

Great Cast To Be Heard In "White Banners" Radio Show

Fay Bainter, Lewis Stone and Jackie Cooper Have Lead Roles; House Hunting To Keep Pierce Busy

When the Radio Theatre presents its adaptation of the Lloyd C. Douglas novel, "White Banners," Monday, Fay Bainter, Lewis Stone, and Jackie Cooper will play the principal roles.

Fay Bainter takes the part of Hannah Parmalee with Jackie Cooper as young Peter Trimble which were the same characterizations they did in the movie version.

A mythical visit to Finland will be paid by members of the Carnation Contented program during the "International Nights" feature of the broadcast over WEAF Monday from 9 to 9:30 p. m.

So many requests have been received by Margaret Speaks, prima donna of the Voice of Firestone, for Strauss' "Tales from the Vienna Woods" since she first sang it on the air that the number will be repeated on the WEAF program Monday at 7:30 p. m.

Alfred Wallenstein will conduct the orchestra in Tazan's "Fete de Seville," Grieg's "Norwegian Dance in A Major," and Tschakovsky's "Sleeping Beauty Waltz."

Hair-raising experiences in widely scattered parts of the globe will be told by Dr. Victor Heiser, author of "An American Doctor's Odyssey," Lieut. John McCloy, the only living person who has twice received the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Navy Cross, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Whitney Carpenter, New York's famous amateur explorers, when they are initiated into The Order of Adventurers during the second broadcast of this unique club's proceedings over WJZ, Monday at 7:00 p. m.

All of the adventures to be related have been authenticated by the board of directors of The Order of Adventurers which consists of Admiral Richard E. Byrd, famous polar explorer and flier; Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, big-game hunter and adventurer; Roy Chapman Andrews, director of the American Museum of Natural History; Lowell Thomas, noted journalist, world traveller and radio commentator; and Commander Felix H. S. Navy.

Clifton Fadiman had such a good time on Eddie Cantor's Caravan a couple of weeks back that he's slated for a return engagement Monday, 6:30 p. m., over WABC.

The popular maestro of NBC's Information Please program, will match wits with the Mad Russian and Mr. Guffy while Kay St. Germain and Bert Parks furnish the vocal duets.

Edgar Fairchild's band will play. An eccentric class of not-to-earnest graduates will receive diplomas from the hand of Walter O'Keefe, DPCB, (doctor of parody, caricature and burlesque) on the "Come-Up Time" broadcast scheduled for Monday evening.

AMERICAN NEWSMAN FLIES WITH DUCE

Mussolini Expertly Pilots Swift Bomber, Preferring Its Power To Motors Of Commercial Craft

(EDITOR'S NOTE: There are very few newspapermen in the world who can say "I flew with Mussolini." Merrill Mueller, International News Service staff correspondent attached to the Paris bureau, is one of them. In Rome to cover the World Congress of Aviation Writers Mueller, who is a licensed pilot, was invited by Duce To Fly with him, and here is Mueller's story.)

By MERRILL MUELLER GUIDONIA, Italy, June 12.—(INS)—For 40 minutes I sat with Aviator-Dictator Benito Mussolini and watched him fly a tri-motored Savoia Marchetti bomber with the skill and ease of the veteran airman that he is.

We took off from the airfield of this Fascist experimental air base after Mussolini has reviewed sleek squadrons of military craft.

Presented to Il Duce by Minister for Popular Culture Dino Alfieri, the premier's stern, defiant grin relaxed in a sudden, quick smile and he said:

"You are an American journalist. Almost before I could say 'yes,' he added: 'Come along, we shall fly.' I had almost to dog trot to keep up with his brisk pace as he strode across to where the long bomber was waiting, its motors idling with the smooth purr that told of good craftsmanship.

With a roar, we zoomed down the runway and were in the air, circling gently, easily in the direction of Rome. Within a few minutes, Il Duce jerked his thumb downward, and looking out the window I got my first view of the Eternal City from the sky, a pattern of wide streets and historic ruins in surrounding landscape like a picture-postcard park.

From nearby Rome we headed out, toward the sea, westward over the ruins of ancient Ostia lying alabaster-white against the green hummocks of the Roman campagna.

From the old Ostia we headed on westward toward New Ostia, the famed seaside resort, where thousands go to bathe in the blue, still Mediterranean.

