropriations, voted by the house finance committee, likely will be offered on the floor. Such an amendment is desired by the governor's office.

At the same time, the senate will vote on the house-approved bill designed to help hard-pressed cities levy taxes on real estate for poor relief. Senate leaders were confident the measure would be approved and sent to the governor for his signature.

FRAUD PENALTY UP IN SENATE

The cities could immediately take advantage of authorization to levy up to 1-1/2 mills for not more than two years by a bare majority vote of the electors this year and by 55 per cent in 1940. The present law requires a 65 per cent approval.

The senate also will vote on another house bill fixing a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and two years imprisonment for conspiracy to defraud the state.

The house welfare committee is expected to report out this week a bill setting up machinery for the administration of relief.

The house taxation committee continued work today on a senate bill authorizing cities and counties to use a portion of their automobile license tag revenue for relief. The money is now earmarked for streets and highways.

Roland C. Caley of the Ohio Good Roads Federation said he had received a communication from the Federal Bureau of Public Roads terming the proposed use of tag money "unauthorized because there can be no assurance of repayment."

Caley asserted that diversion of the money would cost the state $75,000,000 in Works Progress Administration funds, and an additional $3,300,000 allocation from the U. S. bureau of Public Roads.

Warner Baxter Starred In Attraction At The Quilna

Great Supporting Cast In "The Return Of The Cisco Kid;" Hardy Family On Ohio Screen

Warner Baxter puts on a Mexican sombrero and all the other regalia as he portrays the Cisco Kid in the picture, "The Return of the Cisco Kid" which is now showing at the Quilna. Lynn Bari and Henry Hull are seen in supporting roles of the fast moving adventure story.

Andrew Hardy, millionaire playboy, is the title chosen by Mickey Rooney in the latest of the Hardy family pictures, "The Hardys Ride High" current at the Ohio, Judge Hardy, played by Lewis Stone, is heir to a two million dollar fortune and when the family learns of this they begin to live accordingly.

Girls forgotten by society, beaten and down-trodden, are used as a basis for the dramatic film, "Prison Without Bars" now showing at the Sigma. A new French star, Corinne Luchaire, makes debut in the film with Edna Best and Barry Barnes in supporting roles.

"Gunga Din," an exciting film based on the poem by Rudyard Kipling and starring Cary Grant, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Victor McLaglen, is one of the pictures now showing at the State. "The Family Next Door" is the title of the other picture.

"The Road to Reno," a gay romantic comedy starring Hope Hampton and Randolph Scott, designed to help hard-pressed cities levy taxes on real estate for poor relief. Senate leaders were confident the measure would be approved and sent to the governor for his signature.

Henry Hull missed the smell of printer's ink on "The Return of the Cisco Kid" set.

For the famous character actor had just completed two newspaper editor roles at the studio—the irascible Missouri editor in "Jesse James" and the famous James Gordon Bennett in "Stanley and Livingstone"—when he signed for the role of the cantankerous old Colonel Bisby in "The Return of the Cisco Kid" which stars Warner Baxter in his most famous characterization as O. Henry's romantic bandit whom bullets couldn't touch and jails couldn't hold.

Hull plays the grandfather of Lynn Bari in "The Return of the Cisco Kid," showing at the Quilna. Others whom Production Chief Darryl F. Zanuck cast in important supporting roles are Cesar Romero, Kane Richmond, C. Henry Gordon and Robert Barrat. Herbert I. Leeds directed from a screen play by Milton Sperling. Kenneth Macgowan acted as associate producer.

Mary Morris, who appears in Alexander Korda's "Prison Without Bars," now playing at the Sigma theatre, had to go around the world to get her first film role.

In the fall of 1937 Maxwell Wray, then acting as talent scout for Alexander Korda, saw Mary in a repertory company and gave her a screen test. It was successful, but as there was no suitable role for her at the time Mary decided to take a holiday in the United States. Arriving in New York, she bought a second-hand automobile and drove to the coast, where she spent four months in Hollywood, visiting the studios and making friends with the stars.

Then, being very fond of traveling, Mary decided to spend the rest of her time and money returning to England the hard way.

Unlike the vast majority of Western films, the new O'Brien vehicle closely parallels the actual origin and exploits of the Arizona Rangers, a little-known and now extinct group of enforcement agents.

Seldom heard of by the public today, the Rangers were created during Arizona's territorial days at the suggestion of President Theodore Roosevelt, who was then in the White House, with the definite object of controlling law and order and suppressing banditry, then running rampant. In the picture, O'Brien portrays the young ex-army officers who in real life captured the first detachment of Rangers.

It was necessary to use a ground crew, together with truckmen, mechanics and studio technicians, in order to wheel the gleaming plane into a huge new sound stage. It required five hours to transfer the ship from the airport to the studio, and several more were devoted to preparations and rehearsals. In the same length of time the transport could have been half way across the continent.

Appearing with Stone in the cabin scenes were Fay Holden as his wife, Mickey Rooney as Andy Hardy, Cecilia Parker as the maiden Aunt Milly and Minot Watson as a flying business man who makes middle-aged love to her. Jean Lewis appeared as the airplane hostess, with extras playing mechanics, porters, dispatcher and additional passengers.

George Seitz, directing the picture, worked with the camera crew on lofty stands from which the cameras shot thru the windows. Other interior scenes were filmed by a camera set up in the plane.

When her ship was one day out at sea Mary received a cable from Korda, offering her the role of Renee in "Prison Without Bars." She immediately made plans to land at Honolulu and return home the way she had come, but discovered that this would entail a $200 fine which she could not afford. So she sailed on to Japan, crossed Siberia, and eventually arrived in London tired, penniless, and minus her luggage which had been confiscated at Tokyo.

"Prison Without Bars," starring Corinne Luchaire, was directed by Brian Desmond Hurst, with Edna Best and Barry Barnes in featured roles and hundreds of girls in the supporting cast.

When Randolph Scott was engaged to star with Hope Hampton in "The Road to Reno," showing at the Lyric theatre which features Glenda Farrell, Helen Broderick, Alan Marshal and David Oliver, he jumped at the chance. The reason he did so was because the film is packed full of real "he-man" action stuff.

A real, and highly exciting chapter in Western history is being recreated in George O'Brien's new vehicle, "Arizona Legion," also at the Lyric.
