musical comedy, "Streets of Paris," comes to Broadway after a successful opening in "The House of Connelly," a story of tenant farmer and plantation owner in the modern south, aroused much comment for its social significance when it was originally played. It was one of the first efforts of the Group Theatre, whose members working in the radio adaptation of the play will include Maurice Carnovsky. Roman Bohnen and others prominent on Broadway and well known to Miss Smith's listeners.

"If," the famous play by Lord Dunsany, will be presented Thursday at 8 p. m., over WJZ as the third in a group of hour-long dramas which have been scheduled for the spring and summer

This fantasy by the great Irish playwright deals with a middle class Englishman who gets caught in a "time warp," lives 10 years in one afternoon as the ruler of an Oriental province and then is dumped willy nilly back into his humdrum surroundings. "If" originally was adapted for radio use by the British Broadcasting Corp. and was presented with brillmant success in England. Due to the fact that the piece is so typical of the whimsical philosophy of the Emerald Isle, NBC has had a new adaptation written by Einest Boyd, emment lin-h historian. A large cast will be directed by Charles Warburton of the NBC production staff.

Ray Noble is readying an important announcement about his summer plans.

Fletcher Henderson, one of Benny Goodman's ace arrangers, is working on a musical interpretation of Goodman's autobiography, "The Kingdom of Swing: Henderson started to write a popular song, but the theme grew and now hids fair to become a smallsized modern musical opus Acconding to musicians, this is the