Veering southward over the pine groves of Castel Fusano, we then turned toward home. For some portion of the journey, I was with Mussolini at the controls. I noticed the American Sperry blind flying instruments, and remarked to Mussolini I recognized them.

"Yes," he said, "they are excellent. We use them on all our transport planes." Alfieri told me Il Duce prefers the faster, more powerful bomber to commercial types. Alfieri said one never knew when Il Duce would decide to knock off work and go flying; so a Savoia is always kept in readiness for him at airports near Rome.

Mussolini brought the heavy ship to a smooth landing back at Guidonia. I thanked him. He bowed briskly, courteously, shook hands, and left.

Mussolini, I learned, is considered by his officers to be tops in all phases of flying, including blind navigation, one of the real tests of a good aviator.

During the trip and in the brief moments before and after the flight, while he changed into and out of flying togs, Mussolini conversed in English, German and French with a fluency that astounded me. His English had a definite American accent.

BLOOD PURGE CONTINUES IN SPANISH AREA

Executions Run Into Thousands, Uncensored Dispatch Discloses

150-A-DAY IS AVERAGE

Killings Far From Ended. Nationalists In Three Cities Assert

By KENNETH T. DOWNS PERPIGNAN, Franco-Spanish Frontier, June 12.—(INS)—(Uncensored)—Blood continued to flow in Spain.

Executions since the end of the war run well into four figures. Responsible nationalists in Burgos, Madrid and Barcelona admit this. They likewise admit that their purge is far from ended.

The executions take place every day throughout Spain, the war ended more than two months ago. One hundred and fifty executions daily is generally agreed to be a conservative estimate.

Both Spanish and foreign residents in Barcelona told me that little less than 100 individuals are put to death daily in the province of Catalonia alone.

A British manufacturer from Badalona, an industrial town north of Barcelona, told me that an average of 15 are shot each morning in that town.

EXECUTIONS NO LONGER PUBLIC "I can hear the shots from my place," he said. "The executions are held in private, now, for a while they were performed publicly."

Officially, these men — and occasionally women, it is said, who are being taken daily from prisons to face firing squads, are being shot for having been connected with the crimes of murder during the Republican regime.

Unofficially it is admitted that known Reds and Anarchists who it is feared might represent a potential menace to the new state are likewise being liquidated.

Some of those classified as the more notorious criminals are being garroted instead of shot. The victim is placed in a chair and his executioner, standing behind him, twists the rope about his neck until he is strangled.

CLAIM GIBRALTAR COULD BE TAKEN The drastic extent of the unending purge in Spain is explained by more than the stern "life for a life" code of the country.

A pro-axis extremist in Burgos, explaining his theory that Spain could take Gibraltar and French Morocco in the event of general European conflict, scoffed at the suggestion that Spain might have difficulty inside as well as outside her frontiers at such a time of strain and emergency.

"We know we still have a lot of Reds in the country," he told me, "but they are powerless now. They haven't the guns. We have. We are watching them and we are getting rid of them fast."

While this fanatically pro-axis element is far from being supreme yet, even the most conservative elements who would like nothing more than a return to a position of clear neutrality and the start of serious rehabilitation of the country are in agreement that the sternest sort of measures must be taken with the recent enemy in order to keep down discontent in the present troublesome condition of the country.

This is a serious food shortage in Spain, transportation and communications are still more than semi-paralyzed and business is dead.

The condition of the masses of unemployed former Republicans in many localities, particularly in Catalonia, is perilously near that of starvation. In Barcelona one hears stories of people dying in their homes of hunger.

Even the influential ones of the winning side find it extremely difficult to obtain coffee, sugar, tobacco, stockings and other articles once considered necessities in Spain.

There is considerable discontent. Even business men who welcomed the event of nationalist rule are growing uncomfortable and restless.

Two Exciting Pictures Due At Lyric Theatre Tuesday

"Tailspin" And "The Long Shot" Offer Well Known Stars; "Mad Miss Manton" And "Southward Ho" Close Monday

"Tailspin," an unusual aviation story, and "The Long Shot," an exciting racing drama, are the two pictures opening Tuesday at the Lyric. In the first film three lovely girls, Constance Bennett, Nancy Kelly and Alice Faye, head the cast in a story of women who fly for love, money and thrills.

"Mad Miss Manton," starring Henry Fonda and Barbara Stanwyck, and "Southward Ho," featuring Roy Rogers, "Windy" and Mary Hart, are the pictures now showing at the Lyric.

"Boys Town," starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney, is the story of Father Edward J. Flanagan, the priest who has devoted 21 years of his life to building a home for neglected and abandoned boys, is one of the two pictures now at the State. "Almost a Gentleman," starring James Ellison and Ace, the wonder dog, is the other feature.

A new comedy team is current at the Ohio in the picture, "Lucky Night." Myrna Loy and Robert Taylor make their first appearance together in this gay romance. Interweaving moving heart throb with uproarious laughter, the story unfolds the accidental meeting and later marital careers of Cora Jordan and Bill Overton.

Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing prison for the past 19 years, supplied the plot and factual background for the production, "You Can't Get Away With Murder," showing at the Sigma and starring Humphrey Bogart and Billy Halop.

Two exciting dramas, "Streets of New York" and "Navy Secrets" are current at the Quilna. Jackie Cooper, who gave such a fine performance in "Gangster's Boy" is the star of the first film with Martin Spellman, Marjorie Reynolds and Dick Purcell in the supporting cast. Fay Wray is the star of the latter spy picture.

The screen's "Thin Man" heroine and "Camille's" hero have been teamed for rollicking funmaking in "Lucky Night," the picture coming to the Ohio theatre. Robert Taylor, who has played hit roles in such recent films as "The Crowd Roars" and "Stand Up and Fight," now enacts a happy-go-lucky playboy. Miss Loy is right at home in comedy as Cora Jordan, the girl who runs out on her fourth engagement rather than marry a man she doesn't love.

An exceptionally able director-producer team was utilized for the filming of this comedy. "Lucky Night" represents the combined efforts of Director Norman Taurog and Producer Louis D. Lighton. Together these two united to bring "Skippy," the Academy Award winner, to the screen, as well as "Smoky."

A cast of funmakers support the starring team, among them Joseph Allen, Henry O'Neill, Douglas Fowley, Bernard Nedell, Charles Lane, Bernadene Hayes, Gladys Blake, Marjorie Main, Edward Gargan, Irving Bacon and Oscar O'Shea.

Containing 24 major settings typical of New York, the action moves from the palatial home of the runaway heroine on thru a play palace, beer garden, police station, night clubs, gambling salons, a fashionable hotel and other scenes. Miss Loy's costumes, by Dolly Tree, consist of new fashions that promise to establish new 1939 styles.

Jackie Cooper may be a high salaried movie star to a lot of people around the country but to his pals in Hollywood he's just an unspooled ordinary guy.

Most of Jackie's friends are not screen actors, but students of Beverly Hills High school where Jackie attends when not working in pictures. For instance, following the completion of his current production, "Streets of New York," scheduled at the Quilna theatre, Jackie decided to give a party one Saturday night.

More than fifteen couples were invited. Out of the thirty attending, only six were movie actors. They included Deanna Durbin, Bonita Granville, Dixie Dunbar, Johnny Downs and July Garbar, Jackie called for Judy. The rest were all high school students.

One of Jackie's best friends works as a soda jerk after school hours. Another has a paper route. To them Jackie isn't a movie actor but a swell guy who

AIR PASSENGER SERVICE GARDED

Pan-American To Inaugurate Weekly Scheduled Flights June 28

NEW YORK, June 12.—(INS)—Modern aviation's greatest dream—trans-Atlantic passenger plane service—is about to be fulfilled.

Regularly scheduled weekly flights to Marseilles, France, and return were scheduled today by Pan-American Airways to begin June 28.

Weekly air mail flights to Southampton, England, will be inaugurated June 24, Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways announced, and after five test flights passengers will be carried.

Two 41-ton, four-motored flying boats, the Yankee Clipper and the Atlantic Clipper, each capable of carrying 74 passengers, will be used. Upon delivery of two more of these ships, the schedules will be doubled.

The fare between New York and Marseilles, via the Azores and an overnight stop at Lisbon, will be $375 one way or $675 for the round trip. The aerial voyage will require an elapsed time of 42 hours to France, as compared with 5 1/2 days by steamer.

Eventually, the time for the flight to France may be lowered. At present the boats must fly an additional 1,203 miles around Spain because of inability to obtain a permit to fly directly over Franco's Spain. Overnight customs clearance must also be arranged in France.

The mail flight to England will be by way of Newfoundland and Ireland. Eventually, there will be a plane to France every Wednesday and one to England every Saturday.
